Telemetry-radio gear ordered

Paramedic service to begin with arrival of equipment

by LYNN ASINOF

Special paramedic equipment has been ordered by the village and is expected to arrive in time for the paramedic program to begin on schedule in March.

Village officials have been drawing up plans for the emergency medical program for the past several months. The board of trustees finalized the program when it waived competitive bidding for telemetry-radio equipment earlier this week.

When the telemetry equipment arrives, the fire department will be able to begin paramedic service by using the current ambulance. Bids for a special paramedic van will be opened shortly, but delivery of the van will take from six to eight months.

UNDER A PARAMEDIC program, firemen are trained to provide immediate emergency medical care. Paramedics transmit data on a patient's condition to doctors in the hospital emergency room. The doctors analyze the data and radio instructions on how to care for the patient until he arrives at the hospital.

Heart-attack victims are one type of patient that can greatly benefit from a paramedic program. Emergency treatment administered without delay often keeps the patient alive until he arrives at the hospital.

THREE VILLAGE firemen already have been certified as paramedics, and another three expect their certification shortly. Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said he will be able to start the paramedic program with six certified firemen while other members of the department take their training.

Koeppen said, however, any long range program will require more trained paramedics. "It's going to take more when you consider sick days and holidays coming up," he said.

The fire chief said he would eventually like to see the paramedic program become separate from the fire-fighting part of his department. "I'm still a firm believer they should be a division of the fire service," he said.

UNDER THE CURRENT system, the firemen receive fire and emergency medical training and provide a dual service to the community. Koeppen said he thinks both programs will operate more efficiently if they are separated. He said such a division will probably develop once the paramedic program becomes established.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he had ordered the $8,915 of needed telemetry equipment. He said the order was placed in December, with the provision that it could be canceled if the village board did not waive competitive bidding. Delivery is scheduled for March.

WHEN THE PARAMEDIC van arrives, the village will also need additional space at the fire department to house the new vehicle. Plans call for an addition to be built on the rear of the main fire station, at Dundee Road and Milwaukee Avenue.

"We'll be ready for that too when it comes," Passolt said. "That doesn't take much planning."

Koeppen said if the addition is not completed by the time the paramedic van arrives, it will be no problem to move the old ambulance to either the Hintz Road fire station or behind the village hall.

Funding for the paramedic program is coming from several sources. A state matching grant is being sought to help pay for the ambulance and federal revenue sharing funds are being used for part of the project.

Many paramedic programs are already in effect in the Northwest suburbs. Although Wheeling participated in the initial stages of paramedic training, village officials decided not to take part in the program when it began a year ago. The village waited to see the program prove itself, Koeppen said.

Caucus to meet to outline school endorsement plans

Officers of the 1974 School Dist. 21 General Caucus will meet this weekend to begin outlining procedures for interviewing and endorsing candidates in the April 13 school board election.

The meeting Saturday will be the first of caucus officers elected last spring. Chairman Ralph Camp yesterday said the group is seeking delegates to the caucus from all community organizations, PTAs and PTOs.

A screening committee of about five persons with three alternates will be appointed from the general membership of the caucus.

DIST. 21 School Board candidates seeking the support of the caucus will be required to appear before the committee. Following the interviews, the committee will offer endorsements.

Camp said the interviews this year will probably be conducted after an officers' meeting tentatively planned for Jan. 29 and before Feb. 27, the first day candidates may file to participate in the election.

Rumors were circulated last spring that the caucus might reorganize and develop new procedures for screening and endorsing candidates in the 1974 election. Camp said, however, he does not anticipate any changes in the operation of the group.

'Unpaid' ambulance stays put; woman dies

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $84 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfeld and Bismar roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department, which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

MAMA MIA, it's time for the fourth annual Spaghetti Bowl, sponsored by St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove. Come watch the Super Bowl game, and fill up on spaghetti, garlic bread, salad, dessert and beverages for just $1.50 (adults) and $1 for children under twelve. The dinner is from 1 to 7 p.m.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the

Roselle Fire Department himself, Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided."

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

Winter delivers new 4-inch blow

Winter came back with a second punch yesterday as four inches of snow fell and weather service spokesmen predicted steady snowfall and light flurries today and Friday. Maybe as much as two more inches will come today.

Suburbanites yesterday encountered slippery roads and local police reported many accidents.

No new leads in murder

Rosemont police have no new leads in the case of the murder of a Rolling Meadows man found bound, gagged and shot in the head Tuesday night. Although police believe they have a suspect in the murder of Rolando Letran, no arrest has been made. Letran, who worked for a Mount Prospect graphics firm, reportedly had $3,700 on him before his death. His body was found in a Rosemont parking lot.

'Tentative' elderly housing site

A "tentative" site for a low-cost housing project for the elderly has been selected in Arlington Heights, and people who own homes on the one-block site have been told by the village they may have to clear out.

The residents of the street of modest homes just north of the central part of town have been told their homes are on a spot "ideal for the program" for elderly housing. The village has invited the owners of the homes to come in for a meeting to talk about compensation and relocation should the site be condemned by the village.

'The Devil' may still be shown

That X-rated film that was never shown in Elk Grove Village may be shown after all. Elk Grove Cinema owner Walter Panceo told the village board Tuesday night that "The Devil in Miss Jones" may eventually reach the screen if his attorneys advise him to test the matter, either in court or in his theater. Panceo made no promises to village officials that he would not show X-rated fare in the future and lamented the fact that he can't make any money showing less salacious films. At one point the theater owner said he might turn the movie house over to the village to see if it could make money and keep it open.

Planner hits housing proposal

The low-income, townhouse housing proposed next to St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights would adversely affect the use and enjoyment of neighboring single-family homes, a city planning consultant testified yesterday. Rolf Campbell said the proposed Lincoln Green development, currently the subject of a U. S. District Court lawsuit, would open the door to multifamily housing over the entire 80 acre Viatorian site. The case continues today. The Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., a nonprofit organization searching for low income housing, hopes to force such housing at the Arlington Heights location, overturning the village board's denial of the project in 1971.

Agreements with NIPC responsible

O'Hare may become a better neighbor

by STEVE FORSYTH

Conflicts — real or imagined — between Chicago and communities surrounding O'Hare Airport may diminish because of agreements with the Northeast Illinois Planning Commission.

William E. Downes, commissioner of the Chicago Department of Aviation, told a NIPC planning committee yesterday that his department would agree to cooperate with communities surrounding the airport to reduce noise and plan for the future.

Downes was present because NIPC was considering federal grant requests by Chicago for master plans for O'Hare and Meigs Field. The agreement was a result of NIPC stipulations that go along with approval of the grant. NIPC routinely reviews federal grant requests before they go to the federal government for action.

ONE OF THE KEY NIPC stipulations was that Downes set up an administrative mechanism to involve affected governments in the airport area in the master planning effort, and to provide the governments and NIPC with an opportunity to review and comment on the master plan.

NIPC Comr. Jack Pahl of Elk Grove Village suggested regular meetings with O'Hare area communities and Chicago, but Downes said his liaison man, James Sashay, could meet "every day" if necessary.

Des Plaines Ald. Alan Abrams (8th) said his city approves of the idea of a cooperative effort. He added, however, "It remains to be seen how detailed and cooperative the aviation department's help will be."

Abrams is also technical committee adviser for the O'Hare chapter of National Organization to Insecure a Sound-controlled Environment (NOISE) and has done extensive study of the noise problems created by jets flying over Des Plaines and other nearby communities.

WHEN CONCERNS about expansion of the airport and increased operations were expressed, Downes said, "I can guarantee there are no plans for taking more land (for O'Hare) and there are no ideas in the Department of Aviation for triple runways. We're definitely committed to three sets of dual runways."

Downes was referring to reported plans, long rumored, that O'Hare is destined for expansion to three runways in each direction, allowing three planes to land simultaneously, instead of the present two at a time.

Despite Abrams' satisfaction with the NIPC proposal, Park Ridge City Mgr. Herman Spahr said he was definitely opposed to NIPC approval of funds for the master plan until some provision was made for sound control.

Spahr said there are presently no standards, federal or otherwise, for jet noise and air pollution, although the Federal Aviation Administration and the Federal Environmental Protection Agency are supposed to come up with some regulations.

THE NIPC STAFF recommended the approval because cooperation would allow noise projection maps to be drawn that would help municipalities plan their zoning for the future. The maps would be made available by Chicago, and municipalities would be expected to zone heavy noise areas for industry or open space.

Included in the NIPC stipulations for approval is a provision that the department of aviation consider, as part of the master planning study, actions to relieve existing or future aircraft noise impact on the airport's environs.

"We think we do most of these things already," Downes told the NIPC committee.

The committee deferred approval of a grant for a master plan for Meigs in lieu of a regional master plan for airports, as specified in the United Regional Planning Program. That regional plan would include airport needs for the entire state, and would also take into consideration the future of Midway Airport in relation to O'Hare.

Low-income housing plan depends on lease program

by KAREN BLECHA

The Regional Housing Coalition apparently will have to rely on a federal leasing program requiring the approval of local officials to fulfill its goal of bringing low- and moderate-income housing to the suburbs.

Harry Gottlieb, RHC director, said he has learned from U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) officials that the leasing program may be the only way to get federally subsidized housing in the suburbs in the near future. Currently there is a moratorium on federal housing funds and most of the old programs are expected to be dropped.

Gottlieb spoke to some 60 civic, religious, business and governmental leaders from 15 Northwest suburbs Tuesday night. The meeting was the first major attempt by the coalition to sell its plan to distribute low and moderate-income housing throughout a six-county area. Similar meetings will be held through the Chicago area.

REGULATIONS ON the leasing program are expected to be released "in the next several weeks," Gottlieb said. Under the program, a community or county housing authority could get federal funds to lease dwelling units from private landlords. Then the authority would sublease them to low-income and possible moderate-income households who would pay 25 per cent of their income for rent.

Before this can be done, however, a village board or city council must pass a resolution permitting it and spelling out the actual number of units that can be leased.

The leasing program has been in effect for years but only Evanston and Naperville actually have units leased in their communities. Officials in Wood Dale, Carol Stream and Glen Ellyn have passed resolutions permitting the housing but no community in the Northwest suburbs has done so.

"This program depends on local initiative in your own local communities," Gottlieb told the community leaders. He said they would have to work to examine the housing needs of the people who already live and work in their towns and then get their officials to pass the resolution.

THE COALITION'S plan, released last October calls for voluntary balanced distribution of low and moderate-income units throughout Cook, DuPage, Kane,

Fear shoulder-held missiles in Europe

Intelligence sources in London said up to nine Soviet-made SAM7 missiles may have been smuggled into Europe for Palestinian guerrillas who were reported planning to shoot down civilian airliners in flight. Troops and police were maintaining strong security measures at airports throughout Europe. The missiles are shoulder-held devices that home in on heat from low-flying aircraft.

Thai students protest at U.S. embassy

Thousands of Thai students demonstrated at the U.S. embassy in Thailand yesterday in a peaceful protest against interference by the Central Intelligence Agency in local affairs. The number of students around the U.S. embassy numbered about 5,000. Earlier the mobs demonstrated against Japanese Premier Kakuei Tanaka.

Communist areas attacked systematically

The South Vietnamese government announced Wednesday its warplanes were systematically bombing Communist-held areas to discourage a new offensive by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese. This was the first open admission of systematic bombing across South Vietnam. In Cambodia, government troops launched a massive ground, air and artillery attack on rebel positions west of Phnom Penh.

Kissinger to Mideast again

The White House announced yesterday President Nixon was dispatching Secretary of State Henry Kissinger to the Middle East to help seek an end to continued Arab-Israeli fighting. In Geneva, meanwhile, Egypt and Israel recessed their military talks for one week to permit high-level negotiations on a political level on separating their troops at the Suez Canal front.

Watergate: change of venue, blank checks

On the Watergate front yesterday: Attorneys for former White House aide Dwight Chapin asked U.S. District Court in Washington for a change of venue for his April trial because of "massive pretrial publicity." Chapin was indicted on the basis of his testimony about relations with Donald Segretti. . . . An agent of reclusive billionaire Howard Hughes gave the Nixon re-election committee signed blank checks, according to testimony yesterday. Sally Harmony, secretary to G. IRS checking big corporations Internal Revenue Service agents are checking the books of 254 of the nation's biggest corporations for possible violations of government wage-price control rules, it was announced yesterday. Cost of Living Council officials said the check was just one of several new enforcement actions being taken to ensure compliance.

Thousands of mentally ill, aged and physically handicapped persons across the country have not received monthly assistance checks owed them since a new federal program went into effect Jan. 1. The problem resulted from transfer of 3 million persons from local welfare rolls to the Social Security Administration's jurisdiction. The program was reported to be running smoothly in Chicago.

Dollar loses on world money market

The U.S. dollar lost heavily on world money markets Wednesday, and gold, which usually enjoys the confidence of speculators at times of monetary uncertainty, was also down. Stock prices plummeted on the New York Stock Exchange. The Dow Jones industrial average was off 28.99 points at 834.79. The decline was the seventh largest in a single session since a 28.67-point drop last Nov. 18. Stocks falling in price outnumbered those gaining by a margin of almost 6-to-1. The price of an average common share fell 97 cents. Various factors contributed to the selling, analysts said, including the decision of the world's major oil exporting nations to freeze petroleum prices.

Walker's 'State of State' message

Energy plan receives top billing

by BOB LAHEY

Herald Political Editor

Gov. Daniel Walker yesterday reasserted a commitment to environmental protection while proposing a crash program to aid the use of Illinois coal which probably will give little satisfaction to legislators from the coal regions of Southern Illinois.

In his second annual "State of the State" message to the General Assembly, Walker asked new bonding authority of $100 million for research to solve the problem of high sulfur emissions characteristic of Illinois coal.

Many Downstate legislators had hoped he would recede from his previous support of state Environmental Protection Agency standards which will make the vast coal reserves in Illinois unusable within the state after May 30, 1975.

In his address to the legislature, Walker acknowledged that Illinois has coal reserves which could last for two centuries, which are "not being tapped" because of "our desire for clean air."

The governor proposed an "Illinois Energy Development and Conservation Act," providing $100 million in bonds for these purposes:

—Research to clean up Illinois coal for burning.

—Acquisition of property to help Illinois secure a $1 billion coal research center planned by the federal government.

—Review of construction projects on state contracts to insure efficient use of energy.

Walker also asked that a new rate structure be considered for public utilities as an inducement for the utilities to install expensive pollution control devices which would enable them to burn Illinois coal.

Walker devoted most of his address to the legislature to energy questions, while indicating that he will deliver proposals for tax relief in his budget message on March 6.

While Downstate legislators are apt to favor Walker's proposals for coal research, they found little comfort in the aid for coal companies, already hard-hit by the EPA standards. Illinois has the sixth largest coal reserves in the nation, but production has been curtailed by the impending ban on use of its coal.

Rep. Ben Blades, R-Fairfield, told the Herald before Walker's address that his "only hope" for the governor's message was a plan to allow coal producers to expand their operations.

Blades maintains that coal companies need two to three years to plan extraction operations and market new supplies of coal and said many of these plans have been shelved because of the approaching ban, little more than a year away.

Blades succeeded in passing legislation last year which would have extended the deadline for banning Illinois coal. Walker vetoed the bill.

Walker also asked for legislation reducing the state speed limit to 55 m.p.h. The legislature is expected to act on that request in a one day session on Jan. 29.

Nixon calls for oil summit

From Herald news services

President Nixon Wednesday invited six major European countries, Canada and Japan to attend a foreign ministers meeting of oil-consuming nations in Washington Feb. 11 to seek joint solutions to oil supply and price problems.

The White House said Nixon also sent messages to 13 oil-producing nations in the Middle East, Africa, Latin America and Asia inviting them to join the discussions at a later date.

The U.S. initiative for an international conference on the oil crisis was first proposed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger in a London speech last month. Kissinger said last week Nixon would take the lead in summoning about 20 manor non-Communist industrial nations and oil-producing states to discuss ways to solve the crisis and avert a worldwide economic depression.

Invited to the initial Feb. 11 meeting were Britain, France, Italy, the Netherlands and Norway, plus Canada and Japan.

France, in a move that threatened to undermine the U.S. goal of a unified oil strategy by leading oil-consuming nations, confirmed it had signed a three-year contract with Saudi Arabia for delivery of 27 million tons of crude oil. For its part, France was reported to have promised as part of the deal to provide the Saudis with industrial machinery, technical assistance and arms, including

Invited to attend a later meeting with their oil customers were Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Ecuador, Gabon, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Libya, Nigeria, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela.

In other developments:

• Ministers of the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed in Geneva to freeze the price of crude oil at current levels until April 1.

The OPEC countries also discussed a 6 per cent cut in petroleum prices to reflect the recent rise in the value of the dollar on world money markets, but no decision has been announced.

• Federal energy director William E. Simon said he would order refineries to increase gasoline production for next summer's driving season if they produce adequate supplies of heating oil for the winter. Last month Simon ordered refineries to reduce gasoline production 5 per cent below the 1972 level to encourage greater heating oil output.

• Simon said in a CBS radio interview the Central Intelligence Agency was providing his office with information about worldwide oil shipments.

• An unpublished study by the Federal Energy Office estimated the U.S. oil shortage could range between 10 and 18 per cent of demand by next April, depending on the success of domestic conservation measures and the amount of supplies leaking through the Arab oil embargo.

• Dr. Clovis Maksoud, an emissary of the Arab League touring the United States to counter anti-Arab sentiment, said in Washington the oil embargo was only a temporary measure intended to underscore "credibility about our pursuits" in the Middle East.

• Data gathered by United Press International indicated that Exxon Corp. stands to gain more than $6.3 million in unexpected profits because of Simon's order last week for diversion of 310,000 barrels of Florida-bound Venezuelan oil to the Boston Edison Co., where it will be sold for $27.50 per barrel rather than the Florida contract price of a little more than $7.

• Jane Byrne, chief of the Chicago department of consumer sales, said laboratory tests have shown that gasoline adulterated with water, methane and diesel fuel was being sold in Chicago, and possibly elsewhere in the country.

Auto layoffs near 61,000

From Herald news services

Ford Motor Co. said Wednesday 2,550 workers will lose their jobs at two big car plants in February, raising to nearly 61,000 the total number of auto workers idled by the energy crisis.

In addition to 60,860 workers permanently cut from the "Big Four" work force, another 200,000 have been or will be involved in short layoffs.

Industry sources said the layoffs would spread if big car sales continue to slump in the face of possible gasoline shortages.

Chrysler Corp. said Wednesday an additional 1,300 employees, scattered through all of the company's operations, had been permanently furloughed since Dec. 21. That brings permanent layoffs at Chrysler to about 12,000, with 5,700 in the Detroit area.

Donald Bastian, Ford vice president-manufacturing, said 7,600 workers will be idled for one and two-week periods later this month at the St. Louis and Wixom, Mich. assembly plants.

In addition, the 2,550 workers will be cut from the payroll at the two plants Feb. 4 as production is cut back.

The St. Louis plant, which builds full-size Mercurys, will have two weeks of down time — one week beginning Monday and a second week beginning Jan. 28, idling 2,700 employees. When the plant resumes production Feb. 4, one shift will be eliminated and 1,300 of 2,700 hourly employees and 135 salaries workers will lose their jobs.

At Wixom, where Thunderbirds, Lincoln Continentals and Continental Mark IVs are built, the plant will be shut for one week beginning Jan. 28, idling 4,300 workers. When the plant resumes building cars, production will be cut from 40 cars an hour to 30 and 1,050 of 4,300 hourly workers and 65 salaried employees will be permanently laid off.

The Ford layoffs will bring the company's total to 3,350 General Motors, hit hardest by the big car sales slump, has permanently idled 38,000 workers, Chrysler has cut 12,000 and American Motors has trimmed 200 workers from its production force.

$1-a-loaf bread warning brings spirited denials

From Herald news services

And now, the dollar loaf of bread?

That was the warning to beleaguered American consumers Wednesday from Bill O. Mead, chairman of the American Bakers Association — a prediction that brought quick and hot denials from the government and a spokesman for the wheat growers.

Mead said there will be a wheat shortage because the country is exporting too much, and that unless the administration moves to curb exports temporarily U.S. wheat reserves will be totally depleted by June 30.

"If restrictions are not imposed immediately," Mead said, "a bread shortage seems likely and many housewives could be paying $1 per loaf by late spring."

Mead said current wheat exports of 20 million bushels a week should be cut in half. Other baking industry spokesmen said Mead's estimate of $1 a loaf was based on a prediction that wheat could increase to $12 a bushel by spring, from the current level of $5.80. That, they said, would add 14 cents to the price of making a loaf and 50 cents — or about double the current rate — to the retail price.

One government official accused Mead of using "scare tactics" in a move to force up the price of bread, and Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carroll Brumthaver hastily called a news conference to debunk Mead's figures.

He said to justify a $1 loaf of bread, the cost of wheat would have to jump to $40 a bushel, and that U.S. wheat reserves will fall no lower than 210 million bushels by June 30, when harvest will begin on an estimated record wheat crop of 2 billion bushels.

Brumthaver said the government sees no need for mandatory export controls, and saw no reason for either the price of wheat or bread to go up appreciably in the spring.

The government has, however, quietly been asking wheat exporters to voluntarily slow down overseas shipments during the next six months to help protect the supply.

Another Agriculture Department spokesman — chief economist Don Paarlberg — described Mead's comments as "ridiculous," and said even if such a shortage or such prices developed, "wheat would flow in from Canada and put a damper on it."

A spokesman for the National Association of Wheat Growers — Jerry Rees — also accused Mead of using scare tactics, and accused the bakers of "chasing prices up themselves with this talk of a shortage."

Ballot loyalty oaths struck down

From Herald news services

The U. S. Supreme Court Wednesday struck down as unconstitutional a 1945 Indiana law requiring a loyalty oath from parties, including the Communist Party, in order to gain a place on the state ballot.

The oath was necessary for a political party to be recognized or have the names of its candidates printed on the ballot.

The high court ruling — stemming from protests by the Communist Party which had sought to get on the 1972 electoral list — said that the oath violates the constitutional guarantees of free speech and free press.

Several other states, including Illinois, have similar laws, according to a lawyer involved in the Indiana case. Numerous local political units also have similar regulations, he said.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who wrote the opinion, said constitutional principles "do not permit a state to forbid or proscribe advocacy of the use of force or of law violation except where such advocacy is directed to inciting or producing imminent lawless action and is likely to incite or produce such action."

He said that for purposes of determining whether to grant a place on the ballot, a group advocating violent overthrow as an abstract doctrine need not be regarded as necessarily advocating unlawful action.

In other decisions Wednesday, the court:

• Ruled that a group of dissatisfied Georgia passengers had no right to sue under the 1970 Amtrak Act to prevent discontinuance of train service.

• Upheld, 6 to 3, a federal narcotics law barring addicts with two prior felony convictions from further rehabilitative treatment rather than imprisonment.

People

• It was a happy 61st birthday for President Nixon at San Clemente Wednesday, as the first family's Irish Setter King Timahoe got the first bite of cake, the president accidentally smeared frosting on his sports coat, 25 staff members sang and gave him 61 red roses, and he in turn gave them the next few days off. Among non-family members present was Nixon's close friend from Florida, Charles "Bebe" Rebozo.

• He gave no new answers to hard questions, but Vice President Gerald Ford gave some intimate glimpses into himself and his family life in an interview with ABC late-night host Dick Cavett to be televised tonight. He did confuse rock singer Mick Jagger with motorcycle rider Evel Knievel, but his children said they rated him "average, verging on hip."

• Though his condition is listed as satisfactory at a Burlingame, Calif. hospital, concern has grown over the health of legendary entertainer Bing Crosby. Hospitalized New Year's Eve with what was believed to be pleurisy, Crosby, 69, is suffering from pneumonia and has developed an abscess on the lung.

Tests are being taken to tell, among other things, whether a tumor has formed. . . . Zeppo Marx, 73, who with Groucho is the last of the surviving Marx brothers, is near full recovery in a Houston hospital after Dec. 28 surgery for a weakened abdominal blood vessel.

• A 49-year old state senator from the Bronx — Joseph Galiber — was named by New York City's first black deputy mayor, and he promptly promised to work "to bring this city back together."

• Dearborn, Mich., mayor Orville Hubbard — beginning his 33rd year in the job — fulfilled a campaign promise of last fall by losing 10 pounds. Now weighing in at 273, he's shooting for 75 less by Dec. 31, and has warned heads of 19 city departments that they better shed too or face suspension.

• Postscript to the story of Pam Anbrecht, 18, of Iowa City, denied a newspaper's first-baby-of-the-year prize because her son was illegitimate: she's still fighting for her award, but in three other Iowa cities, unwed mothers also checked in with the first babies of the year and will get their prizes. Times have changed, haven't they?

Dave (wheeze) did it!

DAVE HANNEMAN, left, was still eating after many of his competitors had given up in the taco-eating contest held yesterday at Harper College. Hanneman, who represented the second year nurse's club in the contest tied with Jim Fink, representative of the practical nurses club in the nighttime contest. The two winners ate 14 tacos apiece in a half hour. No one at Harper was sure whether that is a record, but one official of the contest admitted that the winners "weren't feeling real well" at the end of the contest. Twenty students from the college clubs participated in the contest.

Will, McHenry and Lake counties. The coalition was formed two years ago by the Leadership Council for Metropolitan Open Communities and the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission to find an alternative to court-ordered distribution of such housing.

According to the plan, the Northwest suburbs will need 18,300 additional low and moderate-income units in the next 10 years; the entire area will need about 230,000. The first-year goal for the Northwest suburbs is 800 units; for the whole area, 10,000 units.

Speaking in favor of the plan, Bernard Malm, chairman of the board of De Soto, Inc. of Des Plaines, emphasized that there are workers in the suburbs who cannot afford the housing here.

"We have many people in training who would qualify for moderate-income housing. We have lost people because of the time and distance it takes for them to get to work," he said.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Mayor Virginia Hayter told the community leaders they would have to have more than "do good" reasons for the plan if they want other people in their towns to support it.

"You cannot just go in with the attitude that you know what's right," she said. "You have to divorce yourself from the emotionality of it."

Mrs. Hayter said she would base her decision on whether to back the plan on the feedback she gets from her constituents.

Several men, not invited to the meeting, said they didn't think the plan should be called voluntary because subsidies involve taxes and "taxes are never voluntary."

"We all believe that if you work you eat and you have to stand on your own two feet," Mrs. Hayter said. "What we're trying to do here is to have partially subsidized housing for people who work instead of waiting for housing where the people are totally subsidized."

Yesterday the Herald incorrectly identified one of the gasoline stations in our survey as Northwest Standard at Arlington Heights and Rand roads. The station at that intersection is Northside Standard.

MT. PROSPECT

13-story apartment-office complex

Suburban 'skyscraper' in the works

Plans are on the drawing board for an apartment-office building near the Randhurst shopping center which, at 13 stories, would be one of the tallest structures in the Northwest suburbs.

The building, tentatively called Prospect Tower, would consist of a two-story base for professional offices and an 11-story tower containing 82 luxury apartments.

The 3½-acre site on Kensington-Fourth Road east of Elmhurst Road lies just outside the Mount Prospect village limits in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Village officials admit they are virtually powerless in blocking construction of the high-rise. The village has turned down plans by J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp. Mount Prospect, for a six-story building on the site in 1967, contending it would be incompatible with surrounding residential neighborhoods.

Brickman then turned to the Cook County Board, where he was granted zoning for commercial and multi-family development.

HE LATER DECIDED to build the building taller than originally planned, Brickman says, because land values have gone up so much he needs a larger building to justify the cost of the land.

Brickman has expressed a willingness to annex his property to Mount Prospect, but is firm in not wanting to compromise the height of the building.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert has said he also would like the building in the village, in order to exert control over it and to reap the tax benefits.

Because the property is already zoned for multi-family use by the county, Brickman holds the cards in any negotiating session with village officials, as opposed to most developers who are forced to compromise height and density plans in order to get a zoning change.

Brickman said he would talk to the village until around the end of next month. If no annexation agreement has been reached by then, he said, he would apply for a county building permit for a spring groundbreaking.

AN ARCHITECT'S RENDERING of the 13-story apartment office building planned for Kensington Road, just east of the Randhurst shopping center. The developer is hoping to break ground this spring.

Grand-Spaulling Dodge agency

New car agency to begin?

Grand-Spaulling Dodge is hoping its auto franchise planned for Buffalo Grove will be under construction by spring and in operation by next September.

Len Krause, president of Grand-Spaulling, yesterday said plans are being prepared for the dealership and will be presented to the plan commission and village board in the near future. "We're hoping by the time the weather breaks we can begin construction and have work finished by the time the 1975 cars come out," he said.

The franchise will be on an eight-acre site at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads. The concept of a dealership at that location was approved in 1971. At that time the village gave Chrysler Corp. three years to develop the property. The specific plan must now be approved by the village before construction can begin.

Krause said his company is attempting to time the opening of the new franchise to the completion of Dundee Road Opening. The dealership before road construction is completed would hurt business, he said.

WORK ON DUNDEE Road is not at the half-way mark, but state officials said construction should be finished by next fall. Work on the road has been suspended for the winter.

Krause estimated the new dealership will do about $17 million in business annually, thus generating about $170,000 in sales tax revenue for the village each year. The franchise, he said, probably will do about the same volume of business as Grand-Spaulling's Chicago dealership.

Grand-Spaulling plans to continue operating its present dealership at 3300 W. Grand Ave., after the Buffalo Grove franchise is opened.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson has said he doubts if the annual sales tax revenue from the franchise will be $170,000 at least initially. He estimates the dealership will generate closer to $30,000 to $40,000 a year.

PART OF THE reason the sales tax revenue will be lower, Larson said, is because Grand-Spaulling sells many cars to municipalities and other government agencies which are exempt from sales tax. In addition to selling cars to the Buffalo Grove Police Department, Grand-Spaulling is also a major supplier to the Chicago and state police.

Grand-Spaulling also plans to open an auto leasing division at its Buffalo Grove location. The village will receive additional tax revenue through the sale of vehicle stickers that will be put on the autos to be leased.

The dealership will consist of one building, with a showroom, service facilities and a parts and accessory store. The franchise will sell autos and small trucks.

With the new franchise, Krause said, Grand-Spaulling, now the largest Dodge dealer in the Midwest, and the fourth largest in the United States, could become the largest anywhere.

State to pay for school bonds?

The Dist. 21 school board tonight will consider applying for state reimbursement on recent bond issues that could amount to about $250,000 and possibly reduce the 1975 tax bills of local residents.

The meeting is set for 8:15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

A state law recently enacted allows the district to apply for partial reimbursement for the cost of retiring bonds issued between 1969 and 1972 for the construction of new schools.

Dist. 21 Assistant Supt. John Barger said yesterday an application for funds has been drawn up and, if approved by the school board tonight, will be sent to the Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB).

BARGER SAID THE amount of reimbursement for recent bond issues that the district may receive will be determined by the ICDB, based on the number of similar applications by other school districts and the amount of money available. He estimated that Dist. 21 could get as much as $250,000, which would reduce the 1975 tax levy for the district's bond and interest fund by that amount.

Barger stressed that because property in the district could be assessed at a higher rate next year, the reduction in the bond and interest fund tax levy may not necessarily reduce the 1975 tax bills of local residents.

The assistant superintendent said the ICDB will probably announce its allocations some time in March.

Other business on the agenda of tonight's meeting includes:

- Special curriculum report on the Kernel Stevenson Popcorn Factory, a vocational education program recently conducted at Stevenson School in Wheeling.
- Presentation of a plaque to the school board for the district's contributions to the United Fund campaign.

Builders' checklist
topic of planners

A checklist procedure for making sure developers install promised improvements will be discussed tonight by the Wheeling Plan Commission.

The commission has been working on the checklist for the past several months. Members decided such a procedure would allow the commission to checkup on promises made by developers when their plans are approved.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Don't cry... laugh!

In a year of crises, crunches, Watergate and general bad news, funnymen provide a healthy 'escape'

by BARRY SIGALE

Two guys meet on an elevator. They stop to talk. One says to the other:

"I just heard on the radio that they found all the Watergate tapes."

"Oh, yeah?"

"Yeah. But now, Judge Sirica is missing."

Funny? Of course. To some it will get a big laugh. To others, it will evoke a chuckle. Still others will merely smile, offended at but another Nixon-type joke.

According to the experts, though, we're going to need a lot of funny stuff to get us through the energy crises, the money crunch, the Watergate fiasco, the Nixon years and the summer television reruns.

Comedy has been described as an escape, a therapeutic answer to society's ills, a pleasant experience by which people can forget their troubles and get happy. For the moment, at least.

THE NEW YEAR for comedy will not be unlike the past. Topical jokes will be culled from the dozens of fast-breaking news events reported by a highly competitive media.

Some of the funniest men in comedy, living right here in the Northwest suburbs, have come up with their favorite timely jokes that are intended to make people laugh. They are about the times, fit into their routines as they think of them and discarded as soon as they are out-of-date.

America's "funniest impressionist (who admits he's far from being the "best" imitator)," Lenny Colyer, a Park Ridge resident, offers these:

"I went to the store the other day to get change for a quarter and the guy behind the counter said, 'that'll be 35 cents.'"

"I went to the gas station this morning to put a down payment on a gallon of gasoline."

"Chicago is an opportune place. I call it, The land of the rising sons."

RUSTY RYAN, a standup comic from Mount Prospect, has some topical witticisms:

"Restaurants now are the only place you can get gas on Sunday."

"Why pick on Nixon. He hasn't done nothin'."

"A lot of people compare Nixon to Hitler. That's ridiculous. Hitler had a mustache."

'Henry Kissinger is back in Washington... trying to settle the fighting there.'

— Rusty Ryan

* * *

— Rusty Ryan

RUSTY RYAN

And how about these laughs from C. Dink Freeman of Arlington Heights?

"Things are going so bad that soon the Arabs will be driving around in Cadillacs. And we'll be riding camels."

"I was driving down the street and who do you think was hitchhiking? Nixon!"

According to Freeman, who basically is an ethnic humorist, comedians become a sounding board, the devil's advocate when things get bad and times are trying. The worse things get, he said, the better it is for comedians, though they don't relish the idea that life may be becoming increasingly more unbearable. The bad times gives them more material to work with.

"Britons know how to react to problems," said Freeman, comparing the English with Americans. "I just read in the newspaper about people there lining up for gasoline. Some people were playing chess. A guy was eating lunch. A couple was making out. The English have a way of dealing with their problems," Freeman added.

"I RELATE THE comedian to that of the doctor, healer and psychiatrist," said Ryan, who is writing a book on comedy, "The Thin Line," as in the thin line between comedy and tragedy.

"He is three people all in one," he said. "He must understand the audience's problems. A doctor can eliminate pain but we make life worth living. Tragedy and happiness must be balanced."

Colyer refers to comedy as "the truth rearranged." He feels people are less sensitive today than ever before and that jokes which were tossed out ten years ago are being told today. "We used to say, 'when in doubt, leave it out.' Now we say, 'when in doubt, leave it in,'" he said.

The three (with a combined total of about 100 years of comedy experience) agree that laughter is what people need most. But, with the energy shortage, the high cost of living and other factors there is a definite possibility that fewer persons will be able to afford a night on the town. And that means less business, especially for entertainers.

WHAT HOLDS THE future together for them is that they each perform primarily on the convention circuit (mainly as after-dinner speakers) with club dates and state fairs mixed in. So far, the three have succeeded very well money-wise and have been able to travel and keep a family-oriented life going at the same time, something, they feel, a lot of big-name stars don't have.

Speaking of big-name stars, Colyer tells the story of the Hollywood idol who had his bedroom decorated with everything — the carpeting, walls, ceiling, curtains, bedspread, sheets and pillowcases — in his favorite color, yellow.

One day he came down with yellow jaundice and his wife asked their family doctor to come over quickly and see what he could do.

The doctor arrived 15 minutes later, went into the idol's bedroom and came out an hour later looking very puzzled.

"Oh, doctor, I've been so worried," said the wife. "Do you think you can cure him?"

"Cure him?" exclaimed the doctor. "I can't even find him!"

250 donors hoped for Community blood drive this weekend

The Wheeling Jaycees are asking residents to prove that "Wheeling has heart" by donating blood to the Wheeling Community Blood Plan this weekend.

The first drawing of the year will be from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday at the Wheeling High School library, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

Jim Bronson, chairman of the program, said about 150 persons have already pledged to donate blood this weekend. He said, however, he would like to see about 250 people participate in the weekend drawing.

"We do hope we're going to get some people just off the street," Bronson said. "They don't need a donation card. Anybody who wants to donate, just show up at the high school."

TO MAKE IT easier for residents to give blood, the Jaycees are providing drivers to pick up people who cannot get to the high school. People interested in transportation should call 537-2313. In addition, the Jaycees are operating a baby-sitting service at the high school for people bringing their children with them.

The plan is designed to provide for all Wheeling's blood needs by collecting 700 pints of blood, representing four per cent of the village population. This is the amount nationally estimated to meet all blood replacement needs.

To help meet this quota, the Jaycees have contacted church groups and industry to participate in the local blood plan. Bronson said the Beverly Blood Center, Inc. of Chicago will cover the needs of these groups and their families if 20 per cent of them donate blood.

Participation by these groups is not scheduled to begin until the April blood drawing. Bronson said there has been good feedback from some of the church groups. "It looks like it is going to work out pretty decently," he said.

Bronson said he is counting on increased community awareness to bolster this year's blood program. Last year the plan fell about 270 pints short of the 700 pint goal, but was continued because enough blood had been collected to cover the needs of the community.

"Last year was a success in that we did get enough to cover our needs," he said. "I think that because it is here now and because it is in its second year, people are aware of it more, and I think they realize it's going to do something for them," Bronson said.

TO INCREASE public awareness, Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon has proclaimed January Wheeling Community Blood Plan month. In the proclamation, Scanlon urged residents to participate in the blood program by giving blood or performing other volunteer functions.

Persons between 18 and 66 are eligible to donate to the program. Women weighing under 100 pounds and men weighing under 120 pounds are not eligible. Persons on drugs or medication, and those who have ever had hepatitis or malaria also may not donate.

Wheeling residents in need of blood should call the Wheeling Police Department at 537-2313. The police will ask only for the person's name, address and phone number and will forward this information to the Jaycees.

Eight eligible for fireman tests

Eight men have been named to a tentative eligibility list for the Wheeling Fire Department. Two men are to be hired as firemen.

Those on the eligibility list must pass physical examinations before they will be hired. The eight are James Clarke, Emil Jensen, William Funkey IV, Charles Colmar, Edward Prendergast, Michael Huth, Jack Schuett and John Reese.

The Wheeling Fire and Police Commission, which drew up the eligibility list, also is setting up a lieutenant's examination. Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen is to select some 125 questions for the test. Leadership will be stressed on the test, said Vern Nystrom, chairman of the commission.

In the matter of police department applications, Nystrom said the commission has to locate a psychologist first to test the men. Twenty-five men have applied for three positions.

Incorporation group plans opposition to RTA

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. this week voted unanimously to oppose the proposed Regional Transit Authority (RTA) for the Chicago area.

Members of the unincorporated Prospect Heights homeowners group said they will urge all residents of Prospect Heights to vote against the RTA in the March 19 referendum. Although approved by the State Legislature and Gov. Daniel Walker, the RTA must be approved by residents before being established.

Members of the PHIA had numerous objections to the proposed RTA, including four major ones. "The prime reason is our concern that a non-elective body will be allowed to levy taxes," said Jack Gilligan, PHIA president.

Gilligan said a second reason was that it would be "scary" to have four of the eight RTA board members appointed by Chicago.

The other two reasons Gilligan gave were that the RTA proposal gives preference to the existing railroads rather than setting up local bus systems and that the RTA is being given some powers that will be unique among governmental bodies. These powers, he said, include broad condemnation abilities and the right to go on private property without notification to make tests.

The vote was taken after Thomas Flynn, of the Cook County Planning Office, spoke to the group in defense of the RTA. Last month State Rep. Virginia McDonald, R-Arlington Heights, spoke against the RTA at a PHIA meeting.

Albert H. Schar Sr.

Visitation for Albert H. Schar Sr., 75, of Florida, formerly of Chicago, is today from 5 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Mr. Schar, who died Tuesday in Clearwater, Fla., was a retired policeman for the Chicago Park District. He was born in Chicago, and was a past commander of American Legion Post, No. 122; member of Masonic Lodge, No. 1039, A.F. & A.M., and a veteran of World War I. He was also a past commander of General George Bell VFW Post.

Funeral services for Mr. Schar will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the chapel of the funeral home. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are his widow, Mary, nee Nedril; two sons, Albert Jr. and daughter-in-law, June of Lake Zurich and Richard and daughter-in-law, Rosemary Schar of Rolling Meadows; 14 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; a brother, Harold, and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Lane, both of Chicago. He was preceded in death by two brothers, Clarence and Fred.

Benjamin C. Stade

Benjamin C. Stade, 69, a retired farmer, of Arlington Heights, died yesterday morning in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. He was born in Mount Prospect, Sept. 11, 1904.

Visitation is today and tomorrow from 3 to 10 p.m. in Haire Funeral Home, Northwest Highway and Vail Avenue, Arlington Heights.

The body will lie in state Saturday in St. Peter Lutheran Church, 111 W. Olive St., Arlington Heights, from noon until time of funeral services at 1:30 p.m. The Rev. Robert O. Bartz will be officiating. Entombment will be in Memory Gardens Mausoleum, Arlington Heights.

Preceded in death by his wife, Margaret, nee Wagner, on Sept. 17, 1973, survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Margaret (David) Wenzel of Arlington Heights and Mrs. Luetia (John) Drury of Park Ridge; three granddaughters, Natalie, Renee and Michelle Drury; and two brothers, William of Mundelein and Norman of Arlington Heights. He was also preceded in death by a sister, Mrs. Selma Schoenbeck, and two brothers, Milton and Henry.

Jeanette Niemuth

Mrs. Jeanette Niemuth, 60, nee Brandt, of Rosemont, a bookkeeper for Gunderson Construction Co. in Des Plaines, with five years of service, died Tuesday in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. She was born Nov. 19, 1913, in Wisconsin.

Visitation is today from 4 to 9:30 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow in the chapel of the funeral home. Officiating will be the Rev. Ted R. Lepper. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are two sons, Brandt I. of Rosemont and Barton J. Niemuth of State College, Pa.; a daughter, Mrs. Caralee L. Yearick of Pennsylvania; three grandchildren; a sister Mrs. Marsha Peterson of St. Paul, Minn., and a brother, Gordon Grant of Minnesota.

Cecil C. Jacobsen

Cecil C. (Jake the Horsehoe) Jacobsen, 31, of Wheeling, died Tuesday in Evanston Hospital, Evanston, after a long illness.

Employed as a carpenter, Mr. Jacobsen was born in Pride, La., Dec. 25, 1942. He was a member of the Carpenters Union, Local No. 839, and a Vietnam veteran, serving in the U. S. Air Force.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9 p.m. in Koltsak of Wheeling Funeral Home, 189 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, where funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow.

Officiating will be the Rev. John Urry of Congregational Church of Deerfield. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are his widow, Beverly, nee Summers; three children, Roger, Theresa and Anna, all at home; parents, Ray and Ruby Jacobsen of Independence, La.; three brothers, Wayne, Burl and Raymond, all of Independence, La., and four sisters, Mrs. Sally (Dale) Dillahunty and Mrs. Dorothy (Lewis) Crawley, both of Angleton, Tex., and Mrs. Joyce (James) Wright of Gonzales, La., and Mrs. Rubae (John) Kramer of Clute, Tex., and parents-in-law, William and Lila Summers of Deerfield.

Siragusa calls Elgin hospital deaths 'strange,' vows to continue probe

An inquiry into the deaths of five patients at Elgin State Hospital has resulted in a vow by the executive director of the investigating agency to continue looking into the practices at the hospital which has recorded more than 400 deaths there in the past 32 months.

Charles Siragusa, head of the Illinois Legislative Investigative Commission, said yesterday that two days of testimony into accusations that the hospital was guilty of neglect in the five deaths has partially exonerated the hospital. But testimony also revealed that 417 patients died at the mental institution since Jan. 1, 1971, Siragusa said.

Siragusa said it appears "strange" that so many deaths occurred at the hospital and that he would investigate the matter to determine if the hospital should be censured further.

"IT SEEMS kind of strange," said Siragusa of the 417 deaths, which hospital officials said were mostly caused by either heart trouble or pneumonia. "We're going to find out if this is more than just a coincidence."

He said the 1,300-patient hospital, the second largest mental institution in Illinois, would be compared with other mental hospitals to decide whether the 417 deaths was an unusual number.

Siragusa was careful to point out that he is not prejudging the Elgin hospital and that he is not charging its staff with neglect in these cases, but that a full investigation would be made anyway.

"We are not recommending the hospital be closed or anything like that," he added. He said hospital employees have a good attitude and have good intentions toward treating patients.

THE TWO DAYS of testimony included the inquiry into the death of a former Des Plaines resident, James Kowaczek. The 20-year-old man died because of what an ILIC investigator called an "indiscriminate use of drugs, excessive restraint" and inattention of the Elgin staff.

Hospital officials told the ILIC that Kowaczek was brought to the hospital after police picked him up on a charge of indecent exposure. He was administered drugs, the officials said, but died of an acute bronchial condition about 24 hours after being admitted.

Siragusa said the death was due to a combination of the bronchial condition and blood asphyxiation. He said the man chewed on his tongue during the night he was at the hospital and swallowed a large amount of blood.

After the hearing, Siragusa said there was no evidence of "willful criminal neglect" in the five deaths. "But I would say there is evidence of some neglect."

HOSPITAL Supt. Robert Mackie said he was "pleased" that the ILIC came to the same conclusion hospital officials had come to a long time ago, that they were innocent of the major allegations.

Mackie said he "wished he (Siragusa) would compare" the 32-month death figures at the hospital with those of other state mental institutions because the investigator would determine the 417 death total average. He added that most of the deaths were of long-term patients and most of them were elderly.

Asked what changes officials would make in response to the investigation, Mackie said, "We're always trying to improve conditions."

Skyscrapers get blame as wasters of energy

by STEVEN REED

DALLAS — The government's energy scrutinizers would do better, Herman Blum believes, to crack down on the building industry and its inefficient use of fuels in skyscrapers than worry about every commuter's gasoline consumption. Blum, a millionaire engineer, has designed artificial environments in high rise complexes and trade centers from Detroit to New Orleans and from Rochester to Orlando. He contends specialists in his field have cut energy corners at the request of developers looking toward profits.

"As an impartial engineer, it is obvious to me that by reducing the amount of utility generated and by controlling its use in the buildings, we'd have a far better economy," Blum said.

"We do so many things wrong by acting too hastily," Blum said. Naturally the utility companies are in business to sell utilities, and the auto manufacturers feel the same way about the automobile.

"BUT IF WE allocated fuel on a square foot basis in office structures and penalized for excessive use, then we'd get control. That would make a big difference, not like 10 gallons of gas or a few gallons of jet fuel."

Blum's innovations include recycling human warmth and complete control by computers of weather in office towers. He estimated that computer controls could save in fuel and maintenance costs the equivalent of 6 cents a square foot a year.

ONE BIG FACTOR in the waste of office building fuels has been the pressure of designers to construct more attractive buildings while keeping operational costs down. Other considerations are the persuasive pressure sales techniques of utility company representatives and developers trying to exceed one another structurally.

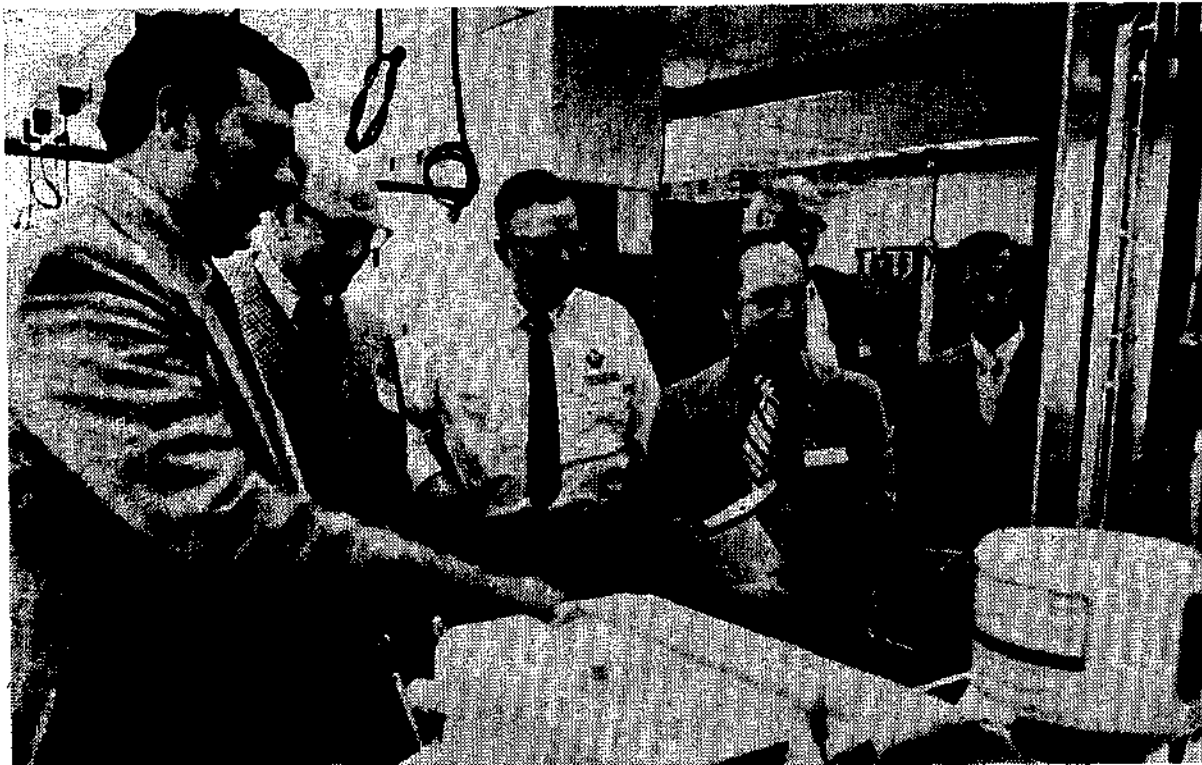

"If you look at the amount utility capacity has been increased since the mid '40s to the mid '70s it's not related to the additional number of square feet in buildings," Blum says. "You'll find each new building is using more fuel than the previous building rather than coming to an efficient utilization."

Savings, loan firms' assets rise in 1973

At year-end 1973 total assets of the nation's savings and loan business moved up to an estimated $275 billion, up 12.9 per cent from the $243.6 billion chalked up a year ago. The United States League of Savings Associations reported the figures.

Total savings deposits of the business reached an estimated $228.3 billion, a 10.1 per cent increase over the 1972 year-end total of $207.3 billion. The U.S. League, major trade organization for the savings and loan business, said that 1973 was the third best year in the history of the business despite the outflow of savings funds in the July-October period and the general slackening off in the real estate market.

Savings flows during the year amounted to an estimated $21 billion, down 36.2 per cent from the record year of 1972. The league pointed out that $14.9 billion of the gain was posted during the first six months of the year, prior to the credit crunch which began in the third quarter. Savings flows picked up in mid-October and this trend continued for the remainder of the year. A continued upturn in savings inflows is expected to continue at least for the first half of 1974.

On the mortgage lending side of the business, associations had an estimated $232.2 billion in loans outstanding, up 12.5 per cent from the 1972 total. Mortgage lending volume during 1973 came to approximately $49.5 billion, down only 3.7 per cent from the record $51.4 billion volume recorded last year. Some of this large mortgage lending volume was due in part to the outstanding volume of loan commitments at associations in mid-1973, just prior to the credit crunch. Since then mortgage loan commitments have dropped sharply.

File tax return early to get refund quickly

The Internal Revenue Service is getting ready to issue some 60 million tax refunds, including about 2.8 million to northern Illinois taxpayers. The problem is to get taxpayers started early enough to file for these refunds.

"Early enough," says Roger C. Beck, district director of Internal Revenue for northern Illinois, "means January. Taxpayers who file in January can usually expect faster service than those who file later."

The reason for the delay in issuing refunds to later filers, he explains, is that most taxpayers tend to put off doing their tax returns, with the result that work piles up at the service center where they are processed.

"It stands to reason," Beck points out, "that our Kansas City Service Center can process returns and approve refunds much faster when workloads are light — as in January. It would be a good idea for anyone who would like an early refund to start getting his records together now."

EVEN TAXPAYERS who are still waiting for their W-2 forms or perhaps their interest or mortgage statements from their bank ought to start getting their other records together now so that they can file as soon as the documents arrive, Beck advises.

"It's your money," he says. "The law says you're entitled to it now, so why wait? Get your refund as soon as you can."

Urging taxpayers to file in January, Beck refutes the common but erroneous belief that early returns are scrutinized more closely at IRS service centers because there is more time to devote to each individual return. This line of thinking, the director says, leads taxpayers to conclude incorrectly that early returns are more likely to be audited by the IRS than later ones.

"This just isn't so," he says. "No matter when you file your return — Jan. 1, March 11, April 15 — your return undergoes the same processing at our service centers. We hire thousands of temporary employees each filing season and we train them to process all returns the same way."

THE DIRECTOR also explains that, in auditing returns, the IRS now uses what it calls a discriminant function (DIF) program to select returns for examination. Through the use of computers, all individual returns are classified by the same procedure. Mathematical formulas are used to rank returns by error potential, and those having the highest probability of error are selected for audit.

A tale of much ado about not much

THE HERALD Thursday, January 10, 1974 Section I — 11

The longer I cover Harper College in Palatine, the more convinced I am that the place exudes a special vapor designed to result in galloping paranoia in even the most rational persons.

A good example of this tendency on the part of the college occurred last week with some exciting confusion surrounding whether or not the board would appoint a new trustee this week.

Last month, you see, the board had been notified that board member Annalee Fjellberg would resign effective Jan. 15. At that time the board had no official discussion of how to appoint her replacement, but board Pres. Jessalyn Nicklas said after the meeting the board would take applications and would probably appoint her successor at the February meeting.

THAT'S WHY, when I called last week in a routine check to see if any applications had been received, it was such a surprise to discover that Monday, Jan. 7, was the deadline for applications. The board, Mrs. Nicklas and college Pres. Robert Lahti said, hoped to appoint a new member at its January meeting — today.

Notice now — I called them. They did

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

not call me to say that Monday was the deadline or to ask me to put a notice of the deadline in the paper so the public would be informed. Who knows, maybe they were planning to.

The day after I was told of the deadline, however, I had occasion to call two other members of the board — William Kelly and Larry Moats. Neither of them had heard about the Monday deadline and neither of them knew there was an intention to appoint a new board member this week.

Let's score a point for paranoia.

AS I TALKED to several people about the situation, the paranoid explanation for what was going on seemed to be rampant. One person, who has served on several government boards in the Northwest suburbs but who has not, to my knowledge, ever had any contact with Harper, heard of the chain of events and said simply, "What are they doing? Running a private club where only a few people can know about deadlines?"

Someone else, more closely connected with Harper, said simply, "It looks like they're trying to set something up to slip a cousin in."

In short, the popular (and paranoid) interpretation of the chain of events was that someone (Mrs. Nicklas and Lahti) had hand-picked Mrs. Fjellberg's successor and were concealing the existence of a deadline to ensure appointment of their candidate.

At this point I will say that I never suggested that interpretation to the people I talked to — even though it had also occurred to me.

Subsequently a story ran in The Herald saying there was a deadline for applications and 11 persons applied. Four of the applications even came in the mail the day after the deadline, but they were accepted anyway.

Because there are so many applicants, the board will not be able to interview them all in time for tonight's meeting. Appointment of a successor to Mrs. Fjellberg will probably be put off until February.

BECAUSE OF that turn of events, the question of whether there was ever a "plot" to sneak a hand-picked candidate in is probably moot now. But, in order to combat paranoia, I'd like to suggest another explanation for the events that took place last week.

As hard to accept as this may be for some persons who have been watching Harper and convincing themselves that the board's deliberations are filled with subtle intrigue — I'd like to suggest that maybe the whole affair resulted from simple, garden variety stupidity.

Look at what happened. If you were going to try to sneak someone in, would you withhold any public notice of any deadline and then, presto, produce a new board member at a meeting without any notice at all?

Of course you wouldn't. That would be a whole lot like fixing a horse race by doping a horse up so that he drops dead just across the finish line from an overdose. It would be too obvious.

IF YOU WANTED to fix a board appointment, particularly if you were sitting on a board as board president or something like it, it would make much more sense to prebrief your chosen candidate so that candidate would appear four or five times more qualified than any other in the interview. Then the rest of the board could happily appoint your man, convinced they had found a true prodigy.

If that makes so much sense, then why did last week's charade happen? Simple. Even though Mrs. Nicklas has served on the Harper board for eight years and even though Lahti has been college president for almost that long, it never occurred to them that they should tell anyone else, particularly not the newspaper and through the newspaper the public, that a deadline had been set for applications for the board.

And if you think that explanation is far-fetched, just try to imagine how stupid anyone would have to be to try to pull off a plot with the same scenario as last week.

Elgin-O'Hare expressway U.S. fund request delayed

Approval of a federal grant request for a 19-mile expressway between Elgin and O'Hare Airport was deferred yesterday by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

The NIPC staff recommended deferring a decision until discrepancies in traffic projections can be ironed out and until a regional airport systems plan is complete. The airport plan would include suggested land use around O'Hare, a factor because some land is presently recommended as open space there.

Impact of the highway on flood plains in the Salt Creek watershed was listed as another reason to defer the grant request, which has to be reviewed before it is sent to federal authorities for action. The NIPC staff also said there are several proposed regional highway plans, some of which do not include the freeway, and that NIPC should resolve those problems before making a decision.

The environmentWalker seeks way to burn state's coal

by LEA TONKIN

Pulling out all the stops in the effort to clean up coal burning operations is what Gov. Daniel Walker says he has in mind to end Illinois' energy paradox. The state has the largest proven reserves of coal in the nation, and yet these reserves are "not being tapped," he said. He adds that the cause of that paradox is "our desire for clean air."

Walker's call for an Illinois energy development and conservation act providing a bonding authority of $100 million for a proposed federal energy research center is among many proposals for intensified utilization of energy sources. The problem for federal and state officials will be to sift out the more workable solutions to long-range energy needs.

Standard bids for oil shale

A locally based oil company, Standard Oil of Indiana, is among the leading contenders in the bidding for promising oil shale lands in Colorado this week. The Interior Department isn't telling who gets the contract for a 5,000-acre tract, pending a bid evaluation.

Indiana Standard and Gulf's combined offer of $210 million topped the bids, followed by Sun Oil and another combined offer by Marathon Oil, Petrofina and Phelps Dodge. The Interior Department says a study of the lands must be completed within three years. Then the development shale mining should get under way by the late 1970s.

Strip mining being studied

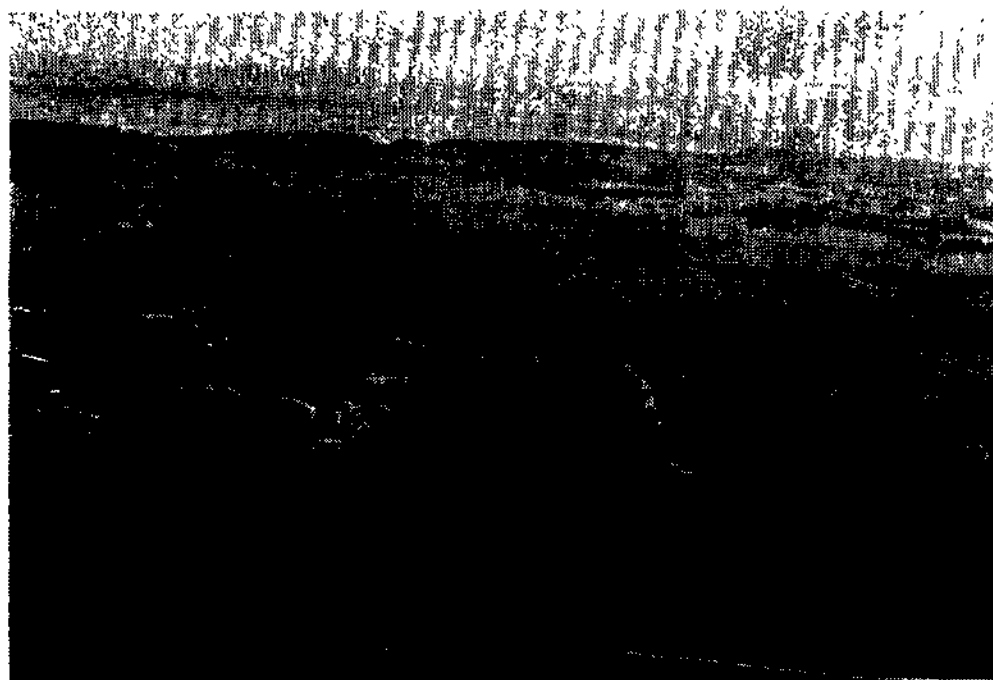

Environmental, socioeconomic and other aspects of possible coal strip mining activities on federal lands in the Northern Great Plains areas are being investigated by a joint federal study group. The Interior Department, the Department of Agriculture, the Environmental Protection Agency and a number of other federal and state agencies are participating in the project. The payoff could be massive leasing programs for strip mining in Wyoming, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska.

"It's a very interesting situation," said a representative of the study group at the Interior Department offices in Denver, Colo. this week. "It's a checkerboard situation, where the federal owns some of the land, the state owns some and other land is privately owned. Plus the federal government has mineral rights to many of the areas."

The study report will be issued in June. Cy Jamieson of the Interior Department's Denver office said recommendations for added study probably will be offered. "There's something like 35 billion tons of coal that could be economically strip mined by today's methods," he said.

Northern Great Plains coal is mostly lignite and subbituminous, said Jamieson. This is the clean type of coal that has a relatively low sulphur content. But conservationists and local land owners object to some of the strip mining proposals, he said.

The enactment of a strip mining bill this year by Congress could assure the reclamation of the land and proper mining procedures, but Interior Department representatives bedge on the likelihood of passage in 1974.

Carving the earth...

STRIP-MINING LEGISLATION could require the reclamation of land by mining companies. At left, John Redding shows a chunk of the coal from his ranch near Sarpy Basin, Mont. Coal underlies his land and some 25,000 square miles in the Great Northern Plains. (EPA Documerica—Boyd Norton)

State of Union address critical to Nixon future

by HELEN THOMAS

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — President Nixon will personally deliver his State of the Union address Jan. 23 before a joint session of Congress, but his aides aren't saying whether he will bring up the Watergate scandal and its effects on the nation.

Members of the House and Senate will convene on Jan. 21 after taking the political temperature in their home districts for a month on the impact of Watergate, the fuel shortage and the economy.

A sampling of feedback offered to the Republican congressmen is being spot checked by the White House and presidential aides so far say there is no heat behind an impeachment move.

When Nixon delivers his address, he will be facing the lawmakers who may eventually sit in judgment of him should the House vote for impeachment. For that reason, his report to the nation may be one of the most important he has ever delivered.

Aides say he will attempt to dramatize his ability to lead in both the domestic and foreign fields. There will be an emphasis on his initiatives despite the obvious inroads his second term administration has suffered as a result of the unresolved scandal.

In foreign affairs, Nixon may well be able to point to some progress in the Egyptian-Israeli peace talks in Geneva. There also is a momentum to new happenings in relations with Europe and in the field of strategic arms limitation with the Soviet Union.

On the domestic front, he was expected to lay heavy emphasis on a crash program to develop new sources of energy, and other measures to ease the shortage.

A prime proposal will be the President's plan for national health insurance, which would provide coverage for all Americans without a tax increase. The coverage would be financed through employee-employer payments to insurance companies.

Except for the "windfall profits" tax on oil producers and limited tax reform, there will be no new tax recommendations.

There was little prospect for Nixon to propose a new family assistance program which he repudiated in early 1972. But work is underway on a new welfare reform program.

His proposals in the fields of education aid, better communities programs, drug control, and consumer protection are expected to be along the lines of past recommendations. Proposals on the environment and rural development also are expected to be put forth by Nixon.

Nixon has been working closely with his chief speechwriter Ray Price on the message. A first draft should emerge this week.

The various cabinet departments and agencies also have an input in the recommendations particularly on the domestic side of the fence.

Last year, Nixon sent his State of the Union message to Congress and did not make a personal appearance. He was riding high with an overwhelming mandate from the voters. From the outset he threw down the gauntlet to Congress, warning that he would not hesitate to use the veto or impound funds to hold the budget line.

But the atmosphere has changed and in recent messages to Congress, Nixon has taken a much more conciliatory stance. He needs friends on Capitol Hill and he is not going to jeopardize his standing with the harsh line drawing of the past, according to close aides. (UPI)

Herald editorial

Film closing: arbitrary

The results of the latest U.S. Supreme Court decision concerning pornography and obscenity have once again come home to us in the suburbs as local government acts and reacts to imagined threats of incursion of filth into our communities.

This week the question is created by the X-rated film, "The Devil and Miss Jones," an explicit and perhaps offensive film which was scheduled for showing last weekend at Elk Grove Cinema.

The film was never shown because of quick intervention by Elk Grove Village officials.

According to the best accounts available, the village attorney, the police chief and the village manager entered the theater Friday afternoon, the first day of the showing, and persuaded the theater owner to withdraw the film. He agreed, although in his version of the matter he believes the authority displayed by his three visitors made it clear that he should not show the film.

The Elk Grove authorities then convened in a special session of the village board and quickly passed an anti-obscenity law, although it seems clear the law was not really needed for the village to exercise its full authority in the matter.

Village Atty. Ed Hofert and others have maintained the special session of the village board had nothing to do with "Miss Jones" and the two incidents are coincidental. No rational person could accept such a statement.

It is obvious the village officials were mightily concerned with "The Devil and Miss Jones" and took presumptive action to prevent its performance. And a board meeting on Sunday underscores the point clearly that "Miss Jones" was the focus of considerable government attention last weekend.

Two lessons emerge from the Friday-to-Sunday furor over "Miss Jones":

First, we think Elk Grove Village's actions were a bit arbitrary and heavy handed. In their rush to protect the citizens of the Northwest suburbs from themselves, the legal processors steamrolled over a local businessman who was not acting illegally.

Elk Grove officially has told the theater owner the village will help him select films for viewing at his theater. That is, at best, censorship, probably exercised by village officials who have little or no knowledge of what constitutes palatable films and whose tastes may have no relevancy to many residents.

Second, it is difficult to mount a defense for "The Devil and Miss Jones." The film is by all reports a raw and explicit exploitation of sex. We do not believe such blatant X-rated films automatically bring with them every social evil, but we nonetheless question their propriety in suburban shopping centers.

Finally, we believe suburbanites should realize the film industry does not always conform to our own wishes in how it should behave.

Ironically, the very theater which was prevented from showing "Miss Jones" was formerly a franchise of the Jerry Lewis chain of theaters which were adamant in their refusal to show X-rated films.

The franchise chain is now defunct, even though a cinema devoted to family films was much heralded when it opened in Elk Grove Village. In plain terms, other communities which welcome new movie theaters on the expectation that family films will keep the owner in business may be in for a surprise.

For an example, look at Elk Grove Village.

Bob Lahey's column

Young seeks frank reform

by BOB LAHEY
Political Editor

U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, has supported legislation, now awaiting action by President Nixon, which would define the congressional "franking" privilege, something which has never been done before.

The bill would spell out just what kinds of materials could be mailed free by franking.

Young also has a bill pending in Congress, dealing with campaign practices, which would prohibit a congressman from using the free mailing privilege for 60 days prior to a primary or general election.

These and other similar proposals are intended to reduce the tremendous advantage which the frank gives to incumbents over their challengers in elections, and to abolish what are frequently referred to as abuses of the privilege.

Because of all this, the arrival in the mail of a handsome wall calendar, bearing Young's frank, aroused my curiosity.

A conversation with his administrative assistant shed some light on the confusion surrounding the franking privilege lines established by that department for proper use of the frank.

Now that the Post Office has been replaced by the U.S. Postal Service, an independent agency, not even the old P.O. guidelines exist, technically.

Most congressmen still use the guidelines, Kling said, but even when the Post Office existed, they were only advisory.

Furthermore, even in evaluating the guidelines, most legislators attempt to be circumspect.

There is no law either that requires a congressman to live in the district he represents, but it is not considered politically advisable to live somewhere else in the state.

Likewise, there is little to be gained from using the frank for one mailing which might give ammunition to a political opponent.

It should further be noted that posted prominently on the wall of Young's congressional office in Skokie is an admonition to staff workers to treat the frank with caution.

Anyhow, thanks for the calendar, Sam. Frankly, it's rather attractive.

Sirica column blasted

Clark Mollenhoff's column titled "Sirica Shined in '73" gives an impression of Judge Sirica that is not in accordance with the facts. He says, "Through it all, Judge Sirica has kept an objective view and a firm fair hand on the basic criminal and civil proceedings in his court, winning the admiration of defendants and defense lawyers as well as the special prosecutor's office." This should come as a surprise to Hunt and Liddy, who were handed Draconian sentences of 30 and 40 years respectively for an ordinary burglary which, because of sharp criticism from many quarters, were reduced to much lesser sentences.

In one of William F. Buckley Jr.'s recent articles he stated: "Now that Judge Sirica has handed down his final sentences on the Watergate Seven, it is appropriate to mention the singular cruelty of this judge." In the article Mr. Buckley quoted from The Washingtonian, a liberal magazine which recently listed judges who should be removed from the bench, and prominently included Judge Sirica. "But the analysis stressed that the case against Sirica is hardly philosophical. Rather, it is based on Sirica's careless legal errors, his short temper, his inattentiveness to court proceedings, his misguided view of the purpose of judicial power, his lack of compassion for his fellow human beings and, strange as it now seems, his lack of interest in the truth."

The Court of Appeals has just ordered Hunt and Barker, two of the men sentenced, to be freed, pending a final deciand why it is often a source of irritation to congressmen who are called to task for some "abuse" of it.

First of all, about those calendars. Not only do they seem to fall into the category of "constituent service," one of the specifically permitted uses of the frank, they are provided free by the Congress for distribution to constituents.

The clerk of the House is specifically authorized by the Joint Committee on Congressional Operations to provide each member of Congress with 1,500 wall calendars in each session of Congress.

If the Congress in its wisdom has seen fit to give away calendars for these many years, it seems unreasonable to expect the present generation of congressmen not to use their free mail to pass them on to the voters.

In the second place, there are apparently no real rules on the use of the frank to be "abused."

Before the dissolution of the U.S. Post Office, congressmen referred to guide-

Has administration knuckled under to oil interests?

by GERARD M. BRANNON

Director, Tax Analysts and Advocates,

a Washington-based public interest tax law firm

The Nixon administration's most recent moves to cope with the energy situation while in the right direction were too timid.

The Cost of Living Council permitted the price of crude oil to rise by $1 to $5 25 a barrel and President Nixon proposed a "windfall profits" tax to prevent all of the increased prices from going to the oil companies.

But the price increase is probably not enough to spur production of enough oil to meet demand and the "windfall profits" tax, which really is not a profits tax at all, will still permit the oil companies to pay generally less federal income tax than other companies.

Thus, the administration has not worked up enough courage to take the really giant steps necessary to solve our energy problems. There are two possible approaches that we can use in dealing with our basic energy problems: rationing or higher prices.

Rationing and price control for oil benefits users because it keeps the price low.

BUT THIS ADVANTAGE of preventing oil buyers from bidding against each other and pushing up the price involves some serious disadvantages. First it treats a lot of users unfairly.

A very complicated rationing scheme might be able to minimize this disadvantage by going through elaborate hearings as to how much each oil user needs. But we are not likely to set up a complicated rationing system in any short time.

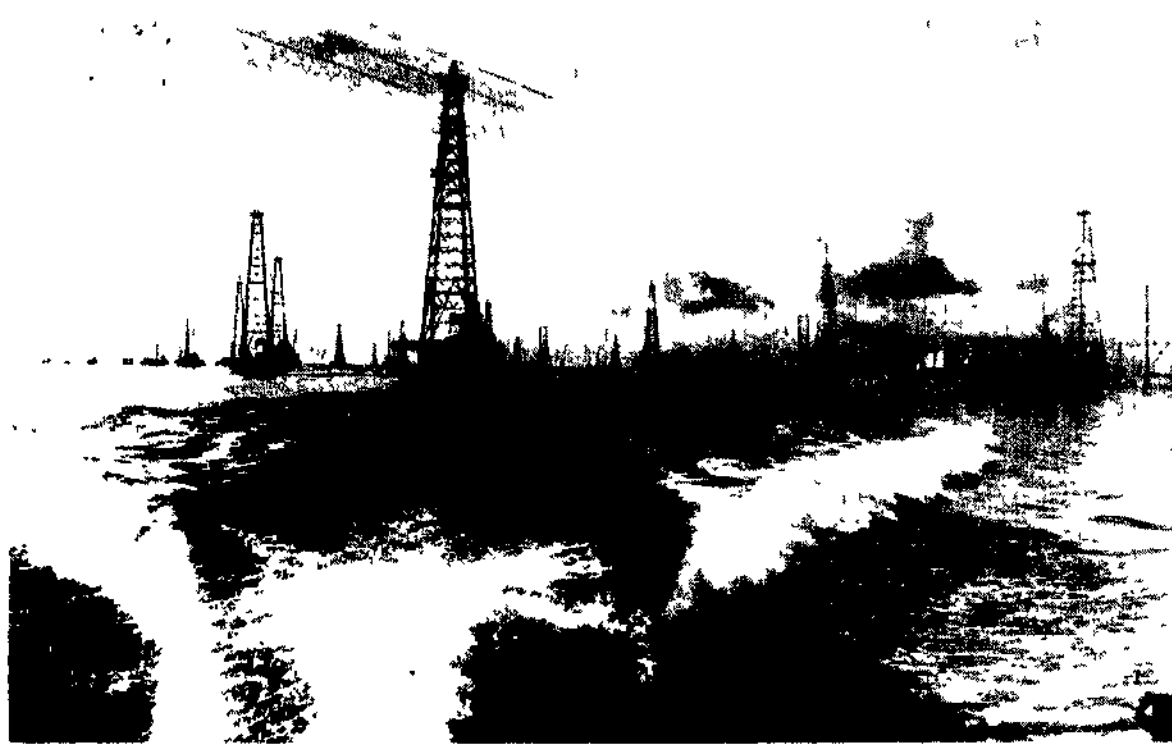

Moreover rationing and price control discourages production. There are a lot of marginal oil wells which could be brought into production if the crude oil price was $7 per barrel that would not be operated if the price was $5 per barrel.

One problem of oil is that producers pay a lot of attention to present and future price. If we keep the price down for awhile and producers think that the price will rise in a couple of years, they will not try very hard to produce more now when they could leave it in the ground until the price is higher.

The final disadvantage of rationing and price control is that there are a lot of users who would pay higher prices to get more than their rationed allotment and a lot of producers who would like to sell at higher prices. When these two get together, we have a black market.

ON THE OTHER HAND, allowing oil prices to go up solves the three disadvantages of rationing. It lets the user who needs more oil get it at a higher price. It uses the price system to sort out those who don't really need the oil so much. It makes it profitable for producers to increase their oil production. And it eliminates black markets.

The basic disadvantages of the higher prices, are: It hurts

OIL, OIL EVERYWHERE and most of it going to U.S. consumers at increasingly higher prices. Derricks dot Lake Maracaibo in Venezuela, South America's largest oil field. Venezuela, which provides the United States with about 9 per cent of its oil needs, has followed the Arab lead in increasing prices.

oil users as a group, especially low-income users who cannot afford to pay more for oil, higher prices also provide very fat profits for oil companies, the kind of windfall profits that President Nixon was talking about. Thus, neither of these two basic approaches is a very happy solution to our problem. Both have important disadvantages, and the name of the game in Washington is to find a variation of the two approaches which will minimize disadvantages.

From the government standpoint the easiest variation of rationing is to ask people to ration themselves voluntarily. Most of our experience with voluntary rationing is that it does not work for very long, just like the voluntary approach to discourage cigarette smoking didn't work for very long.

One alternative to voluntary rationing is "white rationing." In this plan, the price would go up but each consumer would be given a supply of ration tickets which would permit him to buy a basic amount of gasoline, or heating oil, at the old price. If he didn't want to use his tickets, he could sell them. Basically these white-rationing plans were equivalent to simply giving consumers money, while making them face higher prices.

IT SEEMS CLEAR that there is no way to avoid some plan that includes higher prices for oil. The only thing wrong with higher prices is that it transfers income from consumers to producers. But this is the kind of problem that government is pretty good at offsetting.

I doubt that the government would be very good at running an oil field. But a great deal of what government does well is to impose taxes, which takes income away from some people and distributes benefits like Social Security, unemployment insurance and veterans' payments, which are designed to increase the income of other people.

The government could very well do this in the energy situation, for example, by putting higher taxes on the profit from higher oil prices and giving consumers tickets (or money) to pay for part of the price increase.

This combination of higher prices and income transfers has the advantage of using the price incentives at the margin. The producer will still find that producing more oil increases his after-tax profit and each consumer will make the decision at the margin of whether buying more oil or gas is worth the real cost of producing it. It is precisely this policy which was recently proposed by the leaders of Atlantic Richfield Co.

It seems clear that the President has not really made up his mind about which way to go. All kinds of variations are still being juggled around. The latest action to raise the crude oil price to about $5 from about $4 was only a modest step toward the higher price strategy.

THE PRESIDENT, while moving slowly on prices, is moving even more slowly on higher taxes. The tough-sounding windfall profits tax turns out to be something that will be phased over five years.

Even while this fierce-sounding excess profits tax is in effect, oil companies will still be paying fewer taxes than other companies because they still will be getting percentage depletion and favorable treatment on reinvestment.

Incredibly, the President even talked about refunding the windfall profits tax if the oil companies do what for them will be the very profitable thing of drilling more oil wells.

The other part of the income problem — providing some benefits to consumers to offset the effects on their incomes of higher oil prices — does not seem to be getting much presidential attention.

The one stupid cliché that people should stop parroting is that energy is a necessity. What is involved in the energy problem is more or less energy at the margin, and whether to use more or less energy is a rational decision we can make in light of its cost.

If consumer decisions don't get changed overnight, then we may need to do still other temporary things to help out tomorrow, but a good working price system will make a substantial contribution in a year. Unless we have more flexible energy prices, the problems won't be much better by this time next year.

NEW YORK — Does anybody, anywhere, really know how much oil we really have — and how much we really need? The answer is, simply, perhaps.

A recent attempt to discover the repository of energy statistics resulted in an hour's worth of phone conversations and very little more.

The trail started, naturally enough, in the White House where William Simon, head of the Federal Energy Office, is (continued on page 16) said to be seen occasionally.

Although the particular phone number had been changed, the present owner was able to provide the right number. One of Simon's assistants was on the other end and he suggested a call to John Hill, director of the National Energy Planning Group.

HILL'S OFFICE suggested that "The World Almanac" talk to the Interior Department where, it was subsequently learned, Ralph Miller, chief of the data division of the Office of Energy Data and Analysis, was the proper source.

Miller, who is overworked these days, was as helpful as possible but he is not much better off than the man in the street, or the editor of the Almanac.

Miller explained that, despite his title, his office does not collect energy data but exists simply to make policy regarding that data. The basic problem he said, is that most statistics available are too little and too late. Figures after 1971 are hard to obtain and spotty, while figures prior to 1972 often do not provide the kind of information needed.

Miller cited the Bureau of Mines, the Census Bureau, the Federal Power Commission and the Atomic Energy Commission as the major government sources of data. Industry groups collecting figures include the American Petroleum Institute, the American Gas Assn. and the Edison Electric Institute.

Miller denied that figures on domestic oil production and imports varied greatly from source to source and affirmed that there is general agreement on how much oil we have and where it comes from, but there is considerable debate over how much we need.

MILLER'S DIFFICULTIES begin with the variety of measurements used. There are several basic products of crude petroleum (gasoline, kerosene, jet fuel, heating oil, etc.) and they can each be measured in several different ways (barrels, gallons, cubic meters, etc.). But a barrel of crude petroleum is not equal to a barrel of kerosene.

In fact a barrel of crude from Saudi Arabia does not equal a barrel of crude from Nigeria. Each oil field produces different qualities and weights of crude. And methods for computing weights of barrels from different sources vary from agency to agency.

Finally, different agencies include a variety of different figures in their totals. Because the Bureau of Mines treats crude oil imports passing through Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Guam in a different manner than the Bureau of Census Customs figures, those two agencies' totals differ.

Add all of these factors together and it's no wonder we have five different figures in two different forms from four different agencies for U.S. 1971 crude oil imports.

Miller said that he hopes data policy guidelines and consistent energy information will be available in about six months.

It won't be too soon.

Q. Can 19-and 20-year-olds drink beer and wine in the same locations as adults and can they purchase any quantity of beer and wine they wish?

A. Yes. The new Illinois Statute that went into effect Oct. 1, 1973, gives 19-and 20-year-olds the same rights to purchase beer and wine as persons 21 years old and older. However, some municipalities have their own regulations which are different than those in the state statutes.

Hersey impresses; faces awesome Arlington Friday

by PAUL LOGAN
Swimming Editor

Although three Mid-Suburban League swim teams hit the 100 mark in the first week of conference competition, the one winner that didn't was the most impressive.

Hersey and Wheeling, two of the stronger teams in the MSL, met at the Wildcats' pool. The Huskies came on strong late in the meet for a 94.5 to 77.5 victory. This showing inspired Wildcat coach Doug Cotner to call the Huskies "a very improved team."

Ready to see just how much better Hersey is over last year this week will be Arlington, defending champion in the MSL. The Cardinals, using a weaker lineup, easily defeated Buffalo Grove's young team, 100-58.

Also finding the century mark were Rolling Meadows, a 100-58 victor over Prospect, and Elk Grove, a 100-49 victor over Forest View.

This afternoon will have the Mustangs at Forest View, beginning at 4:30. Besides Hersey at Arlington on Friday, Elk Grove will take on visiting Wheeling and Buffalo Grove will be hosted by Prospect. These meets also begin at 4:30 p.m. Jeff Siler, Greg Polcyn, Johnson and Last week's action went like this:

HUSKIES TOP CATS

Hersey head coach Herb Parsons calls his team "pretty solid with some depth." The Huskies demonstrated both against Wheeling.

Led by the double individual victories of Dave Johnson, the Huskies notched seven firsts and eight seconds to submerge their hosts. Johnson won the individual medley (2:21.8) and the butterfly (1:01.6). Both showings were team records. Seven team marks were set in all.

The relay victories were also records. Jeff Siler, Greg Polcyn, Johnson and Craig Bruce took the 200 medley in 1:51.8. The foursome of Robert Butler, Chris Tague, Taylor and Bob Larue won the 400 freestyle in 3:37.8.

Posting the other firsts were Jeff Speakman in diving (204.7), Taylor in the backstroke (1:03.4) and Polcyn in the breaststroke (1:10.8).

Tague had two records although placing second to Wheeling's Bill Modica in both. Modica won the 200 freestyle (1:54.7) with Tague right behind (1:56.7) and the 500 freestyle (5:11.5) with Tague trailing (5:14.0).

Also a double winner for Wheeling was Paul Lindquist. He won the 50 freestyle (23.6) and the 100 freestyle (52.1). Larue's second in the 100 (53.2) accounted for the remaining Huskie record.

"We've had a lot of guys out with sickness," said Cotner. "The ones that have been healthy and have done the work and done a good job, particularly Modica and Lindquist." Cotner was also impressed with the improvement of Tom Atchison.

MUSTANGS MUCH IMPROVED

Rolling Meadows showed plenty of power in handling Prospect. The Mustangs rode to victory on six firsts, including both relays.

Coach Phil Pardun saw his medley relay team help get the momentum going with an easy victory. Making up the winning combination were John Schmitt, Ken Stahnke, Dan Mate and Gary Grunwald with a time of 1:50.6.

Schmitt, Grunwald, Tom Stahnke and Brad Hammersmith combined to win the 400 freestyle event in 3:42.6.

In between, these were the individual winners — Rick Sievert in the 50 freestyle (25.3), Jeff Slack in diving (185.7), Mate in the butterfly (1:01.1) and Grunwald in the 100 freestyle (54.5).

Prospect head coach Roger Huegerich saw two of his swimmers account for four of the team's five firsts. Jim Lyon won the 200 freestyle (2:02.7) and the 500 freestyle (5:42.8). Brad Busse captured the 200 individual medley (2:21.0) and the breaststroke (1:08.6).

Chris Prinslow took the backstroke (1:03.7) to round out the Knights' leading scorers.

ARLINGTON ROLLS

Buffalo Grove, thanks to going against a weaker Arlington lineup, captured four firsts, but the Cardinals' depth made total victory impossible.

Arlington had seven first places — medley relay (Rob Carstens, Pete Wroblewski, Charlie Dunn, Joe Nitch) in 1:47.8, the 400 freestyle relay (Bob Buechner, Dan White, Arthur Williams, Dixon O'Brien) in 3:52.7, Dale Patterson in the 50 freestyle (24.6), Nitch in the butterfly (1:00.8), White in the 100 freestyle (57.8), Ron Hefner in the backstroke (1:04.4) and O'Brien in the breaststroke (1:12.7).

Dan Woodruff was the meet's only double winner — 200 freestyle (2:02.4) and the 500 freestyle (5:30.3).

Bison Dan Spaulding took the individual medley (2:26.0) and Steve Johnson won diving (128.0).

"They were real nice to us," said Bison head coach Jim Harrington of Arlington's charity. "He's (Coach Don Andersen) in a position to do that. The rest of them (in the MSL) aren't."

ELK GROVE VICTORIOUS

As far as winning events was concerned, Forest View had the edge, 6-5. However, Elk Grove had plenty of point-makers in the other four places in most of the events to earn the victory.

The Grenadiers of Coach Pete Weber captured the medley relay (Scott Bolin, Brent Bolin, Steve Banach, Mark Fournier in 1:47.5), the individual medley (S. Bolin in 2:14.7), the butterfly (Jim Henry in 1:01.1), the 500 freestyle (E. Bolin in 5:16.9) and the backstroke (Banach in 1:01.3).

Among the Falcons' half dozen firsts were the two by Doug Schick. The speedy sprinter took the 50 free (23.2) and 100 free (50.6). Other winners for Coach John Hillary were in the 200 freestyle (Kevin Redig in 1:55.1), diving (Luther Abernethy with 179.25), the breaststroke (Dave Gronke in 1:12.4) and the 400 freestyle relay (Schick, Redig, Mark Bucek and Jim Rohn in 3:42.4).

DAZZLING DAVE Johnson of Hersey is tough in both the individual medley and the butterfly. Victories in both of these events last week helped propel the Huskies to a 94.5 to 77.5 Wheeling. He day against defending Mid-Suburban League champ Arlington.

25 earn spots on honor list

Fitzsimmons tops state poll

by PAUL LOGAN
Swimming Editor

When the state's swim honor roll was released at this time last year, Mike Salerno of St. Viator and Rick Fox of Prospect graced the top spots in their specialties.

You might say a little bit of each is combined in the only local swimmer listed among the top times this week.

His name — Ed Fitzsimmons.

Like Salerno, Fitzsimmons is from St. Viator. And, like Fox, he's a sprinter.

The area is well represented with 24 others ranked between second and 12th, including five runners-up. But there's only one No. 1.

"Fitz" is the leading 50-yard freestyler just as Fox was. His 22.3 time is even faster than Fox's (clocking 22.5) at this time last year. If he continues to do as his counterparts did last season, he's destined for a state title.

Fox became the first area swimmer west of the Des Plaines River to win a state championship. Shortly after his feat, Salerno dove in and did the same.

"I think he's definitely a possibility in the 50," says John Fleck of his senior streak. "Right now he's extremely slow off the blocks."

When he turned in his 22.3, "Fitz" went out in 11.1 and back in 11.2. Since he has the benefit of the blocks, it's only natural that his speed going out should be faster. Fleck is confident that this part of Ed's 50 freestyle event will improve.

"His size is just great for a sprinter," says Fleck of his lanky (6-foot-3, 185-pound) senior. "His arms are extremely long."

One of the swimmers in second place is Fitzsimmons, too. He trails Andy Veris of New Trier West, 49.1 to 48.5. Fleck says his star has a good shot at that event too if Veris — a super all-round swimmer — decides to go for another title instead.

Two other area swimmers ranked in the top 12 in the 100 free are Doug Schick of Forest View (50.6) and Mark Rohl of St. Viator (51.8). They also are among the best dozen in the 50 free — Schick in fifth (23.1) and Rohl in ninth (23.4). In between is Hersey's Bob Larue with eight (23.3).

Another St. Viator teammate — Kevin Szarabajka — is second in the 100-yard breaststroke with 1:04.4. Running first is New Trier's Ted Ahlem with 1:03.1.

Right behind Szarabajka are four other area breaststrokers in this the strongest state events from the area — Elk Grove's Scott Bolin and Maine North's Kiernan Mack of Arlington in sixth (1:06.6) and Pete Wroblewski, also of Arlington, in 10th (1:07.0).

Bolin and Arlington's Charlie Dunn rank 2-3 in two events. Bolin is second in the 100-yard backstroke (57.3) to Lyons' Mark Wintercorn (55.7) with Dunn in third (57.5). The reverse is true in the 200-yard individual medley. Dunn (2:05.3) trails leader Jim Bucher of Peoria Richwoods (2:04.0) with Bolin third (2:06.8).

SLEEPY LIONS LOSE

St. Viator's varsity had a successful stay in Hawaii, working out daily in an outdoor pool. However, the team should

Ed Fitzsimmons

The other second belongs to the St. Viator 400-yard free relay team of Rohl, Mark Nelles, Rick Yasky and Fitzsimmons. They trail Rock Island, 3:25.9 to 3:28.1.

Yasky is third in the 200-yard freestyle (1:51.4) with New Trier's Veris first (1:48.2). Then comes Arlington's Joe Nitch in fourth (1:52.0) and Fitzsimmons in fifth (1:52.2).

In the newest distance event — the 500-yard freestyle — Nitch is third (5:02.7) and Yasky fourth (5:04.1). New Trier East's John Morse leads (5:02.1).

Arlington's Dunn is seventh (56.3) in the 100-yard butterfly (56.3) with Deerfield's Jim Vandermeer in first (55.0).

Finally, Elk Grove is ninth (1:47.3), St. Viator 11th (1:48.4) and Arlington 12th (1:48.1) in the 200-yard medley relay. New Trier East's first (1:43.5).

Harper hockey program grows

by ART MUGALIAN

It may not be big-time college hockey they're playing at Harper Junior College, but it's a beginning.

There won't be any expensive recruiting trips to Canada or New England looking for the best in skating talent. The money isn't there for that. And hockey may never rival football or basketball as a crowd-pleasing activity at the Palatine school.

But since last year, the hockey program at Harper has grown from a small club sport to a quickly-developing varsity enterprise.

"We proposed hockey the last couple of years, but we lost," said Roy Kearns, the team's faculty supervisor. "Now we're sponsored by the school but also by the boys. The kids really want to do it and that makes it worthwhile for everybody."

The Hawks' ice men are coached by a Harper student, 21-year-old Bob Downing of Winnetka. Downing, who played on last year's Harper team, explains the difference between then and now: "Last year we weren't really qualified for tournaments or anything. We didn't go by any of the eligibility rules. We had guys playing on different teams. This year we are to run it as a varsity team under the eligibility rules."

Harper was told that in order to start a varsity program, a petition had to be circulated. With that and other paper work out of the way, the Hawks are ready to go.

"You could call it a varsity probationary status," Downing said.

The young coach is finding his job a challenge. "It's tough but I'm learning. I have to get used to dealing with different personalities. Plus, there's funding. We have to decide where we want certain money to go. The whole thing is interesting and I'm afraid it will get more so."

Downing had planned to go to school in Champaign this semester, but a transcript mixup delayed the switch. "They offered me this job and I took it," the happy coach reported.

"I've done some assistant coaching in training camps," Downing said, "and I've worked with the minor Hawks as assistant, but this is my first chance at head coaching."

Downing was fortunate in having a large group of talent to draw from. "We had an excellent showup," he said. "There must have been 80 people who came out, and we boiled it down to about 45 on the ice at least two days a week."

"We're pretty good," Downing allowed. "Last year we were strong on just a couple of lines, but this season we've got a lot of depth."

The Hawks have opened their initial varsity campaign with consecutive victories over Morton, Joliet and the Loyola J.V. squad. Coming up on Jan. 19 will be a home game against the University of Wisconsin at Parkside. Home games are played at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

"We've been getting some good turnouts," Kearns said, "about 200 people a game. The student participation is excellent. And this Wisconsin team is a good team. It'll be worthwhile seeing."

Admission to Harper Hawks' home games is $1.00, 50 cents for students, and 25 cents for children.

New tennis rules for prep tourney

"Super important!"

That's the feeling of one area coach concerning the rule changes for the state high school tennis tournament.

In a meeting of the Illinois High School Association board of directors late in December, a measure passed regarding the setup of the district and state meets. Briefly, here are the changes:

- When a team wins a district, it will take a full team to the state meet.
- A preliminary round will be played the day (Thursday) before the opening round of the state tournament to determine the draw of 64.
- United States Lawn Tennis association tiebreaker at 6-6 in all matches.
- There will be a feed-in tournament so those who are beaten can play again for a half-point.

• Quarterfinal losers also will go into the feed-in for half points with the semifinal losers playing off for third and fourth place.

The reasons for the changes are threefold — to have better team representation in the finals, to give better team balance and to crown a true team champion.

The rule changes will also let the better players play in the state finals. In the past, talented young men were shoved to the sidelines because they participated and lost in a loaded district.

As has always been the case, the first and second place finishers will advance from the district to the state meet.

The new rules will be in effect in this spring's tourney.

Hersey gymnasts topple 139

Looking to better its season high of 142.51, Hersey fell a shade short, but still romped to a 139.32 to 94.43 gymnastics triumph over non-conference foe Glenbrook South.

"We lost about 6.4 points in breaks," Huskie head coach Don Von Ehers said, "otherwise we would have been right there."

Hersey vaulted into its patented start after Ron Mitsos tumbled to a nifty meet-high 8.65 on floor exercise and hit its best event total on the ensuing side horse competition when John Maseng (8.35) and Bruce Freedman (8.55) combined for 16.9 of the Huskies' 24 points.

John Ludwigsen carried horizontal bar with all-arounder Kevin Muenz, both posting 7.2 routines while Mike Kropp's 8.15, Don Zasady's 7.9 and Gregg Manning's 7.65 totaled 23.10 on trampoline.

Mike Murphy's 7.6 and Muenz' 7.55 carried parallel bars while Ron Sommerfeld's 7.4 was tops on rings for the Huskies who also added Muenz' impressive 6.82 in all-around.

Wheeling frosh rule in invite Wheeling's fine freshman team turned in a repeat performance of last year's showing in the Libertyville Invitational — victory.

The Wildcats, swimming in top form Saturday, had a runaway, posting 67 points compared to second place Hersey's 37. Rounding out the team standings were Lake Forest 35, Waukegan 26, Libertyville 24 and McHenry 3.

Seven Wheeling firsts dotted the final scoring sheet with two being totaled by Wildcat Tony Lauber. He won the 150 freestyle (1:31.6) and the 50 freestyle (26.0).

Lauber also was a member of the winning 200-yard medley relay team. Also joining in the winning time of 1:59.6 were Dan Mackie, Marty Geisler and Don Rothaar.

Other individual winners were Mackie in the 50 backstroke (30.9) and Geisler in the 50 breaststroke (35.0).

Hersey's only first was registered by Dick Hawes. He won the 100 freestyle (59.6).

Mount Prospect 6th grade cage league begins

The newly formed Mount Prospect 6th Grade Basketball League will open its season on Thursday, Jan. 10, at the Holmes Junior High School gym. The six team circuit will play a 10 game double round Thursday evening schedule.

In the league opener at 6:30 p.m. the Casey Maloney coached Hawks (Holmes) will battle the Lions of St. Mark under the helm of Tom Johnson.

The Saints (St. Raymond's), guided by Joe Lapcewicz, will encounter Joel Naparstek's Warriors, a St. Zachary's-Friendship combination, in the 7:30 p.m. contest.

The nightcap brings together the Eagles (St. Emily's) and the Wildcats (Dempster) coached by Jack Frugo and Frank Holan respectively.

The league officers are: Holan, President; Bob Martinski, Vice President; Joe Lapcewicz, Secretary; and Jack Frugo, Treasurer.

At Elk Grove Bowl

The winner of the first half of the Elk Grove Ladies' Major League was F & F Construction, followed by Gladstone Realtors, B & H Blueprint, Gullett's Loc-M-Key, Andersen Masonry, Hamilton Real Estate, Rand & Central Shell, Gateway Supply Company, Dolores' Key punch, and Colorama Tile. High scorers for the last two nights were: Dot Wilkens with a 390-205-206 and Bonnie Hofbauer with 594-207.

Other top scorers those two evenings were: Dolores De Bartoli 567-214; Marilyn Trieb 552-220; Marilyn Andersen 556-222; Anne Cadelene 552-210 and 548-194; Jean Bates 530-206; Harriet Neier 537-151.

Ex-Lion Bobowski returns with Sugar Bowl memories

"Every weekend of the year, but why, why, why on New Year's Eve?"

That statement or reasonable facsimile of it was asked plenty of times by my wife. She just couldn't understand why a bowl game had to be played between 7:00 and 10:00 on New Year's Eve.

It was meaningless to explain that Notre Dame and Alabama were meeting for the national championship. Throwing in the fact that both were unbeaten only seemed to make matters worse.

Being a sportswriter's wife the past seven years, she expects to have her weekends more or less dictated by events I have to cover or super important games that just have to be seen on TV. But delaying the celebration of 1974 for another old football game was just too much.

Two things helped her to accept this very special sporting event — ABC's camera work and the Notre Dame fight song. Every few minutes the cameramen would zoom in on the two team's cheerleaders. Being a former one herself, she began to remark about their "cute outfits" and such.

Our oldest daughter, a six-year-old, had never heard the catchy song before that night, but she suddenly began humming along.

My wife really became interested in the closing minutes of the game, partly because of the excitement and partly because of my vocal outbursts. If a game can sway her, especially when she wanted to do something else, it has to be one of the all-time greatest.

Notre Dame's narrow 21-23 win over Alabama was just that. Even this week — seven days after the event — people in our editorial department were still talking about THE game. The general opinion was that this superb contest was a rarity, especially when you consider how many times over the years highly played up games just didn't deliver as advertised.

But if you thought it was exciting to watch on TV, it was even more thrilling in person. One fan who should know is Stan Bobowski.

He isn't one of your average Irish super rooters. You know the kind — be-decked with derby, shamrock, No. 1 button, flask, well worn class ring of a Rockne or Leahy era, bulge around the waist, leprechaun sparkle in the eye, saucy face and mouth like a megaphone.

Stan was a special fan. Sort of a player-fan, if you please.

A former All-Stater for St. Viator High School's Lions, Stan picked Notre Dame over many other colleges that sought him. Only a freshman, he didn't dress for this historical confrontation. Instead, he and about 80 non-varsity teammates were given tickets and expense allowances to make the trip to New Orleans.

For ex-Lion Stan, going south was like going home.

"I had lived in the south and had expected people to be kind of hostile," said Stan, who grew up in Texas. "Just because it was Notre Dame and because they've always thought that Notre Dame has always been overrated.

"Everywhere you went there were all these Alabama people yelling, 'Roll, Tide, roll.' Everywhere you went you'd have these guys walking around with red hats, red ties and red blazers.

"I was kind of surprised because Notre Dame only had about 13,000 (at the game) and Alabama had at least twice that many.

"They (Bama rooters) were all real cocky, real confident. They'd say, 'Say what you want, kid, but they're going to get it. Alabama's going to put it to 'em.'

"They were kind of quiet after the game," he added.

Stan and most of his teammates sat in the end zone. Now that doesn't sound like a very choice spot, but it was because that's where the clutch play of the game was made. ND quarterback Tom Clements faded into that end zone and completed a pass to Robin Weber.

"I don't think anyone could have been more courageous the way he played that game than Coach (Ara) Parseghian," said Stan. He was answering in part to the question about Ara's former nemesis, playing for a tie in 1966 with Michigan State. "He didn't want a tie; he wanted to win."

Stan explained that whenever the Irish ran out of the 'P' formation during the season, they'd lead with the fullback and the halfback straight through the hole, right off tackle. "Everyone figured we were going to try and get another yard (on a running play) and then punt it out, but he faked it and passed to Weber. It was just incredible."

Ara's coaching ability is unquestioned now. He's a Notre Dame institution like Rockne and Leahy.

Having seen this charismatic man in action both as coach and salesman (Ford commercials) before visiting Notre Dame, Bobowski said he was "kind of nervous" when he first met Ara. Sitting in his office he found himself thinking, "I'm actually talking to Ara Parseghian."

"He's really a nice guy. You expect him to be like up on a cloud or something, but he's down to earth. He's just like a regular guy . . . real easy to talk to."

This man and the university he stands for brought Stan as well as Rolling Meadows All-Stater Jack Lloyd to South Bend last fall. And after talking to this young Notre Dame quarterback you come away knowing a little of what it's like to attend this fabled university.

"I knew that — at the worst — even if I never played a down of football, when I left there I would be glad I got a degree from Notre Dame," Stan concluded.

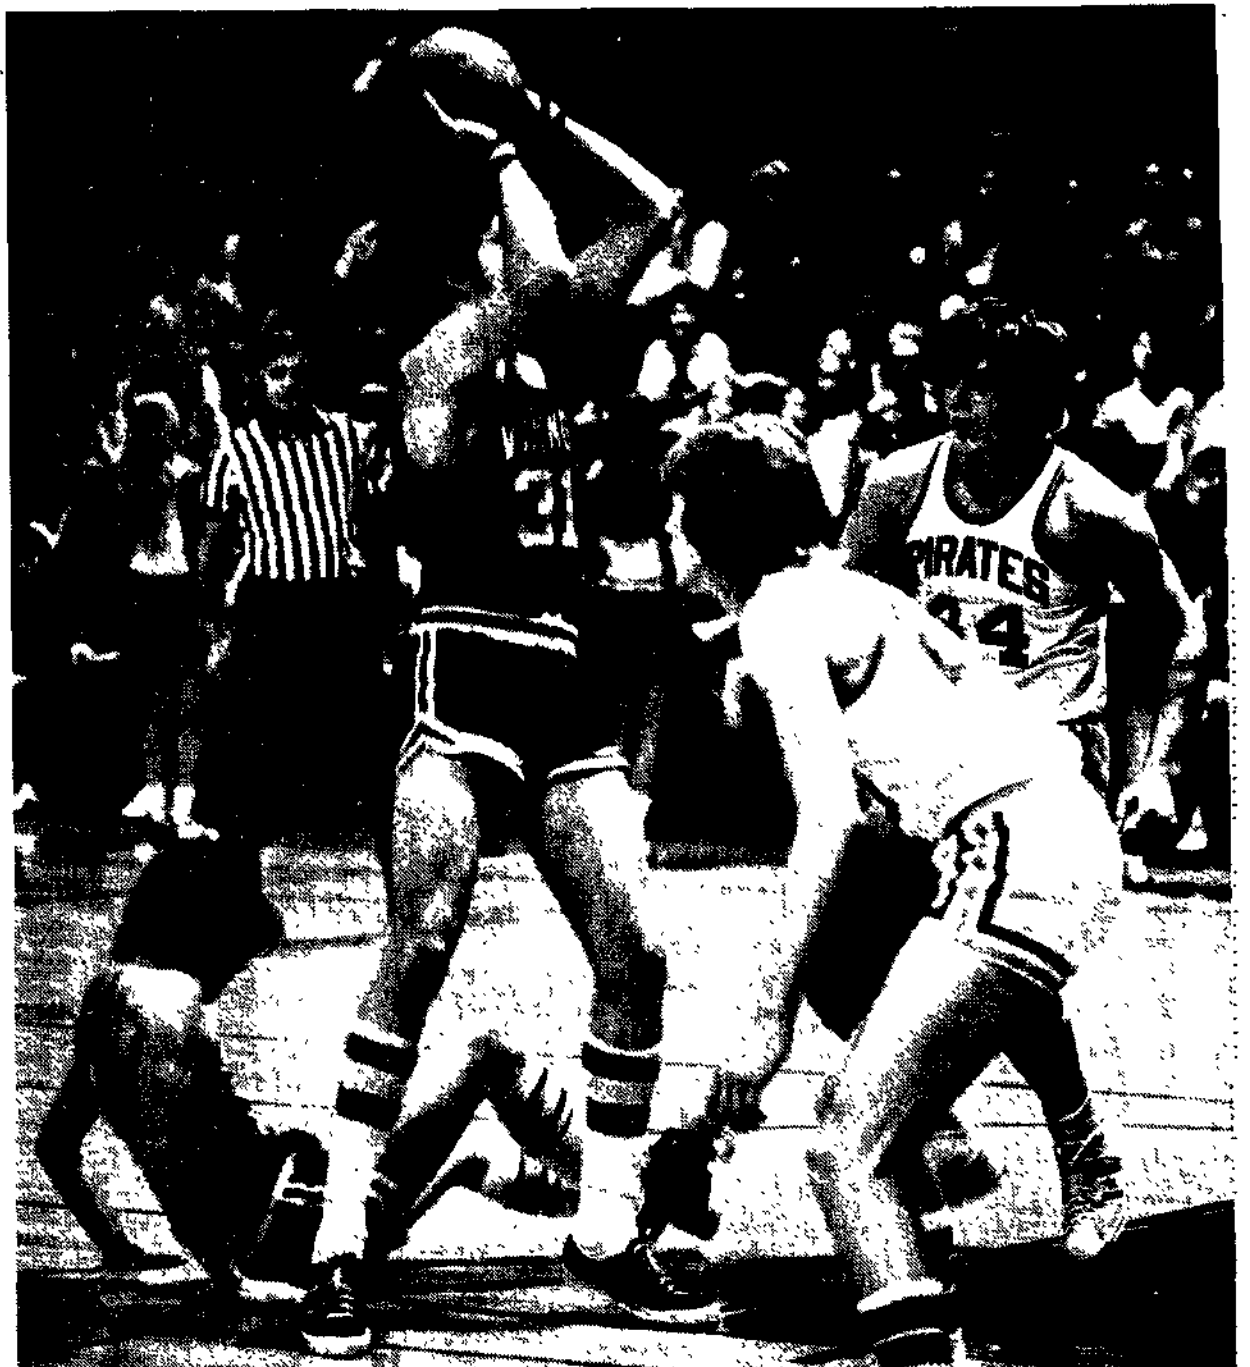

One thing's for certain — this Sunday's Super Bowl will be hard pressed to compare with last New Year's Eve. I'll be watching, but I guarantee you my wife won't.

Arlington vs. Hersey on radio

The visits of Arlington and Conant to Hersey High School will be the next two featured basketball games on WWHM-FM radio.

WM Director of Sports Bud Kelly and Herald Sports Editor Bob Frisk will report the action this Friday, Jan. 11, as Arlington plays at Hersey and then on Friday, Jan. 18, when Conant visits.

The two games rank as very significant in the title chase.

Arlington, Wheeling and Hersey currently are tied for the top in the North Division of the Mid-Suburban League with 4-1 records and Conant stands alone in the South at 5-0.

WM radio also has announced they will carry Fremd's visit to Forest View on Friday, Jan. 25.

Game time is 8 p.m. at 82.7 on the FM dial, although the tipoff for the varsity battle is dictated by the length of the preliminary.

Elk Grove Tennis Club to host 16 and under weekend tourney

The Elk Grove Tennis Club will be the site of the Chicago District Tennis Association's Boys and Girls 16 and under Indoor Championships this weekend.

The Elk Grove facility, opened just this past September, will feature 14 matches on Saturday beginning at noon. The finals of the tourney will start at 1 p.m. on Sunday.

Paul Wei of Arlington Heights will be teaming with Cary Westberg of Homewood as the area's lone representative in boys' play. Cheryl Workman of Wheeling is paired with Carol Magnus of Arlington Heights in girls' action.

The tournament director is Jim Kemper while the tournament referee is Mary Valiquet. Bill Glab will act as the tourney umpire.

The annual tournament is open to the public at no charge. The Elk Grove Tennis Club is located at 1650 Howard Street, at the corner of Busse and Howard, in Elk Grove.

St. Joseph sweeps

St. Joseph of Wheeling defeated St. Gilbert of Garyville at all three levels to remain in first place in the N.W. Catholic Conference.

The 6th grade Chargers routed St. Gilbert 25-11 behind a 23-point performance by Chris Vassili. The victory gives St. Joe a conference record of 6-1.

At the 7th grade level the Chargers defeated St. Gilbert 40-15. The victory gives St. Joe a perfect 7-0 conference record. Overall they were 42-1. Mark Bagrowski with 14 points and Don Grass with 10 points led St. Joe.

At the varsity level, St. Joe routed St. Gilbert 62-22 behind an outstanding 23 point performance by Steve Mylowski. Scott Mulford chipped in 12 points. The Chargers moved their conference record to 6-1. Their season record is now 16-5.

On Sun. Jan. 13 at 1:00 p.m. at Holmes Jr. High, St. Joseph the Worker will collide with powerful St. Francis of Lake Zurich.

Canada issue honors Pacific Coast Indians

The Canada Post Office ushers in its 1974 stamp program Jan. 16 with the release of two 8-cent adhesives focusing on the way of life and artifacts of the nation's Pacific Coast Indians.

"The Inside of a House in Nootka Sound" is reproduced courtesy of the Public Archives of Canada from an original 1778 drawing by John Webber.

A small date will be inscribed in the design area of each stamp indicating the day of issue together with a small "c" indicating that the design is copyrighted. The practice will be continued to all ensuing issues.

Stamp notes

A total of 26 million stamps is being printed so-tenant in five-color lithography by Ashton-Potter Ltd., Toronto. Marginal inscriptions, including the designer's names, appear on the four corners of each pane of 50 stamps. The entire production will bear the general (Ottawa) tagging.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations should send their requests to FDC/Indian Stamps, Philatelic Service, Canada Post Office, Ottawa, Ont., Canada K1A 0B5 enclosing the proper remittance (in Canadian funds) which is the cost of the stamps to be affixed plus a 5-cent service charge for each cover requested.

THE COST OF Living Council granted U.S. postal users a two month reprieve from mail rate hikes when it ordered the Postal Service to reduce its planned 1974 revenue increases by 15 per cent and suggested the service achieve this by postponing the rate increase until about March 1.

Collectors whose Skylab 4 covers went stamped with the current mail rates, and who did not remit the additional two cents to cover the proposed Jan. 5 increase, can breathe a sign of relief that splashdown cancellations will be returned minus "Postage Due" notices.

It's anyone's guess what the Navy will do about the pennies from collectors who did remit that extra two cents.

Solid-gold relief medals honor 12 great Americans

The Letcher Mint of Lancaster, Calif., has just struck the first of 12 Gold Relief medals honoring 12 great Americans. It is the first attempt at striking solid gold in relief on solid silver and should not be confused with "gold leaf" or gold plating.

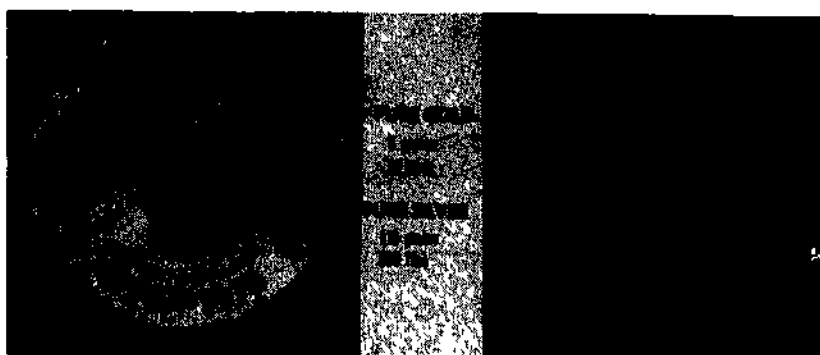

The bas-relief figure is 24 Karat Pure Gold fused together in a manner that makes the completed medal one, solid structure. In other words, the central device or head is a 5 grain piece of 24 Karat gold fused on a .999 pure silver planchet and permanently bonded during the striking. A most unusual process, as any metallurgist will confirm.

In the past, coins and medals containing a "gold plug" have been successfully produced to give a gold and silver combination, but this particular process took some five years of metallurgical research plus thousands of dollars in development costs. And while I do not own a specimen of this series, I have had the opportunity to examine a copy under laboratory conditions and found it to be fascinating.

Readers interested in the "Twelve Great American" series should direct their inquiries to The Letcher Mint, P.O. Box 107, Lancaster, Calif. 93534. The series is limited to 5,000 copies for Letcher Mint Collectors and 4,800 for public consumption.

The 12-piece set sells for $275 and a presentation case will accompany the second medal struck.

TO DETERMINE the value of a United States coin, it is necessary to ascertain the exact amount of pure silver in its composition.

A United States silver dime contains .0723375 ounces; a quarter 2.5 times that amount or .18084375 ounces; a half dollar five times or .3616875 ounces, but a silver dollar provides a slight advantage over its fractional parts. At 412.5 grains, the dollar consists of .7734375 ounces of pure silver.

Multiply the fractional ounce given for a particular coin by the market price for an ounce of pure silver and you have the true value of a silver coin.

Example: A silver dollar with a composition of 412.5 grains or .7734375 Troy ounces of pure silver at a market price of $2.27 an ounce would be worth $1.76.

A $1,000 dollar bag of United States silver dollars is worth approximately $1,750 on the Commodities Exchange, provided coins are in at least About Uncirculated condition.

TV's Diana Rigg pondering decision on whether to convert to Judaism

DIANA RIGG

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — Menachem Gueffen, the wife of the Israeli artist, has been reading a good book lately. It's called "A History of the Jews."

What is an Israeli's wife doing reading a book about Jews? Well, the answer is that Mrs. Gueffen is a newlywed, and, to most people, she's still known as Diana Rigg. She's the tall, beautiful English girl who got trapped, this season, into doing a disappointing NBC-TV series called Diana.

Her purpose in reading the book is twofold. First, she wants to find out all she can about her new husband's heritage. And, second, she wonders if, in the book, she can find the answer to the big question: should she convert?

There has been a lot of speculation as to whether or not Diana would convert to Judaism. She says that, as of now, she hasn't yet made up her mind.

"THAT WOULD BE the easiest and simplest thing to do," she says. "Judaism is easy to learn and it would solve things neatly if I did convert. But I'm still not sure if I can."

She says she was not brought up in a particularly religious household. Her father did a lot of thinking about religion and, in his later years, came to the serious decision that he was an atheist. Diana went to many different schools, run by different religious orders and was exposed to many faiths. She was enchanted by none.

Still, she says, there are in her to this day those "childhood convictions," such as the divinity of Jesus Christ, which might mitigate against her conversion.

"I am not sure I can overcome those childhood convictions," she says. "Menachem would like me to convert, I think, but I just don't know if I can."

She says she is fascinated with Israeli life and with Jewish history and religion. She always has had a home in England but now they hope to establish a base in Israel, too, and divide their time between the two countries.

Even though there is a tremendous gulf between their cultural backgrounds, Diana thinks that is a plus rather than a minus, in their relationship.

"THAT OLD THING that you should marry someone with whom you have everything in common," she says, "like two peas in a pod, is very dull. Marriage should be exciting. It's good to have new things to learn."

With them, she says, there is more than merely a cultural difference. There is also a tremendous difference in their personalities.

"I have that English thing," she says. "I don't discuss personal matters in front of strangers. Menachem, on the other hand, is very open about emotional things."

Making it easier for her is the fact that Menachem is not Orthodox, although he won't eat pork. She says that's more a matter of taste than religion.

'Sandy Duncan in Disneyland' April 10

HOLLYWOOD — "Sandy Duncan in Disneyland," a one-hour television special to be taped at the famed amusement park, will be telecast April 10 on CBS.

NEW YORK — Rick Derringer, who produced three albums for the Edgar & the Four Seasons Group, has joined Throck Aggregon as lead guitarist and vocalist.

Derringer, who had an international hit when he began his career at the age of 18, will also write music for the Winter group.

HOLLYWOOD — Andy Griffith will star in "The Graffiti Killer," a two-hour dramatic television movie which also will serve as a pilot film for a new ABC-TV series.

HOLLYWOOD — Director George Schaefer, winner of eight Emmy awards, will produce and direct "Sandburg's Abraham Lincoln," a group of six one-hour specials based on Carl Sandburg's group of books on the 16th president of the United States.

NEW YORK — "Tie a Yellow Ribbon 'Round the Ole Oak Tree" was a phenomenal best-seller in the 1973 record derby.

The song, introduced by the Dawn rock group, sold more than 5.5 million single records before the end of the year.

HOLLYWOOD — Producer Irwin Allen budgeted his new movie, "The Towering Inferno," for $8 million in the first joint venture between Warner Brothers and 20th Century-Fox studios.

BONN — West German viewers prefer police thrillers and soccer games in that order, according to a recent survey conducted by the ZDF network.

HOLLYWOOD — Helen Funai, a one-time Ding-A-Ling girl on Dean Martin's television show, took a giant step forward in her career recently when she was cast for a featured role with Jack Lemmon in "The Prisoner of Second Avenue."

HOLLYWOOD — Burgess Meredith has been signed by Paramount Pictures for a leading role in "The Day of the Locust" starring Donald Sutherland, Karen Black and Geraldine Page.

R.A.L. Realty Co.

415 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Hts. 259-5555

Today's real estate seller and buyer are looking for something not new, but old and almost forgotten by many — warm, friendly, personalized service, which is the byword at R.A.L. Realty. Their sales staff works as a team for clients "with you in mind."

The personalized service plan developed by Richard A. Lis, owner of R.A.L. Realty, is based on more than 50 years in the real estate field. His father is still active in Chicago real estate and Lis has owned his own firm for more than 20 years.

Lis is a past president of the Northwest Suburban Real Estate Board, past chairman of the Northwest Multiple Listing Service and past regional director of the Chicago Real Estate Board. His background and experience enables him to train and guide his staff, making them professionals.

"Personalized service is results, built around a client's special needs. That's what today's real estate seller wants and that's what we deliver," Lis stressed. "We know home owners have a great portion of their life savings invested in real estate so when they turn it over to R.A.L. Realty they get SOLD results."

"We realize every person reflects his own personality in his home; therefore we mold our sales plan around his situation. When we show property, we let clients know what the prospective purchaser thought, and suggest how future showings can be improved."

At R.A.L., property is given exposure not only through MAP Multiple Listing Service, newspapers, magazines and radio, but also through the Home Buyers Guide, an exclusive in the Arlington Heights area with R.A.L. which is distributed to more than 500 local companies to assist executive transferees.

Director: Robert D. Smith, Manager

R.A.L. has continuous training, educational and out-reach programs to ever improve service to clients. Their team of salesmen is ready to assist people from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. seven days a week at the Arlington Heights office, centrally located within 15 minutes of most MAP listings. Plans are under way to open another residential office in this fast growing northwest suburban area.

All this activity has helped to more than double R.A.L.'s sales in the past year. To further aid prospective buyers and sellers, the firm is reorganizing and separating the Commercial and Residential operations.

MEET THE 'FIRST LADY' AT R.A.L.

Ellouise "Rusty" Achenbach, executive vice president and sales manager of the Residential Department, sets the pace for her co-workers as a million dollar salesman. Her real estate career is a continuing constant education into all facets of selling real property from multiple and commercial to residential and vacant.

Rusty's formal education includes Harper College in Palatine, Graduate Realtors Institute in Peoria and various courses offered by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers and the National Institute of Farm and Land Brokers.

Rusty is a 20-year resident of the suburbs and has served on various PTA and church groups, participating actively in these organizations with her four daughters. Rusty's husband is also active in community affairs; he is a past president of the Shriners and past exalted ruler of the Elks. Many area residents know him as Paul the pharmacist at Osco Drugs on Golf Road in Arlington Heights.

Master of floral displays tells his secrets

Each year millions of shoppers admire the floral displays that highlight the landscaping at the Old Orchard, Oakbrook Center and River Oaks shopping centers. And perhaps more than a few wonder who is responsible for these brilliant shows and what he does to get such magnificent results.

The man with the green thumb in this case is Harold Anderson, who for the past 11 years has been working at all three centers for the owner-developer, Urban Investment and Development Co., a national real-estate investment and development firm with headquarters in Chicago and offices in Denver and San Francisco.

Anderson grew up in the nursery business; his father was a nursery superintendent at Leesely's Nursery in Libertyville, and his two brothers also became nurserymen. While working for a landscape contracting firm in Glenview, Anderson learned his trade from the company's landscape architect, who had formerly taught in Budapest, Hungary.

Now Anderson is taking on a new challenge as superintendent of grounds at Hawthorn Center, the new regional shopping center being developed by Urban and Mafco, Inc., a subsidiary of Marshall Field & Company, in Vernon Hills. Draper and Kramer Incorporated is the leasing and managing agent of the center.

The first phase of New Century Town, Hawthorn Center is a 1.4-million-square-foot, enclosed-mall shopping complex with major stores of Marshall Field & Company and Sears, Roebuck and Co., and more than 70 specialty shops already open. Lord & Taylor, a third major tenant, will open in the spring of 1975. Eventually some 140 stores will be doing business there.

What makes Hawthorn Center challenging for Anderson is that it is the first enclosed mall with which he has worked. This means he will not only be responsible for the exterior landscaping, as he is at all the other centers, but the plantings in the indoor mall as well.

Anderson's task at Hawthorn falls into three categories: maintaining the 600 deciduous trees, 300 ornamentals, 1,000 shrubs, 3,500 evergreens and grassed areas on the outside after the landscape contractor has put them in; changing the exterior floral displays three times a year; and, for the first time in his career, devising a plan for the enclosed mall displays.

To do the actual work, Anderson relies on a full-time maintenance crew of 12 men who also do interior work, such as sweeping and cleaning, at Hawthorn Center.

Except for dormant spraying and the first trimming of trees and shrubs, Anderson and the maintenance crew do all the work, including pruning and fertilizing, and mowing the grass. Anderson also puts in the ground. He favors Thorn-dale ivy, wintercreeper (both Colorado and vegetus), creeping juniper (Sargent and Meyer) and andorra juniper.

But the most eye-catching part of Anderson's work are the floral displays he creates and changes three times a year at the shopping center. The traditional pattern has been tulips in the spring, roses and annuals in the summer, and chrysanthemums in the fall.

Usually Anderson places his order for tulip bulbs in June, ordering 120,000 for three shopping centers. (If you want good bulbs, you must order early, he advises.) Because the beds at Hawthorn Center weren't ready in time for fall, 1973, tulip planting, Anderson plans instead to put in 10,000 to 12,000 pansies at the new center next spring.

Before the tulips have had a chance to fade, Anderson has the maintenance crews replace them with the second main attraction, roses and annuals. At this point, Anderson hopes to have the roses for Hawthorn Center for 1974.

His favored annuals for shopping center plantings are begonias, impatiens (elfin variety), petunias, browallia, zinnias, verbena, Canterbury bells, and both dwarf and tall marigolds.

Anderson draws up detailed plans for his floral plantings, arranging color and height to get exactly the effect he wants. One copy of the plans goes to the foreman of the maintenance crew for guidance in plantings. Anderson keeps the other copy for historical reference.

"We check results carefully, and any plant that doesn't do well, we scratch off our list for future use," he said. "We also note if any permanent plantings, such as evergreens, have increased in size, so we can avoid planting in that area in following seasons."

And by keeping records, Anderson makes sure he never repeats an arrangement.

Anderson buys all his shopping center annuals and mums from the Richard Leider Greenhouses in Grayslake, which raises the plants in peat pots and sterilized soil.

"Peat pots keep the roots intact and make it easy to transplant the plants," Anderson explained. "The sterilized soil prevents any weeds from coming up in the beds."

Before transplanting, Anderson has the crews prepare the soil by mixing in proper amounts of sand, calcite clay and peat to produce a mixture that is easy to work and retains moisture. The beds are fertilized three times a year with a 5-10-5 fertilizer.

Roses and annuals are replaced in the fall by mums, selected for color and blooming date. Anderson gets his mum cuttings from Yoder Brothers in Bradenton, O., and has the Richard Leider Greenhouses develop them.

"With the wide range of blooming dates available in mums, it's important we select plants that will give color from Labor Day almost to Thanksgiving," he said.

As with all the other flowers, once the mums have finished blooming, the maintenance crews pull them out and either give them to hospitals and charitable groups, or destroy them. Plants are never carried over from one year to the next.

For the open-mall shopping center, this is where Anderson's job ends. But at Hawthorn Center he has the enclosed mall to contend with as well. He plans to use plants raised in peat pots, and put these in tubs filled with calcite clay that will hold the pot, retain moisture and won't burn if someone drops a cigarette into it. The plants will be changed six or seven times a year to provide variation of color.

Keeping the indoor plants fresh should be mostly a matter of watering them, plucking off dead leaves and blossoms, and replacing plants where necessary. The natural daylight coming through the skylight roof, combined with the center's carefully controlled temperature and humidity, should be a good atmosphere for the plants.

"If they last five or six weeks for each planting, that should be good," Anderson said.

Having worked for so long with so many plants, Anderson should be a good authority on what causes the most plant failure. The culprit in most cases, he says, is poor drainage.

"If you have bad drainage, don't put the plant in so deep, and mound up the earth around the plant so water will flow away," he says. "That should cure it."

Talk to house plants

House plants provide a cheery spot of green and some color in the home during the winter months. Some people always seem to have healthy vigorous plants while others seem unable to get any kind of plant to grow in their home. Part of the secret of having a "green thumb" is to be observant and be able to detect signs of trouble early says James E. Schuster, extension adviser, horticulture at the DuPage County Cooperative Extension Service office in Wheaton.

Certainly you have heard rumors of the benefits of talking to plants. People doing the talking are usually paying pretty close attention to how their plants are doing as they converse, testing the moisture in the soil or noticing pests. You really don't have to talk to your plants but you should pay close attention to them.

Sudden wilting may occur if plants get either too little water or an excessive amount of water or too much fertilizer. Overwatering is most common and causes drowning of the roots.

Sudden loss of leaves is frequently caused by rapid temperature changes, dry air, cold drafts or a change from a sunny to a dark location.

Yellowing and death of lower leaves usually is a sign of nitrogen starvation and also occurs if plants become pot-bound because of extensive root development. Rubber plants, dracena, dieffenbachia and other woody plants are especially prone to this trouble.

Yellowing of all leaves may be due to excessive soil moisture or to root rot. If the drainage hole in the pot or plant box is plugged, or if the plants constantly stand in water, the soil may be water-logged and will lack sufficient oxygen. Destruction of roots by soil-borne fungi also causes yellowing of the entire plant. So does severe infestation by mites, aphids and soft bodied scales.

Unnaturally small leaves are most generally the result of insufficient light; especially common when outdoor plants are brought inside.

Brown leaf tips are caused by exposure to hot, dry air, by improper watering, by objects rubbing against the leaves or by insects.

Brown spots on leaves are sometimes caused by direct sunlight burning plants that require shade during late spring and summer.

Break ground for Arlington Square

Plato Foulas & Company has broken ground for Arlington Square, a new community of condominiums in Arlington Heights.

The 27.5 acre site is located at the southeast corner of Rand Rd. and Route 53. There will be 318 one and two-bedroom condominiums and townhomes in a variety of architectural styles built around the concept of a square. There will be eight clusters of 33 and 45 units, each built around a landscaped courtyard. Each condominium entrance will face the courtyard, or square, providing a self-contained environment with trees and gardens, fountains, and walkways.

The first cluster at Arlington Square will have four masonry buildings ranging from one to four stories containing 45 condominiums. The four-story building and adjoining two-story building will have 32 two-bedroom, two-bath condominiums; a two-story townhouse building will have seven two-bedroom units; and an L-shaped building of eight one-bedroom single and bi-level units completes the square. Prices for the condominiums will range from $26,500 to $42,400.

Plans for the $12 million community also include a recreation complex with a two-acre lake, two tennis courts, a swimming pool, children's playground, and an elaborate clubhouse with a party room, health club, men's and women's saunas, and billiards.

Financing for the development has been arranged through Heitman Mortgage Company. Architects are Sellig, Stevens Peterson & Flock, of St. Charles.

Plato Foulas & Company, Chicago real estate development and investment firm, has built many communities throughout the Chicago suburban area, including Westerfield Square and the 1500 Condominiums on Lake Michigan, both in Wilmette, and the Country Villas of Beaubien in Lisle. Current developments include Cove Landing condominiums in Lombard, and Springside townhomes in Downers Grove. They also developed Plaza del Lago shopping mall in Wilmette.

The Sales Pavilion at Arlington Square is scheduled to open in February, with six furnished models opening in May. Occupancy is scheduled in July.

Real estate pros make selling easier

If you're still not convinced that it pays to hire a real estate professional to help you sell your home, one of Chicago's leading authorities offers some sound reasons to give the matter more thought.

"The impulse to save the broker's commission should be weighed carefully against the services rendered," suggests Jack T. Brown, sales manager of the Elmhurst office of Baird & Warner, Inc.

"Many people believe that a strong demand for homes eliminates the need to employ a professional company, whose main job is to drum up potential buyers. The fallacy of this thinking is that it takes skill to find good prospects. And the other fact is that the broker's main job is to find potential buyers, and to motivate the buyer to act," said the Baird & Warner executive.

The procedures used to arrange a sale that is fair to both parties were described as follows:

1. A fair market value for the house is established. This is the single most important factor in selling your house when you want to.

The broker generally prepares a competitive market analysis. This involves inspecting your house and then examining the records of similar homes sold in the past 12 months, or up for sale now, or that have been up for sale for 12 months but didn't sell. This data will show what your competition — other sellers — is doing and helps establish a price that will be competitive. That is the fair market price at a given point in time.

Don't forget that buyers compare. With all things being relatively equal, the house that is priced best will generally sell first. But since there are differences between similar houses these are considered in establishing a price.

If you set the price too high it will be difficult to sell in a reasonable time, which may sometimes be crucial. If you miss on the low side, you fail to get the best price. But if you're on target price-wise, you're on your way to a sale.

2. The professional suggests ways to make your home saleable. He'll give you tips on improving the general appearance, creating the best atmosphere for a showing, and spending money, if necessary, on improvements that will do the most good.

3. Your realtor will also qualify prospects before he arranges a visit. This means determining that the buyer is not just curious but eager and able to buy and understands that your home might satisfy his needs. Prequalification minimizes inconvenient visits, especially if you are moving, and it eliminates your having to show the house to strangers. A realtor will bring only bonafide prospects and will always accompany them. This also frees you to get away while he shows the house.

4. Believe it or not, the professional can do a better job of showing your house than you can. He will customize his presentation to concentrate on the buyer's needs and interests, which he has determined in advance. Inessentials are eliminated.

The realtor generally knows the kind of furniture the buyer has, so he can help him visualize the use of different rooms. He also can explain how your home can solve the buyer's special problems. Helping the buyer to visualize himself living in your home is a skill in which a true professional specializes.

5. The professional conducts the all-important post-showing interview that can make or break a sale. In this situation the prospect feels more free to criticize to a third party (the broker) because there is no risk of hurting the owner's feelings.

If those negatives or objections can't be resolved at least it equips the professional to overcome similar problems with the next prospect, or for the seller to make some adjustments.

According to Baird & Warner, one of the biggest causes of lost sales is indecision and procrastination. If the realtor feels the buyer likes the house in spite of some small objections, he can help convince him to make an offer and prevent your missing a sale this way. If the owner trying to sell by himself loses his cool in the face of some criticism, he may also lose a buyer.

6. Usually there are a number of bumps to smooth out before anybody is willing to sign on the dotted line. Skillful negotiations are generally called for. The buyer may not agree to your asking price or conditions. Suppose he is unable to meet the downpayment you want? Suppose you disagree on date of possession? Suppose he insists that you include the carpeting and draperies?

A skillful negotiator knows what to look for, what to accept, and what positions to try to change. His diplomatic third party role raises real issues more effectively than direct negotiations, where buyer and seller may get more involved in gamesmanship than in seeking a reasonable compromise.

Also, many things can happen to destroy a transaction before the closing date. Delays can occur. Misunderstandings can develop. Interest can be lost. The skillful negotiator can deal with these matters and continue to reinforce the buyer's interest by reminding him of the benefits of owning the property until all the pieces are assembled.

7. There's a ton of paperwork to be handled after a deal is made. The professional knows what information is needed, what forms have to be completed, the sequence of handling them, how to expedite difficult situations, and how to work with your attorney. This not only saves you time, effort, worry and inconvenience, it insures that finalizing the sale won't be delayed because you may have forgotten something.

8. Finally, the realtor can help you knock down what may be the last barrier to selling your house: securing a mortgage for the buyer. Because firms like Baird & Warner place a large volume of loans in top lending institutions, they have a preferred customer position with many lenders and can sometimes produce results that neither you nor the buyer can, particularly in a tight money market.

Four complete sales seminar

Four real estate salespersons from two local Baird & Warner offices have successfully completed the real estate company's ninth residential sales seminar.

Victor Soderstrom, Robert Baker and Ronald Moravick from the Arlington Heights office and Ruth Clark from the Mount Prospect office joined 22 other salespersons in the week-long program at the Oakbrook Hyatt House.

The program, designed for both new sales personnel and as a refresher, focuses on client and community services; cooperation with other real estate brokers; avoidance and cure of common mistakes made by real estate salesmen; development of successful listing and negotiating techniques; and effective use of advertising. A session on investment real estate was added to the curriculum for the recent seminar.

According to Robert G. Walters, vice president and general sales manager, residential division, the course emphasizes both the technical skills required in the increasingly complex real estate field and the development of professional attitudes.

Fran attended DePaul University and worked for the Palatine Post Office. Her hobbies include reading, bowling and gardening, including a field of more than 500 peonies.

Attains $1 million sales mark

Joan K. Ingve has attained the status of million dollar sales associate with Homefinders Realtors, in an announcement by Robert L. Zaun, president of the firm.

With the company at the Lake Zurich office since July, 1972, Mrs. Ingve reached the $500,000 mark when she had been employed for five months.

Zaun said, "I am especially pleased with Joan's accomplishment because she has been in real estate for only one and one-half years and in her first full year she attained the million mark."

Joan attended Morgan Park Junior College and the University of Illinois where she took pre-medical courses. She and her husband Donald live in Barrington.

Mrs. Ingve is a member of the Junior Infant Welfare League and Phi Mu Sorority. Her hobbies are sewing, boating, skiing and camping.

Prospect, Arlington Heights, Schaumburg, Streamwood and Buffalo Grove.

Homefinders also has a commercial and investment division located at 235 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. David Hanner, vice president of the firm, heads up that division.

KPK buys 21 acres

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates announces that KPK Corporation of Chicago recently purchased a 21-acre site in their Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park in Schaumburg.

KPK will construct two large one-story inventory buildings containing 153,000 square feet, located at the northwest corner of Mitchell Blvd., and Albion Ave., and a 251,000 square foot building at the northeast corner of Wright Blvd. and Albion Ave. Both buildings will be divisible, 24 feet clear, served by rail, and are scheduled for completion by late spring.

The case of the disappearing paycheck and what to do about it.

Some people learn the hard way. Paychecks disappear fast.

Day-to-day living expenses eat up a lot. And maybe part goes in the savings account for this year's vacation or another immediate goal.

A good chunk of that money seems to disappear by itself.

So it's no wonder that when it comes to long-term goals, or when an emergency comes up, there simply aren't funds to meet the need.

Unless there was a nest egg building up all that time.

A good way to build that nest egg is with U.S. Savings Bonds. The easy way to buy them is to sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. An amount you specify will be set aside from your paycheck and used to buy Bonds.

And while you're going through grocery bills, car repairs, vacation weekends, kids' toys and nights out on the town, you'll know you're saving money too.

That's good to know.

Now $10 buys you 10% interest when held to maturity of 3 years. 10 months 11% the first year. Bonds are redeemable if lost, stolen, or destroyed. When needed they can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.
Join the Payroll Savings Plan.

Kunkel, HFL Network cite achievements in 1973

Ralph H. Martin, president of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, 734 Lee St., Des Plaines, reports that the Homes For Living Network, of which his firm is the exclusive Des Plaines affiliate member, has culminated 1973 with a number of record achievements which has increased his firm's capabilities in serving home buyers and sellers.

The HFL Network, a national marketing network of Realtors comprised of over 900 real estate offices, became the first such Realtor Network in 1973 to be represented in all 50 states and Puerto Rico. This feat was accomplished in August when American Realty, Bismarck, N. D., became the exclusive HFL member representative for that city.

"Having affiliated HFL members in over 6,000 communities means that Wm. L. Kunkel & Co. can facilitate transferring families' needs by directly contacting HFL members in other cities. At the same time with roughly one-third of transferees today moving across state lines, we continually assist persons moving to Des Plaines through HFL members in other cities assisting families moving to our area," Martin said.

The number of relocating families being referred between HFL members increased 25 per cent in 1973, which amounted to approximately $36 million in referral sales.

The Homes For Living magazine, the exclusive photo listing magazine of each HFL member, reached a combined monthly circulation in excess of 600,000 during the year. The magazine, which is exclusive for the Des Plaines area, depicts photos, prices and descriptions of homes available here. "This magazine means in the comfort of a family's living room, they can, whether moving across the street or across the nation, review the types and costs of homes available."

"And if moving out of town, we have Homes For Living magazines from all other members' communities. A family can just about preselect the home of their choice, and we'll immediately put them into contact with our Realtor member in the destination city," Martin said.

Village Square sales leader

Village Square Realtors named Millie Finis as sales and service leader for the month of September. This is the second time she has earned this award for the Palatine firm.

Millie and her family have been residents of Inverness for the past 12 years.

CHARLES J. CERMAK and mayor Robert Wilton of Antioch welcome Robert L. Zaun, president of Homefinders Realtors. Homefinders recently purchased Cermak's realty firm as the eighth Homefinders office in the northwest area. Cermak remains as the manager of the office.

Tops $2 million insurance mark

Joseph F. Geiger, Jr. of Arlington Heights, account executive with Alfred A. Eppel & Associates of Chicago, has passed a life insurance milestone with over $2 million of placed business in 1973.

Geiger represents the Eppel organization, which assists businesses and individuals in financial planning, in the northwest suburbs. He also captured first place honors in a recent national sales campaign and qualified for the company's President's Honor Club to be held in Acapulco, Mexico, this spring.

Joseph F. Geiger, Jr.

Geiger, also associated with the Pan American Life Insurance Co., recently attended an Institute of Insurance Marketing course at Louisiana State University.

Pingel appointed regional manager

Kurt W. Pingel of Arlington Heights has been appointed North Central regional manager of Perk Foods Co., Inc. It was announced by Vincent J. Kirby, chairman and chief executive officer.

Perk Foods Co. is a division of Liggett & Myers Inc. Pingel joins Perk Foods from the Pillsbury Co., Minneapolis, where he served in various sales management capacities, including Midwestern product manager and regional manager, Detroit. His last position was regional manager, Chicago.

Pingel received his B.S. degree from the University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Bolger salesmen attend classes

Bob Dalasky, Jim Dustan and John Lindsay of Bolger Realtors, Elk Grove Village, recently attended classes in Peoria sponsored by the Illinois Association of Realtors. The Realtors Institute of Illinois is a three-stage study course designed to increase the professional competence of the members of the real estate industry.

While Dalasky and Dustan were attending the Course I classes, their associate Lindsay was involved in the more advanced Course II work. The week-long schedule of educational meetings was concluded with a written examination.

Some of the courses scheduled to be taught were real estate finance, appraising, marketing, construction, law, advertising, taxes, ethics, condominiums and shopping centers.

Those who successfully complete all three courses receive the designation "C. R. I." (Graduate, Realtors Institute). Dale Hadaway, vice president of Bolger's Elk Grove office, received the C. R. I. designation last year.

ARE YOU LOSING A LOT OF HOT AIR?

If your furnace is working at top efficiency, but your home feels chilly and cold, do some snooping in your basement. Uninsulated ducts and pipes, carrying warm air from the furnace, can be leaking heat along the way. Check exposed pipes for air leaks, especially around the connecting joints. If you spot a leak, repair it immediately by wrapping the duct with cloth adhesive tape or low-cost fireproof insulation. You can buy the tape at any hardware or building supply store. Repairing air leaks costs only a few pennies and takes just minutes of your time. But you'll be amazed at the difference it makes in comfort and savings. Just as important, by preventing wasteful heat loss, you'll be doing your part to conserve precious energy.

REALCOA 'Tradesman'

Al Leindecker of Northlake, has been cited as REALCOA's (Realty Company of America) "Tradesman of the Month" for November for exceptional efficiency and productivity on-the-job. This monthly award is given to an employee of one of REALCOA's sub-contractors.

REALCOA initiated the "Tradesman of the Month" awards three years ago to promote and honor craftsmanship, efficiency and cooperation among tradesmen working on its projects.

Leindecker is employed as a concrete finisher with Zemon Concrete Corp., Palatine, and is working on the final phase of three and four-bedroom single-family homes in REALCOA's Steeple Run community near Naperville.

The special contribution made by tradesmen beyond what is normally expected is determined by REALCOA's construction superintendent on the basis of cooperation and craftsmanship. He then submits the individual tradesman for commendation and reward for service.

Leindecker received a multi-band duopower radio for being named "Tradesman of the Month," and his employer will receive a plaque commemorating the citation.

In addition, he, with 11 other tradesmen, will be eligible for a major annual award given to REALCOA's "Tradesmen of the Year" which will be presented at a banquet attended by Union representatives, municipal officials, members of the press and REALCOA officials.

Kokonis Realty to represent referral service

John G. Kokonis Realty, Mount Prospect, has been appointed exclusive representative in the northwest suburban area for Interstate Referral Service, Inc., a national real estate marketing firm with headquarters in St. Louis, Mo.

John G. Kokonis said, "Our Interstate Referral Service membership enables us to receive pre-information of families moving to the northwest suburbs from other parts of the nation. We can now mail these families a copy of our Handy House Hunter's Helper monthly photo booklet of homes we are offering for sale.

"This not only gives families moving here an understanding of construction and prices but also provides much greater exposure of homes we have listed for sale. Naturally, local buyers will also find our new services helpful because they can shop for a home easier and faster by picking up a free copy of our Handy House Hunter's Helper at any of the business firms in this area that are displaying it as a public service."

Interstate president Tom Malone in announcing the membership, stated, "We are indeed pleased to have John G. Kokonis Realty represent our program. John G. Kokonis and his staff have demonstrated the ability to be leaders in their professional field. Today the residential real estate business is a national one. Interstate Referral Service will broaden the scope of John G. Kokonis Realty company services to clients locally and nationally."

Becky Rogers leads sales

Village Square Realtors in Palatine announce Becky Rogers as sales and service leader for the month of November.

Becky Rogers

Becky has been with Village Square since its beginning. She and her family are residents of Winston Park in Palatine.

Schutz promoted

Joseph P. Schutz of Rolling Meadows has been promoted to vice president, management, at Arthur Rubloff & Co., Chicago-based realtors.

Suites open for leasing in Le ronde

A number of office suites are now available for leasing in the new circular courtyard Le ronde office building, which will be ready for occupancy in spring, announced Marv Kingdon, director of Commercial-Investment Division of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors.

Located at 950 Lee St., Le ronde is close to the business center of Des Plaines, the Chicago and North Western commuter station and just minutes from major highways, O'Hare International airport, many restaurants, hotels and industrial parks.

Designed by the architectural firm of Erickson & Stevens, A. I. A., the steel, wood and concrete building provides approximately 30,000 square feet of office space and open ground-level parking for 80 cars. All offices in the building face the 60-foot circular courtyard, which encompasses a free standing glass elevator and hanging plants and seats. Four plexiglass skylights in dome of building are surrounded by unusual rough sawed beams and decking.

For further information on leasing, contact: Commercial-Investment Division of Wm. L. Kunkel & Co., Realtors, 734 Lee St. in Des Plaines or telephone 298-5055.

Beat the gas shortage... and live like a millionaire!

This rambling millionaire's mansion is just one of the townhome clusters at Bright Oaks. You'll enjoy the beauty of spreading boughs of century old oak trees, giving you the best of suburban living in Cary. But how does that save on gas? Simple, at Bright Oaks you won't need to be a two car family anymore. You may not even need to be a 35 gallon a month driver. There's a town full of shopping, recreation, sports, and entertainment at your doorstep. And the Northwestern commuter trains are only minutes away.

You'll get a family membership at the exclusive Bright Oaks Club, with its lavish array of year-round activities, giant sized swimming pool, tennis courts, toboggan and sled areas and much more for your pleasure and leisure. And a professional staff tends to all exterior maintenance, so you'll have more free time to enjoy all those good times at the Club.

Visit Bright Oaks this weekend. Two, three and four bedroom townhome models are now on display.

Bright Oaks is located on Three Oaks Road, 1/2 mile north of downtown Cary. Take the Northwest Tollway (I-90) to Barrington Road Drive north to the Northwest Highway (Rt. 14). Take Rt. 14 west to Three Oaks Rd., then go east on Three Oaks to the models and display area. Open from 10 AM to 6 PM. Phone (312) 639-5555.

Controlled humidity increases comfort

There's more to assuring wintertime comfort in your home than just getting the heating system in good operating condition. One of the most important factors — one often overlooked by homeowners — is the level of humidity.

If the air in your home does not contain enough moisture, you may feel cold — even at 75 degrees. There are other problems, too. If the humidity level in your home is too low, cracks can appear in the plaster walls, furniture joints loosen, static electricity builds up, and members of the family may complain of dry, scratchy throats.

To understand the problem you're facing you must understand humidity and its effects. Simply stated, humidity is the amount of water vapor in the air. Relative humidity is the amount of water vapor the air is holding in relation to the amount it can hold at a given temperature.

As air is heated its capacity to hold moisture increases rapidly. 70 Degrees F air can hold about 22 times as much as 0 Degrees air. Because of this increased capacity, the air extracts moisture from any source it can, including your body.

If you've detected the symptoms of low humidity in your home, you should consider installing a humidifier — one that has the capacity to provide the moisture needed to maintain humidity at the proper level. The amount of humidity required in a home is dependent to a certain extent on the way it is constructed.

A well insulated house with vapor barriers and properly fitting storm doors and windows, may need only three gallons of additional moisture per day. A house of similar size but loosely constructed might have five times as many changes of air, and could require 15 or more gallons of added moisture in the same period.

When you get serious about buying a humidifier you should keep several important points in mind. You should know, for example, that there are installed and portable units. There are many advantages to installed units and most homeowners will wisely give them top preference. Installed units are available for use with any type of heating system. If you are a renter, however, you may want a portable unit.

Before deciding on the humidifier you want, check with various dealers on these five key points: capacity, control, operational efficiency, ease of maintenance, and ease of installation.

Capacity: A humidifier should be sized to maintain a relative humidity level of at least 35 per cent throughout your home. Check the unit's capacity in relation to the size of your home.

Control: The on-off action of a humidifier should be controlled automatically, just like that of a furnace. A humidistat should constantly measure the humidity level and control the operation of the humidifier.

Operational efficiency: A good humidifier is designed so that working parts are not affected by water which can rust, corrode or deposit minerals. It provides humidity in vapor form so that no water droplets containing minerals can deposit residue in your home.

Ease of maintenance: Unless you are willing to sacrifice easy maintenance for price, you should select a humidifier that needs infrequent cleaning and no filling. Many humidifiers will not operate correctly unless they are regularly cleaned of mineral deposits. Some units, however, are equipped with drains to flush water minerals out of them. They normally require maintenance only once or twice a year.

Ease of installation: Some humidifiers require greater installation time than others, leading to added costs. Be sure to ask for an installation cost estimate before you place your order.

An informative booklet on relative humidity in the home and how to choose a humidifier is available free of charge. Send your request for "Facts About Humidification" to Research Products Corp., Madison, Wis. 53701.

Prudential honors Francis Caffrey

Cash awards totaling $225 were presented recently to Palatine resident Francis X. Caffrey, CLU, by his employer, the Prudential Insurance Co., in recognition of his achievements in business education.

At an honors luncheon in the Prudential Building, Caffrey also received recognition from the Institute of the Life Office Management Assn.

Making the presentations were William Ingram, senior vice president in charge of Prudential's Mid-America operations, and Joseph M. Savage, vice president.

Caffrey, who is training and services consultant in the company's Mid-America home office, was honored for passing three advanced-course examinations under the LOMA Institute's nationwide insurance education program this year.

In addition to his continuing LOMA Institute studies as well as serving as an instructor in the basic LOMA courses at Prudential, he has earned the designation of Chartered Life Underwriter, awarded by the American College of Life Underwriters.

A Chartered Life Underwriter since 1970, Caffrey has for more than two years taught CLU courses at Harper College, Palatine.

WW II veteran

Q — Are World War II veterans eligible for pensions? I'm 65, and my wife and I need more than the $3,000 annual income we now live on. I served in World War II, but I wasn't wounded.

A — Any 65-year-old veteran who served a minimum of 90 days and received an other than dishonorable discharge is considered permanently and totally disabled for pension purposes. As a married man with your income, you could be eligible for $69 per month pension at current rates.

Q — Is it true that veterans no longer have to apply for certificates of eligibility for education and training benefits? I hear that the Veterans Administration mails them to veterans so that they no longer have to apply in person. Because I didn't apply when I got out two years ago, will VA send mine through the mail?

A — The new system is keyed to the list of discharges now being furnished by the Department of Defense. Because you were discharged before the automatic system was established, it will be necessary for you to file application for your benefits at the local VA office.

Common sense can save energy

With the nation facing an energy crisis conserving fuel has become a matter of national necessity. But there is no need for drastic measures. Common sense procedures which a few efficient, economy minded homeowners have been practicing for years already are all that is needed.

Even without a fuel shortage, the increasing costs of utilities make these practices important for economic reasons. You have to conserve to make up for the increase in costs.

While many people are getting around to making sure the lights are turned off in empty rooms, how about doing the same for the heat as well? If there are rooms unused for much of the day, close the registers and close the doors.

IF YOU HAVE a fireplace, use it when you can. When it is not in use, close the damper or block the fireplace to keep warm air from going up the chimney.

Lock windows that are closed to seal them better. Renew weatherstripping wherever it is worn. Use storm doors and keep them tightly latched. Close draperies at night but keep them open during the day when the sun is warm.

Turn your thermostat down at night but not more than about six degrees. Any greater amount will require so much extra fuel to get the temperature back where you want it that savings are cancelled out.

Keep furnace filters clean or replaced. A dirty filter slows down the movement of air. Regularly vacuum heat registers in all rooms for the same reason.

INSTALL (or have installed) a humidifier. With adequate moisture in the air you will be comfortable at a lower temperature.

Seek out drafts and install weatherstripping where necessary. Pick a pleasant day to check caulking on the outside of your house — around door and window frames, where siding meets foundation, inside corners where walls meet.

You can cut down your electric bill considerably by keeping just a few things in mind:

Fluorescent lights use less electricity than the tungsten bulbs. A 40-watt fluorescent lamp produces as much or more light than a 100 watt tungsten bulb.

A LARGE LIGHT bulb provides more light than several small bulbs of equivalent wattage.

Dimmer light switches are not only esthetically pleasing, they save electricity.

Cleaning glass globes on ceiling fixtures is cheaper than putting in larger bulbs.

Transistorized television and radio sets use less power than the older tube type. Color TV sets consume more power than black and white.

WASH FULL LOADS when you use a dishwasher or automatic washing machine. The power consumption is the same as for a small load. Keep filters on clothes dryers clean.

Keep the condenser coils on back or bottom of refrigerator and freezer clean for greater efficiency. If you do not have automatic defrosting check the amount of frost that has built up.

Defrost often. A heavy buildup of frost is like insulation and makes a refrigerator work harder.

Many women draw on own fund

Nearly half of all retired women are getting monthly Social Security retirement checks on their own work records, according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security office.

Twenty years ago, only 5 per cent of all women 65 and older were getting monthly benefits on their own records.

"On her own work record, the working women can retire at 62 with reduced Social Security payments. Or she can wait until she's 65 and get full monthly benefits," Thoresen said. "But, if she's entitled to higher benefits as a wife on her husband's work record, she can choose to get the higher payment."

Women who reach 62 this year can get monthly retirement checks after 3½ years or more of work under Social Security, the district manager said.

Social security work credit is measured in calendar quarters — January-March, April-June, July-September, or October-December.

Social security and you

Working women get credit for a quarter of work if they are paid $50 or more in a quarter for work covered by Social Security, Thoresen said.

"Quarters or work credit help to determine a woman's eligibility for Social Security retirement payments — but they do not affect the amount of her monthly check," Thoresen said. "The benefit amount is based on her average earnings in work covered by Social Security over a period of years."

Eat sensibly and stay off the fad diets

I have a big problem and that is my weight. I went to five doctors and all they say is to cut down. My problem is this. I can't take diet pills at all, and I'm scared to anyway. I have tried Dr. Atkins' diet faithfully and it resulted in weakness. I tried Dr. Stillman's and it resulted in my being hungry for certain foods. I know I do not need a large amount of food or even want it. My body seems to crave my goods, nothing in particular, just food. I gain weight real fast. I would appreciate any advice.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

You need to learn something about nutrition. Those fad diets are not going to help you and may make you sick. Fatigue is a frequent complaint when people cut down on their calories too much.

As a general guideline, I would suggest that you cut out sweets such as syrups, sugar and foods that contain them. You can continue to eat leafy vegetables, carrots, radishes, tomatoes and fresh fruit in reasonable amounts. Limit your bread to four slices a day. Eliminate all excess fat, including butter and margarine. Use lean meat, lean poultry, such as the white meat or the breast without the skin, lean fish such as flounder, codfish and sole. Use fortified skim milk (about a quart a day) or uncreamed cottage cheese. Do not use fat in cooking.

You should be careful not to cut down your calories to the point that you are fatigued. That can be harmful.

A lot of fad diets can work because the person eats fewer calories. This applies to the low carbohydrate diets including the Atkins' diet.

PEOPLE DON'T realize that a pound of separable lean of round steak only contains 600 calories. That is why it is good for a diet, but the end result is eating a lot of food without getting too many calories. Some of these diets upset the body chemistry so much that the person completely loses his appetite.

Despite public claims to the contrary by some of the diet gurus, your weight gain or loss depends solely on how many calories your body uses and how many calories you eat, unless you are sick. An untreated diabetic, for example, may lose a lot of sugar calories in the urine.

To a sensible diet program I would suggest you add a daily exercise program. You can start with walking. Build into your life style at least a mile and a half walk each day. Two or even three miles would be better. And, add to your program some strength-type exercises, such as the calisthenics. This does mean knee bends, pushups, situps, and the like.

Then, don't expect miracles to happen. It should take several months to lose very much weight. It comes off about as slowly as it goes on.

Above all, don't overdo it so much you feel tired or ill. We all need food to feel our best. When we feel well, it is easier to be active and that helps build a healthy program to stay slim as opposed to the starved and skinny or feast and fat cycle so many people go through.

Lee A. Dexter of Chicago was recently appointed aquatics director at Wright State University, Dayton, Ohio.

Dexter received his B.S. and M.Ed. in physical education and guidance and counseling in 1963 and 1967, respectively, at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio. He resides on Claydon Drive in Dayton, with his wife and son. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Dexter of Arlington Heights.

Transactional analysis parley sign up still open

Registration is still open for a transactional analysis workshop led by Thomas Harris, author of the bestseller, "I'm OK — You're OK," at Harper College, Jan. 18-20.

The workshop co-sponsored by Harper's community counseling center and TA Associates of Arlington Heights, will include lectures and demonstrations of the principles and application of transactional analysis, a theory of interpersonal relationships originated by Eric Berne, author of "Games People Play," and "What Do You Say After You Say Hello." Portions of the workshop will apply the theory to marriage and family relationships.

About 400 applications have been received for the workshop. Applicants may register by mail or at the door.

The workshop will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Jan. 18, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Jan. 19, and 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Jan. 20. The fee is $38 per person, but senior citizens, students and spouses of full-fee participants will be charged $26. Registration is being taken by TA Associates, 2175A S. Tonne Rd., Arlington Heights, 439-4187.

Interfaith workshop at Beth Tikvah Jan. 23

The Sisterhood of Beth Tikvah Congregation is sponsoring an interfaith workshop Jan. 23 at the temple, 275 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

Included in the program are sessions on Holidays and Ceremonies and Religious Education at Beth Tikvah. Luncheon will be served, followed by a talk about Israel to be given by Rabbi Hillel Gamoran.

Neighboring churches have been invited to attend. The cost is $1.25 and reservations may be made by writing to Mrs. Barry Demovsky at the temple.

High-level double intoxicating

Some negative-double devotees carry it forward to cover all overcalls. Others go through a fairly sensible two or three-spade limit.

Of course, those who say they double any bid negatively, point out that the higher the bid the more likely that partner will leave it in. These high-level negative doubles certainly liven up the game, although it is doubtful which side benefits from them.

North and South were playing negative doubles through three spades so when West made his preemptive three spade overcall of South's opening club bid North stuck in a negative double.

Not that we should really blame negative doubles for his action. North had barely enough for a negative double at the one level. His three level double had to be close to suicidal.

On the other hand if he didn't have that toy to play with he would have passed. West would have played three spades and been down one after losing two clubs, two diamonds and a spade.

As it was, South bid four hearts in response to his partner's request. When it got around to East, he doubled. West opened the ace of spades and continued with the queen which East ruffed. After this start East still made two trump

The search for mental health

Most women able to deal emotionally with abortion

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, a fully accredited 150-bed psychiatric hospital widely known for its intensive programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Twenty years ago doctors were quite concerned with whether women were emotionally capable of having abortions. But times have changed. Abortions have become legalized and widespread and society has become more accepting.

New 85 to 90 per cent of women having abortions can deal with it quite effectively, according to Dr. Cornelia Morrison Friedman of the Boston Hospital for Women. "Of course," she added, "they have upset feelings — 75 per cent feel some sort of depression, regret, feelings of loss. However, these almost always clear up within six to seven months. Very few women have severe difficulties, and these usually have mental health problems anyway."

Dr. Friedman, an instructor of psychiatry at the Harvard Medical School, believes that for every woman having an abortion, counseling is a must. In her own consultations with these women, while she does not recommend whether or not to have an abortion, she guides the women to talk about any conflicts they may have and helps them sort out their thoughts.

"OCCASIONALLY I may tell a woman if I believe she really wants to have the baby and I will recommend having it, but she must make the decision herself. If a woman's decision is already made, I will make her explore both sides of the question so that she is totally aware of all the possible consequences," Dr. Friedman said.

"It's also interesting that a woman's socioeconomic class affects her ability to decide to have an abortion and her emotional tolerance of it. Those in deprived economic circumstances, for instance, are very accepting of abortion. A woman with, say, five or six children and no man to support them can make the decision easily. A woman with a husband making $20,000 a year and two children is very undecided," Dr. Friedman said. "It seems you have to be able to literally afford indecision."

"Another interesting observation is it's less and less true that religion or ethnic background makes any difference in the ease of making the decision." In fact, Dr. Friedman cited a recent study that showed 50 per cent of women in the hospital who had abortions were Catholic.

"TEEN-AGERS ALSO ARE changing their minds about abortion. Five years ago they rejected it, but now more and more pregnant girls under 16 choose and accept abortion without difficulty."

Dr. Friedman observed, too, that unmarried pregnant women who have the baby and give it up for adoption frequently experience emotional difficulties for years and years afterwards thinking about the baby as opposed to the minor incidence of difficulties with women who abort.

Dr. Friedman believes the husbands in abortion cases have been neglected in the past. "The couple must decide, because the baby belongs to both of them," she said. "Husbands especially should be included in abortion evaluations if one or the other parent doesn't want the abortion. I expect in the future husbands not only more often will request to be included, but will be asked by the attending physician to come and talk it out."

From diapers to railroad cars

This company can help you solve any 'weighty' problem

by BRESTON MCGRAW

DALLAS — What is the easiest way to count 150 diapers in one second? The answer is, weigh them.

A scale also may be the only way to count diapers that fast. A diaper rental company which asked S. H. Raskin to develop a scale that would count was using five girls to do nothing but count, and they were falling behind.

Raskin and D. W. Eaton of Sands Measurement Corp. have developed scales that will weigh anything from a postage stamp, 4.5 milligrams, to a railroad car loaded with cement, 400,000 pounds.

WHEN OFFICIALS of the diaper company asked Raskin and Eaton to build a diaper counting scale, they went to the company's plant to look for anything that might cause the weight to be inaccurately converted into numbers.

"We knew that a new diaper weighs more than a diaper that has been used and washed a number of times," Raskin said.

"But we also found that the company was very conscientious about putting new diapers into service in a uniform mix with old ones.

"The mix was so uniform that the difference between weights of old and new ones wasn't a problem. Our machine would count up to 200 diapers before occasionally counting one over or one under."

The Sands diaper scale-counter and more than 30 other company patents all stem from a railroad car scale Raskin and Eaton developed about three years ago.

THAT SCALE would accurately weigh freight cars as they rattled along at 10 miles an hour. Furthermore, it could practically be slipped under the tracks without excavation or foundation.

The scale and others made subsequently by Sands are all electronic. The general operating principle is not exclusive.

"Strain gages" — devices about three-sixteenths of an inch square and as thick as a sheet of paper — are the hearts of such scales and can be bought in the open market.

Raskin said the way the strain gages are used in load cells is the difference. Raskin and Eaton developed a load cell that ignores all but vertical force. It ignores any additional force that might be exerted horizontally on an object being weighed, say, for instance, by the wind.

The object being weighed exerts a force on a steel beam — minute in some cases, a slab of heavy steel in others — and causes it to bend.

THE BENDING beam exerts pressure on the strain gage. The bending gage changes a voltage and the voltage change translates into pounds, or ounces, or, as in the case of the diaper machine, into numbers.

Raskin, a mechanical engineer, and Eaton, an electrical engineer, also take into account the peculiarities of anything they develop a scale for.

In building a machine to count and weigh milk cartons as they were filled in a dairy, they had to determine how much the milk sloshed in the cartons as they passed the filling machine at the rate of 150 a minute.

Camping, hit by energy shortage, faces a cloudy future

by WILLIAM D. LAFFLER
NEW YORK (UPI) — "Camping is the best thing that ever happened to the energy crisis."

This was one of the observations made by Charles Chambers of Ozone Park, N.Y., while he was manning the National Campers and Hikers Assn. booth at the International Camper and Trailer Show at Madison Square Garden in December.

"Let's look at it this way," Chambers said. "If you live in a four or five-bedroom house, you turn off the electricity when you go camping. Think of the energy you save. At your campsite you don't waste energy. Maybe you use a can of Coleman fuel for lighting, cooking and heating every three days. The only problem is getting enough gasoline to get to the campsite."

EVEN SO, THE atmosphere was gloomy in Madison Square Garden's cavernous exhibition hall where camping shows have been produced annually the last five years by Jerry Mullaney.

"Attendance is 70 per cent off this year," Mullaney said as he looked at the rows of shiny new pickup truck campers, trailers, motor homes and tent campers. "This is the first year that I have lost money."

Exhibits on display ranged from comparatively inexpensive tent campers to luxurious motor homes ranging up to $33,000.

In previous years the exhibition hall was packed with prospective customers looking for bargains. This December there were only a few stragglers.

MOST OF THE salesmen at the show were idle, sipping coffee and chatting with others in the same fix.

"There is no noticeable trend yet," one salesman said. "Some people are buying but they are getting smaller campers."

"Everyone seems to be taking a wait-and-see attitude," another salesman said. "They are worried about the energy crisis. Some of them believe gasoline will be rationed or in short supply and it would be foolish at this time to buy a new recreational vehicle. Others just can't seem to believe that there is a gasoline shortage."

AT ANOTHER recreational vehicle show in Louisville, Ky., only a few weeks earlier, there was an air of dismay and some exhibitors who had rented space failed to show up. One had stopped production of recreational vehicles.

Manufacturers of gas-guzzling, self-contained motor homes seem to have been hit the hardest by the energy crisis.

Winnebago, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of motor homes, was operating at peak production late in 1972, employing 3,600 persons at its Forest City, Iowa, headquarters plant. The payroll dropped to 3,400 early in 1973 and now is at 1,600. Four hundred were laid off in November, as customer demand dropped. Winnebago officials voiced optimism that the firm will recover and is considering diversifying production to farm equipment, intracity buses and component parts.

Airstream Corp., manufacturer of luxurious, streamlined camping trailers, has three plants — at Jackson Center, Ohio, with 500 employees; at Versailles, Ohio, with 200, and at Cerritos, Calif., with 300. These plants closed in December, but plans call for reopening them in January.

CHARLES MANCHESTER, president of Airstream, said the Versailles plant will begin production of a new motor home similar to the Winnebago, "which shows we have confidence in the market place."

He said the corporation's inventories are not as high as last year but that it is aiming at a fairly high production for the spring market.

"From as much valid information as we can get, this fuel crisis is a highly emotional reaction," Manchester told UPI. "We feel the spring will show a typical recreational market — though certainly not booming."

Manchester declined to make any specific forecasts "because we need some clear-cut information from Washington" on the extent of the crisis.

"There will always be a market for recreational vehicles," he said. "I don't think they're going to say you can't have fuel for recreational purposes."

EDWARD H. TUTUN, president of the Recreational Vehicles Division of W. R. Grace and Co., which is responsible for the Fan and Shasta lines of trailer products, acknowledged there will be uncertainties in 1974.

"1974 will be a difficult one for the industry," Tutun said. "There will doubtless be a major weeding out of companies less well-financed than we are."

"As a result, I see the industry becoming a big company business in the not too distant future. Growing consumer demands for better designed, better engineered and more economical recreational vehicles will bring about a reshaping of our industry. Over the long term, there are great opportunities for us. Shorter work weeks, longer vacations, higher salaries. These are all factors that will contribute to the continuing growth of our industry."

Tutun said there could be an industry-wide sales decline of as much as 40 per cent.

"Motor home sales will be affected more than travel trailers, which is fortunate for us, since travel trailers are the major portion of our business," Tutun said.

BACK TO CHARLES Chambers at the booth in Madison Square Garden.

"It may be that campers will have to stay within a 100-mile radius of home," Chambers said. "You can find many campgrounds within 100 miles of cities. There are 33 of them within a 100-mile radius of New York."

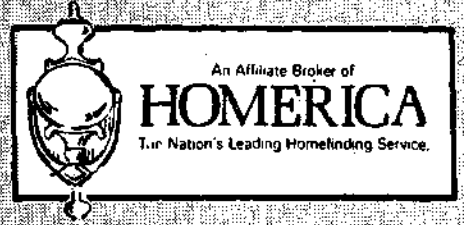

Kampgrounds of America, KOA, the largest campground network in the United States, is studying marketing efforts to reach campers closer to home.

"Business has been good at southern states KOA campgrounds this winter," James R. Graff of Billings, Mont., a spokesman for the company, said. "We're not too concerned right now. We don't share the doom and gloom you read about."

Graff said KOA is assisting its franchisees in promotions aimed at persons who live near the campgrounds. It is suggesting the franchisees consider such attractions as swimming pools, hiking trails and miniature golf courses.

Some KOA operators already are offering free Sunday camping because of the Sunday gas station closings.

The almanac

Today is Thursday, Jan. 10, the 10th day of 1974 with 355 to follow.

The moon is approaching its last quarter.

There technically is no morning star. The evening stars are Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and Mercury.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

Early American patriot Ethan Allen was born Jan. 10, 1738.

On this day in history:
In 1861, Florida seceded from the Union.

In 1920, the League of Nations came into being as the Treaty of Versailles went into effect.

In 1925, Mrs. Miriam "Ma" Ferguson was sworn in as governor of Texas, the nation's second woman state chief executive. Five days earlier, Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross had become governor of Wyoming.

In 1970, a nursing home fire killed 31 in Marietta, Ohio.

A thought for the day:
French writer Jean Jacques Rousseau said, "What wisdom can you find that is greater than kindness?"

ARLINGTON REALTY

ARLINGTON REALTY

ARLINGTON REALTY

THE SERIOUS BUSINESS of learning is reflected in the face of Colleen Carlson, a pre-schooler attending the Barrington Montessori School where DeEtte Fezler is pursuing a year of internship before she is certified as a directress. DeEtte presents materials in a simple, clear, uncluttered way — then retreats to let the child learn through his own spontaneous experimentation and imitation.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

TALKING INFORMALLY with a group of northwest suburban women about equal rights, Mrs. Tai-Young Lee, Korea's first woman lawyer, checks with her interpreter on what was said. Mrs. Lee has been touring the United States learning how women here are going about procuring equality under the law.

Woman's role changing in Korea

by PAT ADAM

American women have no monopoly on the struggle for equality. It's occurring everywhere including Korea where the foremost leader is Mrs. Tai-Young Lee, wife, mother, grandmother, teacher, lawyer and judge.

Mrs. Lee has been visiting the United States learning first-hand how federal agencies, law schools, legal aid centers, women's organizations and volunteer groups are working to assure women their legal rights. Her own interest at the moment is procuring legal rights for Korean women, particularly the poor.

As Korea's first woman attorney, its first woman judge and now director of the Legal Aid Center for Family Relations in Seoul, she views the struggle for women's legal rights not "as waging a struggle against men" but "as a whole-some demand for conditions enabling a woman to be a real better half."

THIS WEEK Mrs. Lee visited the Chicago area where one of her stops was in Arlington Heights. She shared her concern with a group of women at a morning reception Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Jackie Gallagher, active as an independent Democrat.

Montessori system

The teacher is part of the background

by ELEANOR RIVES

Rose Huck of Mount Prospect never intended to be a teacher. She didn't believe in traditional methods of teaching.

"When I found out about Montessori, it triggered the whole thing," she exclaimed. Rose is the directress (that's Montessorian for Certified Teacher) of Montessori Adventure to Learning, which meets in Our Redeemer Lutheran Church in Prospect Heights. This is her first year in the role of directress.

DeEtte Fezler of Des Plaines read about Montessori methods when she was in high school. Working in Children's Theater in her sophomore year at the University of Wisconsin, she began researching alternative teaching methods and renewed her acquaintance with Montessori.

"IT WAS EXCITING to find a system of education centered around the entire human being," she said. DeEtte is in her internship year at the Barrington Montessori School on Clover Hill Lane.

"A Montessori teacher is unique," explained Mrs. Rosemarie Johnson, owner of the school (administrator, certified directress and a nurse, too). "She is not there to teach, only to promote the interaction between the child and the learning environment. The child teaches himself. He is not a passive receptacle as in traditional types of teaching. He is a self-motivated learner."

"A really gregarious person wouldn't be happy working here," she added. "The goal of a Montessori teacher is to become a part of the background!"

As a "learning" school, Montessori is distinct from a "play" school, or a baby-sitting service, or any type of pre-school center where the main purpose is child care.

ACCORDING TO Dr. Urban H. Fleege, director of the Midwest Montessori Teacher Training Center in Chicago and a child psychology professor at DePaul University, the purpose of a Montessori school is to help each child develop within himself the foundation for a lifetime of creative learning. Surrounded with specially trained teachers and uniquely designed learning materials and apparatus, he is given freedom to work out problems by himself, and taught the inner discipline to control his own behavior.

At Midwest Center, a college graduate begins work for an American Montessori Society diploma and Montessori Teaching Certificate by attending a 6-week summer session at Rosary College in River Forest. A full school year of internship in an approved Montessori facility follows.

IF DEETTE FEZLER is typical of the 80 or so young women (older women, and men, too) who emerge each summer from the program at Rosary, no wonder Montessori is growing in popularity. Quiet, gentle, soft-spoken, impeccably groomed, DeEtte gracefully embodies the good manners and habits the Montessori system seeks to instill in the children — inner discipline that makes true freedom for learning possible.

During her year of internship, DeEtte is working directly under a certified Montessori teacher, assuming more and more responsibility as the years progress. She must visit three other Montessori schools and one non-Montessori, observe for a full period and write a report on each one.

SHE MUST RETURN to the training center for three-day "Institutes" four times during the year, bringing with her each time a complete notebook, one for each of the four areas of Montessori: practical life, sensorial, mathematics and language. She must write two essays and one term paper for the Institute, design two exercises in the sensorial area and share these ideas with the other trainees.

In addition, she must keep a weekly journal, a record of her personal observations of the children and do a case study on one particular child. One or more representatives from Midwest will then come to the school and observe DeEtte in action before recommending her to be AMS certified.

ROSE HUCK had much the same training but at the Twin cities Montessori Training Center in St. Paul. She, too, interned at the Barrington school, traveling back to St. Paul for each of the Institute sessions. Now, at Montessori Adventure to Learning, in her first year as directress, she has adjusted to a whole new set of children, has become accustomed to being the "head" and loves her job.

"During internship, you are given a great deal of opportunity to act as a directress," she said. "The practical experience eases the transition to full directress."

She pointed out one difficult aspect of internship — that of finances. The current tuition for a summer session, plus internship, is $1,350. The student may be paid as little as $100 a month during internship.

"If you are on your own, you really need a second job," she said.

AT BARRINGTON Montessori School,

there are three certified AMS teachers, one interne and two classroom assistants.

Said Mrs. Johnson, "When I recruit trainees, I look for a quiet, graceful, well-groomed and neatly dressed person with pleasant physical characteristics. She must be an example to the children. She must not be a substitute mother or a person in need of anything from the children — like affection, for example. She is not here to satisfy her needs, but the children's needs."

She added that the entire Montessori movement depends upon its teachers, and voiced the hope that all teachers go into training with the idea of eventually opening their own schools.

"It's an expensive proposition, though," she said thoughtfully. "A really good school costs a tremendous amount of money — several thousand dollars for furnishings and basic imported Montessori materials."

DR. MARIA MONTESSORI, founder of the movement, believed that a child in a proper learning environment will explore his surroundings through his senses and organize his experiences, automatically developing patterns and sets for subsequent learning, thus experiencing the excitement of learning by his own effort and choice.

"It's normal for a child to want to read at three," said the directress in Rosemarie Johnson. "A child of that age is crazy for phonics, but he wants to proceed at his own rate. Parents must not pressure. Montessori is pressure-less."

The nurse in Mrs. Johnson added, "Montessori is the best possible mental health solution to the world's ills. One must begin with the child. By the time he's an adult, it is too late."

Montessori offers training to parent or professional

In 1973, the U.S. Office of Child Development estimated that 23,000 new preschool specialists would be needed each year for the next eight years to staff preschool centers in the United States.

At present there are approximately 60 Montessori schools in Illinois. They are staffed by certified teachers, associate teachers, interns (teacher trainees), and classroom assistants.

One well-known teacher training center in the Chicago area, approved by the American Montessori Society, is the Midwest Montessori Teacher Training Center. It offers summer sessions on the campus of Rosary College, River Forest, for college graduates who wish to attain an AMS Diploma and National Montessori Teacher's Certificate and for non-college grads who wish to earn a Montessori Associate Teacher's Certificate.

IN ADDITION there are other training workshops and preschool training programs for parents, para-professionals and Head Start staff, plus advanced training for Montessori teachers.

For information and tuition rates, readers may write to Midwest Montessori Teacher Training Center, 1010 W. Chicago Ave., Chicago 60622.

Information regarding the Seton system of Montessori training, an AMS approved two-year program, may be obtained by writing to Seton Montessori School, 5723 Virginia, Clarendon Hills, 60514.

Parents and teachers who wish simply to acquaint themselves with the principles of the Montessori approach to teaching may be interested in enrolling in an eight-week continuing education course at Harper College. Registration is now under way for the next session, starting March 25 and held on Monday evenings. Further information may be obtained by calling the college's Continuing Education Office, 397-3000, ext. 301.

rights, if there is divorce, the children remain with the father. The wife gets only a small amount of alimony, usually in a lump sum. Property also belongs to the husband.

However, Mrs. Lee said, there is a great difference with the younger generation. Couples share more in the responsibilities of the home and women are encouraged to enter the professions as well as other employment. The couples still need parental approval of their marriage.

MANY WOMEN work in factories and as maids, which in Korea has status, Mrs. Lee said. For those unable to obtain an education, employment in someone's home is the only work open to them. Girls know how to perform most household tasks by the time they have completed their compulsory schooling.

Few scholarships are available to women, but Mrs. Lee expressed interest in improving that situation and said some organizations are working toward providing them.

Korean women still consider themselves inferior to men, she said, but more men are realizing they must utilize woman-power to achieve what they want for their country.

Mrs. Lee was surprised to learn that American women do not enjoy complete legal equality under the U. S. Constitution and that an amendment (ERA) is necessary to achieve that equality. Present to explain the fight in Illinois were Reps. Eugenia Chapman, Democrat, and Virginia Macdonald, Republican, both Arlington Heights residents and active supporters of ERA.

MRS. LEE'S HUSBAND is a member of the Korean Congress and leader of the opposition party. He encouraged her to pursue her law studies when it became permissible after 1945 for women to enter law. She reared three daughters and a son while working for her law degree which she obtained in 1949 from Seoul National University, the first woman in Korea to do so.

Since then she has continued her studies, taking her master's and her Ph.D. in law from Seoul University and an LL.D. from Ewha Woman's University from which she originally graduated in home economics. She also studied at Southern Methodist University in Dallas on a State Department grant in 1950.

A specialist in family relations law, she has written a number of publications in this field.

"College Today . . . Getting In, Staying In, Paying For It," will be the workshop Tuesday, Feb. 19, from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Registration is $3.

"Open Marriage . . . A New Concept For A Traditional Relationship," will be the program Friday, March 8, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Registration is $6 including lunch.

FOURTH ON THE series is "What Society Eats," to be held Friday, March 22, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Cost is $6 including lunch.

"Tale of Two Mothers," is the Tuesday, April 2, program 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Registration is $3.

Last in the series is "You and Your Money" Friday, May 3, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Child care is available for the workshops held during the day. Interested persons may call Doe Hentschel, coordinator of women programs, for further information at 397-3000, extension 230.

wedding Sally wore an Empire gown of ivory velvet made by her mother. Her Belgian lace veil, an heirloom in the groom's family, was held in place by a Camelot headpiece. Her handmade needlepoint shoes were designed by the groom's mother. Ivory roses and baby's breath with variegated holly and ivory streamers completed her bridal ensemble.

Patricia Dillon, Ridgewood, N.J., was maid of honor, and Gloria Rout, Louisville, Ky., the groom's sister; Martha Hawthorne, Mexico; and Carolyn Finney, Winnetka, were bridesmaids. All wore garnet velvet Empire gowns with garnet bow and holly headpieces. They carried Garnet roses and white spider mums with holly.

RANDALL E. BROWN, Denver, Colo., was best man, and ushers were the couple's brothers, James N. Hawthorne, Mexico, and Mark H. Spohr, Cincinnati; Guilford L. Parsons, Olympia Fields; Robert M. Miller, Wheaton; and Donald Eich, LaGrange.

A dinner reception for 100 guests was held at the Sheraton Walden Inn, Schaumburg.

A '73 graduate of DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., Sally is now employed as a designer for David D. Cook Publishing Co., Elgin. Her bridegroom, a '71 graduate of DePauw, is a sales representative with the chemical division of Borden, Inc.

Jewish women meet to probe legal wrongs to children

"Light up their world and yours" is the theme of the 80th anniversary of the founding of the National Council of Jewish Women (NCJW) to be held Monday, Jan. 14, 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. at the Chicago Circle Center Building, Room 324, Circle Campus, University of Illinois, 750 S. Halsted St., Chicago. Registration, including lunch, is $5.

This meeting is part of a continuing nationwide study into the Juvenile Justice System, to correct the injustices inflicted by the legal system on the troubled children in our society.

NCJW has worked for social reform for 80 years both in the community and on the national scene. Its 100,000 members are committed to a three-pronged program of community service, social action and education, working to meet the needs of children, the elderly and the disadvantaged.

"Light up their world and yours" is the Council's effort to help bring the Juvenile Justice System out of the dark ages and into the light and realities of the 20th century. Members and prospective members are invited to make reservations to attend this meeting by calling 298-6183.

Offer car pools for Greenerfields

Recognizing the gas shortage may create transportation problems for some students attending Greenerfields Unlimited, the continuing education center in Northfield, school personnel have offered to help arrange car pools among students attending the winter semester beginning Jan. 28.

Eighteen classes are being offered Monday through Friday mornings and Monday through Thursday afternoons, and two weekend workshops are scheduled in March. In addition, this semester's weekday workshop scheduled for Tuesday mornings, will explore "Coping With Change."

The Tuesday workshop will consist of six sessions from 10 a.m. to noon, beginning Jan. 29. It will explore the myths and realities of contemporary life, the increased speed of change and attempts to cope or inability to cope with rapid change. The first session, "The End of the American Dream," will be conducted by Dr. Charles Barber, associate professor of contemporary European history, Northwestern University.

OTHER WORKSHOP sessions are "Change and The Sexual Myth," conducted by Dr. Paul Bohannon, professor of Social science, Northwestern; "Changing Values," led by The Rev. Davis L. Barker, counselor at St. David's Hospice, Glenview; "Change and the Family," directed by psychotherapist Regina Rosestein; "Changing Ideas About God," led by Dr. Russell Becker, minister, Glenview Union Church; and "Dialogue with the Future," conducted by Dr. Bohannon.

Among the 18 weekly courses scheduled are "TA in Practice," "Ongoing Writers Workshop," "Historical Neurotics," "Existentialism: Challenge and Choice in Contemporary Life," Mondays. Tuesday's classes include "Initial Investigations into Sculpture" to be taught by sculptress Lee Schilleroff in her Wilmette studio, and "Transitions."

Wednesday's offerings are "Meditation and Psychic Energies," "Golden Oldies," "Estate Planning for Women," "Mysticism-East and West," "Cold Wars and Hot Wars" and "Collecting Art for Investment."

Classes Thursday include a "Gestalt Workshop Series," "Studies in Modern Greek Literature," "Parent Effectiveness Training" and "Transactional Analysis." The week will conclude with

"Women's Approach to Wall Street" and "Salon for Seasoned Amateur Painters."

GREENERFIELDS UNLIMITED, a not-for-profit continuing education center, offers an informal and diverse educational program for women who want to explore and learn without being confronted with tests, grades or credit commitments. The school is held in a converted apartment where the kitchen serves as an office and gathering place for coffee and after class conversation. For many students it serves as a springboard to additional formal education; for others, it supplies the mental gymnastics they need in their day to day life.

Registrations will be taken until classes fill. Early registrations are encouraged. Fees for courses range from $30 to $70. Students are requested to indicate their interest in a car pool the week prior to Jan. 28. Brochures and registration information are available from Greenerfields Unlimited, 316 Hupp Road, Northfield, or by calling 446-0525.

Next on the agenda

JEWISH WOMEN

Humidity lures silverfish

Dear Dorothy: I live in an apartment and am always alert for stray insects. Lately, I've been finding silverfish in the bathtub. I'm certain they can't come through the drain and I've sealed all the other openings, including the collars around the pipes that lead into the bathroom. Yet they're still around. Any ideas as to how they get in? And how to get rid of them? — Marcia Bottomley

John C. Paffister, entomologist at the American Museum of Natural History, huddled over our bewilderment. He said silverfish come in just as other insects do. In addition to food (cereals, and so forth), silverfish also like glue and starch and come (like roaches) in grocery boxes or just wander through the door. Mr. Paffister said they are attracted to bathrooms by the humidity and get caught because once they slip into the smooth bathtub they can't get out. The Department of Agriculture experts recommend thorough vacuuming, cleaning under sinks and in bathrooms, and spraying with chlordane, lindane, ronnel or malathion.

Dear Dorothy: I've removed ballpoint ink stains from washable materials with a few drops each of ammonia and lemon juice.—Mrs. A. O'Bryan

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: My way of making potato pancakes might help Nicole Braude, who was distressed because the grated potato turned black. I hate to grate them and the blender does the job. Whirl two eggs in the blender until very light. Then add three cups of cubed raw potatoes, one medium-size onion (peeled and diced), two tablespoons of flour, one and one-half teaspoons of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of pepper. It will only take a few seconds for the mixture to be evenly rough in consistency. Stir the batter, drop in hot fat, fry on both sides, about three minutes per side.—H. Stuffle

For a Happy Life

It's fun in January to:

- Write Happy New Year notes to those to whom you didn't send Christmas cards.
- Replenish your emergency food shelf with some easy-to-fix foods.
- Decide what you would most like to learn this coming year.
- Assemble the figures you are going to need to do your income tax. Start now!
- Dream over the seed catalogs that the mails are bringing these days.
- Put a clean cover on your ironing board.
- Decide what little changes might work a big difference in the appearance of your home.
- Heed the advice of Oliver Wendell Holmes: "Learn the sweet magic of a cheerful face, not always smiling, but at least serene."

Refrigerator shopper ought to check food loss warranty

If your refrigerator stops running and the food spoils — who pays for it? With today's rising food prices, the food loss could be serious.

The Major Appliance Consumer Action Panel (MACAP) urges consumers to check warranties and service contracts for this information when buying a refrigerator or freezer.

Appliance industry practices vary widely in the handling of food loss claims, according to MACAP chairman, Dr. Virginia F. Cutler. Warranties for refrigerators and freezers may or may not include special provisions for food spoilage due to a defect or malfunction of the appliance during the warranty period. In some cases, the consumer must pay additionally for this particular coverage.

While freezer warranties generally cover food spoilage, coverage for combination refrigerator-freezers often includes only the food stored in the freezer section. In both instances there is usually a requirement that the spoiled food be available for inspection and a maximum compensation limit.

BASED ON ITS three years of experience in studying appliance complaints, MACAP recommends that consumers check food loss warranties for these specific items and stipulations:

—The amount of payment. This varies considerably and, in some instances, the reimbursement will be made only for the current market value of the food. It is important also to determine whether the amount specified in the warranty pertains to each appliance failure or cumulative losses resulting from separate failures.

—The time period allowed for making a claim. Many warranties stipulate that the company must be notified immediately after the food loss occurrence.

The length of time the food provision is in effect.

—Any limitation to the original owner only. This would of course, disqualify a second owner from benefiting from such warranty coverage.

—What steps must be taken to make a claim. Usually a special form must be filed and/or the spoiled food must be kept for inspection by the service technician.

WHEN FOOD LOSS occurs and is covered by a warranty, the consumer should carefully document the loss by the type of food item(s) and the quality involved and file the claim immediately, preferably by registered mail. Copies should be made of all correspondence regarding these claims, thus substantiating the date the claim was filed.

If food loss is not covered by a warranty, the consumer may wish to purchase food loss "insurance" either from a dealer, the manufacturer or an independent insurance agency.

Here are some suggestions from MACAP for preserving food, should your refrigerator or freezer stop operating: If the freezer is fully loaded, the food should remain frozen for about two days; a half-loaded freezer, about a day. A combination refrigerator-freezer will keep foods frozen from 4 to 24 hours. Keeping the door closed and covering the food first with a cardboard or newspaper and then dry ice will help.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch

Storing the food temporarily in a commercial locker is another possibility, first wrapping the food in newspaper for transfer. Before the freezer is refilled, the temperature should be at the correct setting. Food thawed partially, but still containing crystals, can be refrigerated but should be used soon. Of course, if the condition of the food is doubtful, it should be discarded.

Ellen Peters

Nancy Ann Healy and Michael Farrell are planning a June 15 wedding. Their engagement and approaching marriage are announced by Nancy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Healy, 2103 Burke Drive, Arlington Heights. Michael is the son of Mrs. Eleanor Farrell and the late George Farrell, long-time residents of Arlington Heights who moved last year to Clearwater, Fla.

A graduate of Sacred Heart of Mary High School and the College of St. Teresa, Winona, Minn., Nancy teaches second grade at Sts. Peter and Paul School, Cary. Michael, a graduate of St. Viator High School, also studied at Harper. He is now with Barton Stull Realty, Arlington Heights.

An Arlington Heights couple, Pamela Jane Burkhardt and Thomas John Rowe, are engaged but have not yet set a wedding date. Pam's engagement to the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. John Rowe, 1111 W. Oakton, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Burkhardt, 528 S. Kennicott.

Both young people are graduates of Arlington High School, Pam in '72 and Tom in '71. Pam is now majoring in deaf education at the University of Tulsa, and Tom is majoring in architectural engineering at the University of Texas at Austin.

The surprise at an impromptu punch party given Dec. 26 by Mr. and Mrs. William B. Salzman was the announcement of the engagement of their daughter, Becky Ruth, to Kent C. Bray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Bray. Both families live in the Country Club Estates of Long Grove.

Becky will graduate in June from Monmouth College where she is in the school of business and a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority. Kent is in the school of architecture at Montana State University.

The couple, both graduates of Adlai Stevenson High School, are planning a summer wedding.

Ellen F. Peters and Bruce J. Jensen, both of Mount Prospect, are engaged and planning a June 22 wedding. The couple's engagement and approaching marriage are announced by Ellen's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Bruce Peters, 301 S. We-GO Trail. Bruce is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Clifford Jensen, 1101 W. Lincoln.

Both Ellen and Bruce are '72 graduates of Prospect High School. Ellen will graduate in June from Harper College where she is majoring in dental hygiene. Bruce will graduate in 1976 from Drake University, Des Moines, where he is majoring in graphic arts.

How to keep warm in bed

You turn down the thermostat to 64 or lower at night to conserve fuel. So how do you keep warm in bed?

Sally Ames, sleep consultant to a bedding maker in Chicago, suggests the following:

Be sure that caulking is in good repair around windows and doors. Proper caulking keeps cold drafts out and heat in.

Close the fireplace damper when the fireplace is not in use. A lot of hot air escapes through an open damper.

Use a humidifier to add moisture to the air. Cold air has less moisture in it than warm air, and a humidifier will make a 65-degree room seem warmer.

Use extra blankets for added warmth. You may want to put newspapers under the sheets and pad to add insulation, keeping cold from coming through the mattress.

A thermal blanket, sandwiched between two sheets will keep you warm as toast. You may want to add a down comforter.

Turn down your bed covers and top sheet about 15 minutes before going to bed. The warmth of the room, even at the 65-degree temperature, will warm the sheets.

If you have cold feet, place several hot water bottles at the foot of the bed.

Wear socks to bed. If you have really cold feet, try down-filled socks, sold in sporting goods stores.

Wear a nightcap to keep the temples of the cranium warm.

Switch to warmer night clothes, such as flannel pajamas. Sweatsuits make great pajamas. They come in gray, white and blue. You can dye the white a color to match your bedroom's decor. (UPI)

A longer life for Christmas plants

About now you're probably wondering what to do with the holiday gift plant slowly wilting in your living room.

The potted gift plant undoubtedly spent its adolescence in a humid, cool greenhouse, and it is fairly simple for you to match these conditions at home if you want your holiday plants to live on and bloom again.

Keep potted plants out of cold, dry and hot drafts — away from doors and chilly windowsills, radiators, refrigerator or oven blasts.

Turn the heat down to 65 degrees, give as much sun as possible and turn on the humidifier if you have one, or put a pan of water in an unobtrusive place.

Special notes for particular plants: Christmas begonia, sometimes called "buzzy Lizzie," likes it semi-sunny, moist soil and fertilizer (soluble house plant type) every other week.

AZALEA: Demand evenly moist soil. This means you can't water it heavily on Monday, forget it all week, water it well on Friday, Saturday, Sunday, etc. Azaleas should be checked every day to see if they need water. Cool temperature of 55 degrees to 65 degrees will prolong the flowering season. Provide light from a window all day, but avoid direct mid-day sun. Mist with a fine spray daily and feed biweekly with liquid food. Repot in a container one to three inches larger in diameter when flowers fade. Prune if necessary. Set outdoors in the shade in fall. Bring in before frost. Feed with chelated iron if the leaves turn yellow. With care, it will bloom next New Year 1975, continuing until spring.

Cineraria: Keep soil evenly moist, feed biweekly, keep in semi-shady spot in the house and maintain lower temperatures to keep it blooming longer.

Cyclamen: New flower buds will come

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

If you apply liquid house plant fertilizer every other week. Culture same as for cineraria. In early summer, withhold water until leaves yellow and die down. Remove the tuber in the pot and let it rest in a dark, cool (50 degree or so) spot that is mouseproof. Give it just enough water to stay alive, and then in early autumn repot in equal parts soil, sand and peat moss. Then treat as previously outlined.

AFRICAN VIOLETS: One of the warm

toolsies. If your room is about 65 degrees, flowers can last up to 10 weeks. If the temperature drops to 60, leaves will curl downward. Violets like all the light they can get, but if you put them on a windowsill, pull down the shade at night so the leaves don't hit the cold glass.

And finally — poinsettia. If you are lucky enough to have some of the latest, like Annette Hegg, these poinsettias will bloom and bloom until you're sick and tired of them — Easter will come and those old Christmas plants will still be blooming. Set poinsettia outdoors in summer in fresh potted soil. Bring it indoors before frost, take cuttings and it should start blooming in early winter.

January is a rather dreary month, so it's nice to keep the gift plants blooming. It's the kind of a month that's too cold to think about doing anything for spring and too far past Christmas to keep the unfed on the pots.

MAINTENANCE MECHANICS HAS SHURE GOT A JOB FOR YOU!

Shure comes to Rolling Meadows in January with a new assembly plant.

Start the new year off right... in a new job, in a new plant, with a company that's new to the northwest suburbs! We're one of the most respected names in consumer and professional electronics and we're interviewing now. Come on over and start the new year in a new job just minutes from home!

A GREAT OPPORTUNITY... You'll be involved in the full range of maintenance operations, and to handle it, you'll need at least 2 years of general plant maintenance experience. Salaries are excellent, benefits are second to none, and the opportunity to advance is there when you're ready.

ABOUT SHURE... We're a growing, progressive company known around the world for the unusually high quality of our products, which include high fidelity cartridges, microphones, sound systems and audio components.

CONVENIENT INTERVIEWING HOURS... 8 to 4:30 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to 12 noon.

When it comes to saving money, most of us can use all the help we can get.

Joining the Payroll Savings Plan is one easy way to force yourself to save. When you sign up, an amount you specify is set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's automatic. Everything is done for you.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½% payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970...

with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Sick with the plan and before you know it you'll have a bankroll waiting. That's when you'll find you can do a lot more with money than you can with string.

AND EVERYTHING NICE ABOUT FOOD

Nutritious yeast breads are for the new, the conventional and the old fashioned home-baker. There is a bread for every style of baking and living. Whether we are living in today, yesterday or yesteryear, everyone is concerned about a balanced diet and the technique in obtaining the most nutrients in foods that are consumed.

It is easy to read about bread in a well planned diet or buy the super "all vitamin" food. But to maintain the balanced diet through the basic four food groups — meat, vegetables and fruits, milk and bread and cereals, one must pay close attention to eating habits.

In this diet conscious era many people believe bread should be eliminated from a diet to lose weight. One slice of white bread contains only 60 calories plus riboflavin, thiamin, iron, carbohydrates, protein and niacin. Now one can understand that bread is amazingly nutritious; it's not the bread that's fattening, it's what one puts on top of it that adds the calories.

Oven fresh & nutritious

PIQUANT CHEESE LOAF

(Makes 2 Loaves)

- 6 to 7 cups unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 cup plain yogurt
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 6 eggs at room temperature
- 1/2 pound of Muenster cheese, shredded
- 1 cup sliced boiled ham, cut into Julienne strips (Optional)
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 1 tablespoon milk

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1 1/2 cups flour, sugar, salt, and undissolved yeast.

Combine yogurt, water and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are very warm (120 - 130 degrees). Margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 6 eggs, 1 cup flour and all but 1/2 cup cheese. Beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; divide in half. If desired, knead ham into half of the dough. Shape each half into round ball. Place on greased baking sheets. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Combine beaten egg and milk; brush over loaves. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup cheese. Bake at 350 degrees about 30 minutes, or until loaves are golden brown. Remove from baking sheets and cool on wire racks.

DATE NUT BREAD

(Makes 3 Loaves)

- 1/2 cup warm water (105 - 115 degrees)
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 3/4 cups warm milk (105 - 115 degrees)
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 tablespoon salt
- 3 tablespoons margarine
- 4 1/2 to 5 1/2 cups unsifted white flour
- 1 cup unsifted whole wheat flour
- 1 cup chopped dates
- 1/2 cup chopped pecans
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Peanut oil

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add warm milk, sugar, salt, and margarine. Stir in 2 cups white flour. Beat with rotary beater until smooth (about 1 minute). Add 1 cup more white flour. Beat vigorously with a wooden spoon until smooth (about 150 strokes). Stir in whole wheat flour, dates, pecans, cinnamon, and enough additional white flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Cover with plastic wrap, then a towel. Let rest 20 minutes.

Punch down dough. Divide dough into 3 equal portions. Roll each into a 12x7-inch rectangle. Shape into loaves. Place in 3 greased 7 1/2 x 3 1/4 x 2 1/4-inch loaf pans. Brush loaves with peanut oil. Cover pans loosely with plastic wrap. Refrigerate 2 to 24 hours.

When ready to bake, remove from refrigerator. Uncover dough carefully. Let stand uncovered 10 minutes at room temperature. Puncture any gas bubbles which may have formed with a greased toothpick or metal skewer.

Bake at 400 degrees 30 to 40 minutes, or until done. If desired, brush with margarine.

BRAN ROLLS

(Makes 2 Dozen Rolls)

- 3/4 cup whole bran cereal
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) margarine
- 1/2 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup warm water (105 - 115 degrees)
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 1 egg beaten
- 3 1/4 to 3 3/4 cups unsifted flour
- Melted margarine

Combine cereal, sugar, salt, and margarine in a bowl. Add boiling water; stir until margarine is melted. Set aside to cool to lukewarm.

Measure warm water into large warm bowl. Sprinkle in yeast; stir until dissolved. Add lukewarm cereal mixture, egg and enough flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; divide in half. Divide each half into 12 equal pieces. Form each piece into a smooth round ball. Place in greased muffin pans, 2 1/2 x 1 1/2 inches or in 2 greased 8-inch round cake pans. Brush rolls with melted margarine. Cover; let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Bake at 375 degrees 20 to 25 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Serve warm.

There are many breads that can be baked and eaten that will give added nutrients to the daily diet. One of these healthy breads is the Piquant Cheese Loaf. This sharp-flavored, variegated bread gives us such extra nutritious ingredients as yogurt, Muenster cheese, ham and lots of fresh eggs. With these added ingredients, this loaf will supply us with important nutrients — iron, phosphorus, calcium, sodium and potassium.

If finding time to bake is a problem with you, bake Date Nut Bread. This nutritious bread can be prepared in the home bake-shop 24 hours in advance by using the Coolrise technique of baking. This method lets the baker mix, knead and shape the dough in 45 minutes. Then the shaped loaves are kept in the refrigerator where they rise. You can bake the Date Nut Bread minutes before it is to be tasted.

Remember how deliciously toasty Mother's Bran Rolls were? She too probably knew the nutritional value of the Bran Rolls. Alone, the grain bran supplies the body with carbohydrates for lots of quick energy, thiamin and niacin for good digestion, healthy skin and nerves. Therefore, when blended into the dough it makes the bread even more nourishing for the body.

Tasty Lions Gate sandwich for lunch or Sunday supper

Lions Gate sandwich is a tantalizing broiled main course for either a luncheon or Sunday supper combining crabmeat, English muffins, cheese and subtle flavorings.

I'm told by the people at Kraftco, who recently compiled favorites of Canadian cuisine, that the sandwich is named for a famed bridge which soars across Burrard Inlet to North Vancouver.

Using the basic suggestions, here is my version of Lions Gate. To serve two, thaw a six-ounce package of king crabmeat (snow crab is slightly less expensive but not quite as flavorful). Drain crabmeat thoroughly and flake. Mix with two tablespoons finely chopped celery, one tablespoon sweet pickle relish, one teaspoon lemon juice and one teaspoon grated horseradish. Stir and chill.

Split two English muffins, using the tines of a fork to separate (you should not slice English muffins with a knife and pre-sliced muffins just aren't the same). Toast muffin halves. Now on each muffin put two or more tablespoons of the crabmeat mixture, spreading evenly. Use all of the crab mixture on the four muffins. Atop each place a thin slice of cheese. (I used Muenster.)

Place under a preheated broiler until cheese melts (five to 10 minutes). Serve with hash-browned potatoes and sliced tomatoes, decorating the plate with fresh parsley.

IF YOU'RE FEEDING a gang, especially teenagers with hearty appetites, here's an interesting variation of the ever-popular hamburger. This recipe makes 12 open-faced sandwiches.

by Charles Flynn

Combine three pounds lean ground beef with one-fourth cup chopped green pepper, two teaspoons salt and one-fourth teaspoon oregano.

Divide beef mixture into 12 patties, place on a lightly greased pan and broil to desired degree of doneness on both sides. Top each burger with one tablespoon shredded mozzarella cheese (three-fourths cup in all).

Continue cooking until cheese melts, then put patties on split toasted sesame hamburger buns. Serve with dill pickles and, naturally, mustard and catsup.

Do you have a favorite sandwich recipe, or a question about food? Write Chuck Flynn, care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Mrs. Herman Marchel

Her recipes are family favorites

by LOIS SEILER

When Mrs. Herman Marchel of Des Plaines was asked to share her favorite recipes, she chose two which her family has enjoyed over the years.

Lois Marchel devised her Round Steak with Herb Dumplings recipe some 15 to 20 years ago, changing it every so often to suit her taste. Round steak, onions and bacon are simmered in chicken bouillon. After the meat is tender, Lois cooks herb-seasoned dumplings on top.

She terms this meal "moderately economical — depending on the price of round steak," but it is hearty and satisfying for the winter months and makes a big hit with her husband and children, Danny, 10, and Lisa, 7.

As accompaniments she suggests green beans or the vegetable of your choice, a tossed salad with vinegar and oil dressing, and for dessert a nice, light coffee cake.

Lois' favorite is one which her mother reportedly acquired from Henri's restaurant; once located in downtown Chicago.

Made in a tube pan, the cake has a nut topping and is subtly flavored with lemon. Although fairly solid, it is lighter than a pound cake and moist in texture. And this is one recipe where butter does make it better, according to Lois.

"This is an 'any occasion cake' which can be served successfully for coffee parties or as a dessert," Lois remarked.

ROUND STEAK WITH HERB DUMPLINGS

2 pounds round steak
Salt, pepper and paprika to taste
3 strips bacon, chopped

1 medium onion, chopped
1 can chicken broth or chicken bouillon
1 to 2 cups water
2 tablespoons flour
4 tablespoons water

Trim fat from steak and cut into pieces 3 by 4-inches. Pound slightly to tenderize and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika.

Brown bacon; add onion and saute until golden. Either remove from pan or push to one side. Brown round steak over medium heat. Pour off any excess grease so that only one tablespoon remains.

Add chicken broth and 1 to 2 cups water, just enough to barely cover meat. Cover and simmer ¾ to 1 hour or until tender. If liquid has diminished, add more so that there is at least 2 cups.

Combine flour with 4 tablespoons water. Stir into pan liquids, stirring constantly, until thickened.

Prepare the following Herb Dumplings:

1½ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon parsley
1 teaspoon sage
1 teaspoon thyme
¾ cup milk

Mix dry ingredients together and blend in the milk. Drop batter by large tablespoons onto pieces of meat. Cook ten minutes, uncovered, then ten minutes covered. Serves 6.

HENRI'S COFFEE CAKE

¾ cup butter (no substitute)

1½ cups sugar

3 eggs
Grated rind of one lemon
1 teaspoon lemon juice
3 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 cup milk
Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add lemon rind and juice and beat well. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk.

Grease and flour a tube pan. Sprinkle bottom of pan with ½ cup finely-chopped walnuts. Pour in batter.

Bake at 315 degrees for 55 to 65 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean. Cool 25 minutes straight up. Turn upside-down onto plate and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serves 20.

If desired, vanilla extract may be substituted for the lemon.

Start the day with a milkshake

If you're tired of cereal for breakfast, try the advice of Mrs. Marjorie Stevenson.

The nutritionist at the University of Nevada, Reno, suggests whipping up something like a cheesburger, a milkshake, or even a taco.

"Many Americans are being turned off by the traditional bacon and eggs or cereal breakfast," she said. "Eating the right nutrients is much more important than eating certain stereotyped foods."

She said persons should eat a good breakfast, rather than skip it and then make up for it by eating high calorie doughnuts or candy bars later in the morning.

"While it is important to receive a good protein source, a fruit, some type of cereal product and a milk product, these nutrients can be obtained as easily from a meat, fish or chicken sandwich as from bacon and toast," she said.

"Many who are in a hurry in the morning find a satisfactory breakfast from a liquid made of fruit juice, eggs, graham crackers and milk blended together which they can drink in a hurry. The nutrients are there although the shape isn't," she said.

"Pizza, macaroni and cheese, chili, tacos — even ice cream or custard — are all good nutritious breakfasts, and they may appeal to teenagers more than the standard breakfast fare," she said.

"One of my friends has a breakfast favorite of strawberry shortcake or waffles with cream. Here, again, she has included the nutrients although it is certainly not traditional."

Save Everyday The Eagle Way...

Test After Test Proves Regular Savings At Eagle

Everyday Low Discount Pricing

There's nothing "special" about the savings at Eagle. That is we don't offer you just a few "weekend specials" as a way to save money. We offer storewide savings in effect every day of the week, all year 'round. Savings you can count on every time you shop. This makes Eagle pretty "special" after all.

Save On Famous Brands

Yes, even your favorite nationally advertised brands in all categories are discounted at Eagle. These include cleaning supplies, health and beauty needs, sundries, produce and meat. Even pre-priced items such as greeting cards and magazines are discounted except fair trade items.

No Limits To Your Savings

Among the many advantages to Eagle's pricing policy is that there are no limits placed on a customer's choice. You can buy a little or a lot, as you choose. Stores that offer specials often limit the amount you buy. Never at Eagle. When you find a favorite item, you can stock up on it at everyday low prices.

Guide to eating better for less

by JEANNE LESEM

Grocery shopping with a friend can be expensive, says an annual guide to eating better for less money.

"It's too easy to be tempted into purchases you might otherwise ignore, if your friend buys the items first," writes JoAnne Alter in the January issue of Family Circle magazine.

And we all know how children nag for candy and cereals boxed with toys.

Psychology and common sense are behind many of Miss Alter's suggestions for food budgeting. For instance:

—Follow a hands-off policy for anything you don't plan to buy. She quotes Nancy Weaver, a New Mexico home economist, as saying the odds are 19 out of 20 you'll buy whatever you pick up to examine.

—Pay cash. You're less likely to buy unneeded items than you would if paying by check.

—Non-food items such as cleaning and paper products can eat up 20 to 25 per cent of your supermarket dollar. Before you buy them, compare prices for similar items at drug and discount stores, whose products may be cheaper.

—Buy plain cereals and mix them at home with any sweetening you like, plus dried fruits and nuts. When you buy in large quantities transfer contents of open boxes or bags to airtight containers to keep them fresh to the last spoonful.

—Remember that quick-cooking cereals are about 50 cents cheaper per pound than the instant varieties. And they take only about five minutes more preparation time.

—Packaged produce usually is cheaper than loose even if you occasionally find one bad piece in a lot.

—Medium-sized fruits and vegetables usually are cheaper than large ones.

—Pre-mixed fruits generally cost more than combinations you can make at home, especially if you take advantage of seasonal fresh products to mix with canned, dried and frozen ones.

—Large bags of frozen vegetables can save as much as 40 per cent over a 10-ounce package.

—Home-baked cakes are about 75 per cent cheaper than ready-to-eat or ready-mix varieties. Homemade pancakes are one-twentieth the price of pour and bake ones, and less than one-quarter the price of dry mixes.

—Buy spices in the least expensive packaging — cardboard or metal. Transfer the contents to reusable bottles for long-term storage.

—Buy bouillon cubes instead of canned beef or chicken broth for cooking stews and braising meats. A 22-cent package of cubes will make 120 ounces of broth, but a 22-cent can of bouillon provides only 10 ounces.

—Instead of paying a premium for whipped butter, make your own. Beat softened butter with an electric mixer at medium speed until it's fluffy.

—Sometimes it pays to shop late. Many stores reduce prices on perishables such as meat, ripe fruit and baked goods just before closing time at the end of a week, rather than hold over food that may spoil and be unsaleable. You can sometimes save as much as 50 per cent on melons, bananas, bread and cakes, while meat may be reduced 10 to 20 per cent.

—Read labels for net weight. One well-known cereal manufacturer packs four different flavors of oatmeal in four identical boxes that usually are sold at the same prices, Ms. Alter wrote, but their contents vary from nine ounces in one box, to 10, 12 and 13 in others.

—You can save 10 to 20 cents on every chicken you buy if you choose whole ones and cut them up yourself.

—Canned, condensed soups generally are a better buy than heat-and-serve ones, because the extra ingredient in the latter is water.

—Lunch meats are not really protein bargains, even though they're boneless. The government permits processors of bologna, salami, hot dogs and similar items to add 30 per cent fat and 10 per cent water to the meats they contain.

(United Press International)

Most prices in the weekly Herald survey of area food prices remained stable with the exception of a noticeable jump in the cost of grape jelly, which doubled. On Friday, Jan. 4 when this survey was taken, the average price of grape jelly in the four supermarkets in the survey was 65 cents compared with 32 cents a week earlier.

In meats, poultry and fish, ocean perch filets were selling at $1.02 a pound, up four cents, and pork chops at $1.60, up three cents, for the largest increases. Bacon remained the same and ground beef and chicken were only slightly higher.

The price of a pound of margarine dropped five cents from a week ago. Other dairy products varied only a few cents, except milk which remained at 72 cents a half gallon.

Lettuce showed the biggest price jump in produce, up nine cents. Celery was three cents higher. Other produce in the survey remained the same as last week or sold only a few cents higher.

White bread also went up from 38 cents a loaf to 44 cents.

Economist explains decline in beef prices

People who regularly buy quantities of beef for home freezers should consider stocking up now. This advice comes from Bruce Kirtley, University of Illinois agricultural economist, who reports that beef prices are at a relatively low level now and are almost certain to go up within a few weeks.

The main reason for lower prices now is that the movement of cattle to market was slowed during the beef-price freeze, says Kirtley. Feeders were expecting prices to go down when the freeze was lifted and held their cattle off the market.

However, during the withholding period large numbers of cattle got excessively heavy, and slowed marketing schedules. As a result, says Kirtley, heavy cattle are coming to market now.

Because of the extra fat which must be trimmed before the meat can be sold in supermarkets, there is little buyer demand for the heavier cattle. The result is lower beef prices.

Within the next few weeks, however, most of these heavy cattle will have been marketed, Kirtley points out. Average weight of live cattle will then drop and prices are almost certain to go up, he says. Choice live cattle are now selling for about $17 to $18 less per hundred pounds than in August.

The lower number of cattle now being fattened in feedlots will probably contribute to higher beef prices in the future.

"Because of the disruption in normal marketing patterns resulting from the price freeze and current low prices, cattle feeders are uncertain about the future," Kirtley says. As a result, he said, they're fattening fewer cattle — so fewer will be available for slaughter next spring. Consequently, beef prices will probably rise.

Packaging material used to wrap meat for the home freezer should be moisture-proof. The transparent wrap and tray or backing board on prepackaged meats in the self-service meat cases should be removed and the meat re-wrapped in freezer paper if it is to be kept frozen for more than a week or two. Some prefer to overwrap the original package but the tray or backing board tends to stick to the frozen meat.

Frozen meat is best kept frozen at 0 degrees or lower. It is not wise to re-freeze thawed meat because of the loss of juices during thawing and the possible deterioration of the meat between the time of thawing and refreezing.

Fish Pie, ready in minutes

One pound of fish filets goes a long way in feeding four persons without a strain on the budget. In this Fish Pie With Cheese-Biscuit Topping recipe, quick and easy to prepare and requiring only about 20 minutes oven-time, this entree utilizes freezer and shelf-ready extenders such as frozen mixed vegetables, canned cream of celery soup, milk, onion salt, cheese, and prepared biscuit mix. This hearty entree could be a hurry-up meal for company too because its low-cost features are overshadowed by its excellent taste.

FISH PIE WITH CHEESE-BISCUIT TOPPING

- 1 pound fish filets, fresh or frozen
- 1 package (10 ounce) frozen mixed vegetables, broken apart

- 1 can (10 1/2 ounce) condensed cream of celery soup
- 1 cup milk
- 1/2 teaspoon onion salt
- 1 cup prepared biscuit mix
- 1/2 cup shredded process American cheese

Thaw frozen fish. Cut into 1-inch pieces. Combine mixed vegetables, soup, 1/2 cup milk, and onion salt in 10-inch frypan with heatproof handle; mix well. Heat slowly about 5 minutes. Add fish; heat until bubbly. Combine biscuit mix, cheese and remaining 1/2 cup milk in bowl; stir to make smooth dough. Spoon into 8 even mounds onto hot fish mixture. Bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, 18 to 20 minutes or until biscuits are done and browned. Makes 4 servings.

Grand-Spaulling Dodge agency

Auto dealership here may get under way in spring

Grand-Spaulling Dodge is hoping its auto franchise planned for Buffalo Grove will be under construction by spring and in operation by next September.

Len Krause, president of Grand-Spaulling, yesterday said plans are being prepared for the dealership and will be presented to the plan commission and village board in the near future. "We're hoping by the time the weather breaks we can begin construction and have work finished by the time the 1975 cars come out," he said.

The franchise will be on an eight-acre site at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Dundee roads. The concept of a dealership at that location was approved in 1971. At that time the village gave Chrysler Corp. three years to develop the property. The specific plan must now be approved by the village before construction can begin.

Krause said his company is attempting to time the opening of the new franchise to the completion of Dundee Road. Opening the dealership before road construction is completed would hurt business, he said.

WORK ON DUNDEE Road is not at the half-way mark, but state officials said construction should be finished by next fall. Work on the road has been suspended for the winter.

Krause estimated the new dealership will do about $17 million in business annually, thus generating about $170,000 in sales tax revenue for the village each year. The franchise, he said, probably will do about the same volume of business as Grand-Spaulling's Chicago dealership.

Grand-Spaulling plans to continue operating its present dealership at 3300 W. Grand Ave., after the Buffalo Grove franchise is opened.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson has said he doubts if the annual sales tax revenue from the franchise will be $170,000 at least initially. He estimates the dealership will generate closer to $30,000 to $40,000 a year.

PART OF THE reason the sales tax revenue will be lower, Larson said, is because Grand Spaulding sells many cars to municipalities and other government agencies which are exempt from sales tax. In addition to selling cars to the Buffalo Grove Police Department, Grand-Spaulling is also a major supplier to the Chicago and state police.

Grand-Spaulling also plans to open an auto leasing division at its Buffalo Grove location. The village will receive additional tax revenue through the sale of vehicle stickers that will be put on the autos to be leased.

The dealership will consist of one building, with a showroom, service facilities and a parts and accessory store. The franchise will sell autos and small trucks.

With the new franchise, Krause said, Grand-Spaulling, now the largest Dodge dealer in the Midwest, and the fourth largest in the United States, could become the largest anywhere.

Caucus to meet to outline school endorsement plans

Officers of the 1974 School Dist. 21 General Caucus will meet this weekend to begin outlining procedures for interviewing and endorsing candidates in the April 13 school board election.

The meeting Saturday will be the first of caucus officers elected last spring. Chairman Ralph Camp yesterday said the group is seeking delegates to the caucus from all community organizations, PTAs and PTOs.

A screening committee of about five persons with three alternates will be appointed from the general membership of the caucus.

DIST. 21 School Board candidates seeking the support of the caucus will be required to appear before the committee. Following the interviews, the committee will offer endorsements.

Camp said the interviews this year will probably be conducted after an officers' meeting tentatively planned for Jan. 29 and before Feb. 27, the first day candidates may file to participate in the election.

Rumors were circulated last spring that the caucus might reorganize and develop new procedures for screening and endorsing candidates in the 1974 election. Camp said, however, he does not anticipate any changes in the operation of the group.

"It's unlikely that we'll reorganize and I don't really think it's necessary," Camp said. "We do hope though, to involve a larger part of the community."

Any community organization interested in being represented on the caucus should contact Camp at 394-5887 or Mrs. Frank Sacco, caucus corresponding secretary, at 537-0453.

Two school board seats will be available this year. The three-year terms of both Jack Lane and Jeremiah Crise are set to expire.

Crise has said he plans to seek reelection to his third term on the board, while Lane has not announced whether he intends to run for a second term.

Striker Lanes safe robbed of $897

A safe containing $897 was taken in a burglary Tuesday at Striker Lanes bowling alley, 100 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Police said the burglar may have entered the premises through a hole in a rear overhead door where a panel had been knocked out.

The entire safe was carried out of the bowling alley's inner office. Police said no one apparently saw any vehicles or persons enter or leave the building prior to the burglary.

'Unpaid' ambulance stays put; woman dies

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 35-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $84 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfeld and Bismarck roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department, which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the Roselle Fire Department himself. Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m., 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided."

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

13-story apartment-office complex

Suburban 'skyscraper' in the works

Plans are on the drawing board for an apartment-office building near the Randhurst shopping center which, at 13 stories, would be one of the tallest structures in the Northwest suburbs.

The building, tentatively called Prospect Tower, would consist of a two-story base for professional offices and an 11-story tower containing 82 luxury apartments.

The 3½-acre site on Kensington-Fountain Road east of Elmhurst Road lies just outside the Mount Prospect village limits in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Village officials admit they are virtually powerless in blocking construction of the high-rise.

The village has turned down plans by J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp., Mount Prospect, for a six-story building on the site in 1967, contending it would be incompatible with surrounding residential neighborhoods.

Brickman then turned to the Cook County Board, where he was granted zoning for commercial and multi-family development.

HE LATER DECIDED to build the building taller than originally planned, Brickman says, because land values have gone up so much he needs a larger building to justify the cost of the land.

Brickman has expressed a willingness to annex his property to Mount Prospect, but is firm in not wanting to compromise the height of the building.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert has said he also would like the building in the village, in order to exert control over it and to reap the tax benefits.

Because the property is already zoned for multi-family use by the county, Brickman holds the cards in any negotiating session with village officials, as opposed to most developers who are forced to compromise height and density plans in order to get a zoning change.

Brickman said he would talk to the village until around the end of next month. If no annexation agreement has been reached by then, he said, he would apply for a county building permit for a spring groundbreaking.

Village vehicle stickers now on sale

Village vehicle stickers are now on sale for Buffalo Grove motorists and must be displayed on auto windshields by Feb. 16 or the owners face fines.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson yesterday said the stickers are $10 and can be obtained at the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd or by mail. Forms for the stickers were mailed to residents in mid-November. Motorists not displaying the decals will be fined $15 and will still be required to purchase one, Larson said.

The village board Monday night voted down a proposal by trustee Edward Osmon calling for a reduction in sticker prices for senior citizens Larson said, "It was the board's feeling that everyone should pay their fair share if they use the streets." The money, he said is used for snow removal and street maintenance.

Osmon yesterday said he thinks the village should follow the example of several other Northwest suburban communities which have lowered the price of stickers for senior citizens. By next year, Osmon said he hopes he can persuade the rest of the village board to adopt his proposal.

At present, vehicle stickers in Mount Prospect are $10, except for persons more than 65 years old who are charged only $5. In Hoffman Estates senior citizens are charged only $2 for a $7.50 sticker and in Schaumburg a $5 sticker is available to senior citizens for $1.

The Wheeling Village Board recently approved a measure which in 1975 will lower the price of the decals from $10 to $5 for drivers more than 65 years old.

School board to ask state reimbursement for bonds

The Dist. 21 school board tonight will consider applying for state reimbursement on recent bond issues that could amount to about $250,000 and possibly reduce the 1975 tax bills of local residents.

The meeting is set for 7:15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

A state law recently enacted allows the district to apply for partial reimbursement for the cost of retiring bonds issued between 1969 and 1972 for the construction of new schools.

Dist. 21 Assistant Supt. John Barger said yesterday an application for funds has been drawn up and, if approved by the school board tonight, will be sent to the Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB).

BARGER SAID THE amount of reimbursement for recent bond issues that the district may receive will be determined by the ICDB, based on the number of similar applications by other school districts and the amount of money available. He estimated that Dist. 21 could get as much as $250,000, which would reduce the 1975 tax levy for the district's bond and interest fund by that amount.

Barger stressed that because property in the district could be assessed at a higher rate next year, the reduction in the bond and interest fund tax levy may not necessarily reduce the 1975 tax bills of local residents.

The assistant superintendent said the ICDB will probably announce its allocations some time in March.

Other business on the agenda of tonight's meeting includes:

- Special curriculum report on the Kernel Stevenson Popcorn Factory, a vocational education program recently conducted at Stevenson School in Wheeling.

- Presentation of a plaque to the school board for the district's contributions to the United Fund campaign.

Wheeling youth charged in pot case

An 18-year-old Wheeling youth was arrested by Buffalo Grove police Tuesday and charged with possession of marijuana.

The youth, Nicholas F. Ellinger, 56 Redwood Tr., was stopped by police while driving his auto near Golfview Terrace and Chenault Drive. He was curbed for improper vehicle registration.

While questioning Ellinger, police noticed a pill container in the youth's coat pocket. The bottle was examined and found to contain marijuana.

Ellinger was released on $1,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court Feb. 19.

Telemetry-radio gear ordered

Paramedic service to get under way

by LYN ASINOF

Special paramedic equipment has been ordered by the village and is expected to arrive in time for the paramedic program to begin on schedule in March.

Village officials have been drawing up plans for the emergency medical program for the past several months. The board of trustees finalized the program when it waived competitive bidding for telemetry-radio equipment earlier this week.

When the telemetry equipment arrives, the fire department will be able to begin paramedic service by using the current ambulance. Bids for a special paramedic van will be opened shortly, but delivery of the van will take from six to eight months.

UNDER A PARAMEDIC program, firemen are trained to provide immediate emergency medical care. Paramedics transmit data on a patient's condition to doctors in the hospital emergency room. The doctors analyze the data and radio instructions on how to care for the patient until he arrives at the hospital.

Heart-attack victims are one type of patient that can greatly benefit from a paramedic program. Emergency treatment administered without delay often keeps the patient alive until he arrives at the hospital.

THREE VILLAGE firemen already have been certified as paramedics, and another three expect their certification shortly. Fire Chief Bernie Koeppen said he will be able to start the paramedic program with six certified firemen while other members of the department take their training.

Koeppen said, however, any long range program will require more trained paramedics. "It's going to take more when you consider sick days and holidays coming up," he said.

The fire chief said he would eventually like to see the paramedic program become separate from the fire-fighting part of his department. "I'm still a firm believer they should be a division of the fire service," he said.

UNDER THE CURRENT system, the firemen receive fire and emergency medical training and provide a dual service to the community. Koeppen said he thinks both programs will operate more efficiently if they are separated. He said such a division will probably develop

School board vacancy open for applications

Dist. 96 residents may still apply for the vacant seat on the school board, although the screening committee has completed interviews.

Applications for the post recently vacated by board member Jack Landau of Buffalo Grove will be accepted until 8 p.m. Monday. The board is scheduled to convene at that time to appoint Landau's replacement.

The screening committee, made up of board members Tom Rusk, Frank Clayton and Jim Duncan this week interviewed six candidates who earlier expressed an interest in the position.

Rusk said the interviews were not mandatory, but those who participated will have a better chance of receiving the appointment.

All candidates interviewed in sessions last Monday and Tuesday were from Buffalo Grove. They included Howard Falk, 761 Essington Ln.; Dr. David Epstein, 910 Twisted Oak Ln.; Clarke Walser, 831 Twisted Oak Ln.; Jim Dalinis, 670 Indian Spring Ln.; Rosalie Sandler, 541 Castlewood Ln.; and Stephanie Moskowitz, 340 Checker Dr.

The person named Monday night to the board will serve until the next school board election in April.

once the paramedic program becomes established.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he had ordered the $8,915 of needed telemetry equipment. He said the order was placed in December, with the provision that it could be canceled if the village board did not waive competitive bidding. Delivery is scheduled for March.

WHEN THE PARAMEDIC van arrives, the village will also need additional space at the fire department to house the new vehicle. Plans call for an addition to be built on the rear of the main fire station, at Dundee Road and Milwaukee Avenue.

"We'll be ready for that too when it comes," Passolt said. "That doesn't take much planning."

Koeppen said if the addition is not completed by the time the paramedic van arrives, it will be no problem to move the old ambulance to either the Hartz Road fire station or behind the village hall.

Funding for the paramedic program is coming from several sources. A state matching grant is being sought to help pay for the ambulance and federal revenue sharing funds are being used for part of the project.

Many paramedic programs are already in effect in the Northwest suburbs. Although Wheeling participated in the initial stages of paramedic training, village officials decided not to take part in the program when it began a year ago. The village waited to see the program prove itself, Koeppen said.

Public hearing Feb. 6 on Oakton campus selection

A public hearing on the choice of a permanent campus for Oakton Community College will be held Feb. 6 in preparation for a board decision Feb. 19.

The date for the public hearing and dates for other meetings which will be held between now and Feb. 19 were announced Tuesday by the Oakton board. The board has said it will choose between two proposed sites for the college at its Feb. 19 meeting.

The timetable of meetings calls for a meeting by the citizens' advisory committee on site Jan. 17, a hearing for faculty, staff and students to express their views on Jan. 23 and the public hearing Feb. 6. Another meeting, involving representatives from local school districts and other governmental units, will be set for the week of Jan. 28.

THE TWO SITES considered for the college are the interim campus on Oakton Street in Morton Grove and a site in the Northwest corner of Maine Township bordered by Central Road and the Des Plaines River.

The size of the present interim site would be increased from 10 to 27 acres if it were purchased by the college. The site at 7900 N. Nagle Ave. is in an industrial area of Morton Grove.

The Maine Township site, adjacent for forest preserve land, is 122 acres and is owned by the Chicago Archdiocese.

Technical reports on land value, transportation and other factors involved in choosing between the two sites were given to the Oakton board Tuesday. The reports will be made public when they are given to the advisory committee before its Jan. 17 meeting.

IN ADDITION to the public meetings involving the Oakton board, Oakton administrators will meet with municipal officials of Des Plaines, Niles and Morton Grove during the week of Jan. 21 and with officials of the state agencies which must approve Oakton's choice during the week of Jan. 28.

The hearings and administrative meetings are designed to ensure that everyone interested will be informed of Oakton's plans, board member Ray Hartstein explained. "We want to orient all the publics who are involved. In the past we've missed some of these steps," he said.

Once the college chooses between the two sites, its decision will be sent to the Illinois Community College board for approval. The ICCB is scheduled to meet in March and college Pres. William Koehn-line said Oakton officials hope the board will act on the site at that meeting.

In addition to the ICCB, Koehnline said Oakton's choice must also be reviewed by the state Capital Development Board. The capital development board has never before had to review a community college's campus choice, Koehnline said. "We have no precedents for this and they don't know how it works either." However, he said the college officials will meet with officials of the capital development board and officials of the ICCB this month.

OAKTON HAS BEEN looking for a permanent site for three years and has twice before gone to the ICCB with choices, only to withdraw them after public protests.

A decision on a site was held up for several months last year because of uncertainty about whether several high school districts on the North Shore would be added to the Oakton District by the ICCB.

In November, the ICCB said the North Shore districts of Evanston, New Trier, Highland Park-Deerfield, and Glenbrook would be allowed to form their own college.

Barber shop window shattered by rock

A vandal caused an estimated $200 damage by throwing a rock through the window of a local barbershop, said police. Salvatore Diadone, owner of the Wishing Well Barber Shop, 864 Elmhurst Rd., told police he discovered the shattered window when he came to work Tuesday.

Thirteen-year-old Kevin was admitted to the Maryville Temporary Care Center late one night last summer.

Removed from his home because of a family crisis, the teenager could have faced a grim future of detention homes, foster families and institutions. Instead, Kevin received special counseling and eventually returned to his family.

The center, opened in August, 1972, provides immediate sheltered care for boys turned away from families, foster homes, schools and institutions, according to Don Ferro, program director.

Rather than throwing a boy into an institution ill-equipped to meet his needs, the center provides a 60-day grace period during which each youngster's needs are evaluated.

"Our program is primarily diagnostic — we try to evaluate a child so he can go on to more permanent and stable care," Ferro said. "Hopefully, we prevent long-time institutionalization of a child because of a lack of planning at the time of crisis."

SINCE THE beginning of the program, 180 boys have been processed through the center. The youngsters are referred to Maryville because of crisis in the homes, failing foster homes, school problems or personal problems, according to Ferro.

The center is open 24 hours a day and can serve up to 15 boys at a time. All of the youths receive a wide range of services including individual counseling, family counseling, remedial education, (Continued on page 5)

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $84 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfeld and Bismar roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department, which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the

Roselle Fire Department himself, Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided."

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

work program and recreation. "We get a variation of problems from excellent kids with messed up parents to boys accused of crimes," counselor Larry Bolter said. "We've yet to run across a kid we couldn't handle."

The center accepts children referred by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services if space is available. The only boys who are refused are those who are severely retarded, actively psychotic, suicidal or homicidal.

"In the old system, these boys would have ended up somewhere like the Audy Home very soon," Bolter said.

THE CENTER is located in a former arts and crafts building near the center of the Maryville campus. The boys sleep in an open dormitory setting with a counselor on duty at all times.

"We feel the open dormitory is a safer environment," Ferro said. "The group is always changing and this type of setting allows for more interaction."

"A lot of these kids have bedtime fears," Bolter added. "It helps for them to be able to wake up and see the guy next to them."

The boys spend at least one hour a day on individualized school work with members of the Maryville staff. Since boys are rarely at the center more than two months, the teachers concentrate on improving reading skills and giving the boys a better attitude toward school, according to teacher Sr. M. Gloria.

"These boys have been rejected and kicked out so often that even mentioning school turns them off," she said. "We have to structure classes so they don't look like schools."

SR. M. GLORIA spends as much time counseling students and allowing them to talk out "their negative feelings" towards school as she does on scholastics.

"Once the boys get their feelings out about school, their minds are clear for learning," she said.

Several boys have advanced more than one grade level during their stay at the center, according to Sr. M. Gloria. All the lessons are designed specifically for each child and high school students receive credit for work completed from the Maine Township High Schools.

During the non-school hours, the boys take part in recreational activities, such as swimming and bowling, and perform chores as part of a work program.

Boys receive $1 an hour for jobs ranging from cleanup of the dormitory area to apprentice work with Maryville electricians, carpenters and mechanics. The boys recently spent a week repainting parts of their living quarters.

"Sometimes the jobs don't get done as well as they should but for many of the kids it's the first time in their life they find out they are employable," Ferro said.

AS PART OF THE program, each boy is scored on his behavior during an eight-hour shift, according to the program director. Boys who receive the highest points for mature and responsible behavior earn additional privileges, Ferro said.

"We don't care as much about the kid's behavior as we do about finding out what the kid is like," he said. "This system is one way to see how they can handle responsibility."

The center recently introduced an after-care service to give boys follow-up attention once they return to the community or are sent on to another institution, Bolter said.

"The big hint that there's trouble is when the kid calls a lot to say hi," he said. "If we get a couple of calls, we know the kid needs help and we send somebody down there."

Ferro estimates that 25 per cent of the boys are able to return home following their stay at the center. The remainder go on to institutions "which fits the kid and does a good job of treatment."

"At the end of two months, the boys are a known quantity," Ferro said. "We can do a much better job of placing them and setting up a permanent plan."

Second round of hearings on city budget tonight

A second round of hearings on the 1974 city budget will begin tonight as city officials begin to match requests from various departments with anticipated revenues.

Three meetings will be held in the next week with various aldermen and department heads to discuss budget requests made for this year, according to Ald. Robert Hinde (4th).

Hinde, who heads the city council's finance and insurance committee, said the meetings are the second phase in the annual budget preparation process.

The finance committee will meet tonight at 8 to discuss safety programs and funds for the Northwest Municipal Conference.

A WORKING SESSION with city comptroller Duane Bletz will be held Friday to review anticipated funds the city will receive during the coming year.

Requests from the police and fire departments and the civil defense program will be reviewed at 8 p.m. Jan. 17.

Hinde said the second round of meetings was promised after new budget requests were made. He added the upcoming meetings will be held to reach a compromise between the requests for new manpower and equipment and what the city can afford.

Northwest side fire station two years off?

Construction of a fire station serving northwest Des Plaines residents may be about two years away, according to Ald. John Seitz (7th), chairman of the city council fire committee.

"It's part of a long-range plan," said Seitz yesterday. "We've been aware of the need for a fire station in that area."

The site of the proposed station is a 3.2-acre area on the south side of Central Road just west of the Soo Line R. R. tracks. A water pumping station also is slated to be built on the property.

THE LAND, located near Maryville Academy, was purchased recently from the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago by city officials for about $70,000.

He called the 7th Ward area "isolated" from the city's other three fire stations adding the possibility of residential development in the area will increase the need for the station, which would be the city's fourth.

"We've never had a disaster out here but the possibility exists," he said.

He said the presence of railroad tracks around the ward could cut residents off from fire protection if emergency vehicles are held up by freight trains.

"Over the long run, the church may decide to sell its property off there for development and we've got to be prepared," he said. "But at least when the time comes to build the station we won't have to hassle with where to get the land."

HE SAID THE fourth station would probably not be a "full service" fire station like the fire department headquarters at River near Rand road.

The station may include only a pumper or ladder truck and an ambulance, Seitz said.

When the station is built, Seitz said he will also push for extension of Third Avenue through to Central Road. Right now, the street ends just north of Luau Drive about three-tenths of a mile from Central Road, and the extension would provide fire department vehicles with an access road to nearby subdivisions.

Additional meetings will be held with other city departments and committees in the near future.

The police department has requested that nine new patrolmen be hired for the force. The department also requested an additional communications clerk and a clerk-typist.

IN A REPORT submitted by the police department with the manpower increase request, it was noted that additional men were needed because police calls have been increasing in recent years. The civilian personnel requested would relieve additional men for patrol duties.

Two of the nine new officers requested would be assigned to the detective and youth sections.

The fire department has asked that seven firefighters and four civilian employees be added in 1974. The new firefighters would be used to man a new ladder company, which city fire said is needed because of the increasing number of tall buildings being constructed here.

The civilian employees would be used as alarm room operators and would free trained firefighters for other duties.

The public works department did not request as many new employees, but did submit requests for a major beautification program in addition to more than $70,000 for new equipment.

IN ADDITION to the beautification program, Public Works Comr. Joseph Schwab also asked for additional men and equipment and manpower for the forestry department to handle a major portion of the city's tree trimming and removal work.

Schwab said about $120,000 in fees paid to private contractors could be reduced if the city took over the tree trimming and removal service.

Two injured in head-on auto crash; one critical

Two men were injured, one critically, yesterday when a car strayed into oncoming traffic, sideswiped a truck and collided head-on with another auto on Elmhurst Road in Des Plaines.

In critical condition at Holy Family Hospital was Martin Lukick, 25, of 2912 N. 74th, Elmhurst Park. Police said he suffered extensive head injuries in the collision which also hospitalized a Schiller Park man, Mario Palladino, 38, of 3760 Emerson. He was treated at Holy Family and later released.

According to Des Plaines police, the accident occurred about 9:17 a.m. while Lukick was driving his late model Porsche southbound on Elmhurst Road just south of Cordial Drive.

Kulick's auto reportedly went out of control on the icy roadway, crossed a center strip and went into the northbound lanes where it glanced off a United Parcel Service truck, police said. The auto continued in the opposite lanes and collided with Palladino's oncoming auto, according to police.

The driver of the UPS truck, Howard Battersbury, 23, of 1856 Huron, Chicago, was not injured.

Richard Glass, 32, of R.R. 3, Roselle, remained in critical condition yesterday at Holy Family after colliding with a utility pole in his pickup truck Monday morning.

Glass, part owner of a Mount Prospect service station, suffered severe head, facial and internal injuries in the crash, according to police.

Student's winning essay reveals:

by DOUG MERKEL

America today is beset by many problems. The average citizen is concerned about inflation, crime, food shortages, the energy crisis, and unemployment.

Watergate, corruption on all levels of government, changing moral standards, and America's decline in international prominence worry him. At the end of World War II, America was the dominant nation in world affairs, both economically and militarily. Now the Japanese seem to be outstripping our industrial growth, the Germans undermining our currency, and the Russians have us outgunned.

With all these troubles, it is no wonder that the average American has become pessimistic. Some, in all seriousness, have begun to wonder if there is any good in America today. They ask: "What is right with our nation?" The answer is simply that America is the best place to live in the world today.

CRITICS OF America point to her many shortcomings. By stepping above the immediacy of these issues, however, it becomes apparent that these complaints are grounds for optimism, not pessimism. Americans should be thankful for these "problems," as they would be welcomed anywhere else in the world. Foreign governments admire the way our country functions, yet some homegrown columnists are ready to give up on America. Perhaps a review of the issues plaguing America would be the best defense against pessimism.

Inflation and the cost of living worry most Americans, not without cause. The American economy is inflating at 6 per cent a year, an unprecedented level. Americans long for the "good old days" when a dollar bought more. They overlook the fact that paychecks are rising at 8 per cent a year, giving the average worker more purchasing power than he ever had before. Inflation in America must be considered in relation to the rest of the world. In Europe, a 12 per cent annual rate of inflation would be considered an improvement in most countries. Consider the cost of living in Japan. One egg there costs more than a dozen eggs here, and hamburger sells for many times the price of steak in America. This from the country whose economy is supposedly superior to our own.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN America is up, and the quality of work is down. Roughly 5 per cent of our nation's workers are unemployed. But this is no fault of industry or government. The jobs are there. Many people nowadays prefer not to work or, for various reasons, feel they don't have to work. Undeniably, those who are working are not doing as good a job as they have done in the past. However, through advances in American technology the worker is turning out more than he used to, resulting in America's world-leading gross national product. The decline in quality of American products has not kept them from being sought after on world markets. It seems that the foreign worker is doing a poorer job than his belittled American counterpart.

To most observers it seems that American government is not working. Many of Washington's recent programs seem to have failed. The War on Poverty seems to have increased unemployment without alleviating poverty. When criticizing our policies, Americans should look at Russia. She is our closest foreign counterpart in terms of governmental size and world power. Her most recent Five-Year Plan resulted in food shortages so acute that Russia was forced to concede many positions in return for American grain. Every decade or so, there is a revolt in one of her satellite states (Hungary, 1956; Poland, 1956; Czechoslovakia, 1968) over governmental policy. Government is only human, so failures must be expected. American governmental failures, however, are less notable than those of comparable governments.

THE ENERGY crisis and food shortages are certainly something to worry about. But these are world-wide problems not just national ones. In China, India, and North Africa between one-third and one-half of the population is in danger of starvation. Even among advanced nations, food is much more scarce than in the United States. Arab foreign policy has been a major factor in the current energy crisis. The United States gets less than 10 per cent of its oil from the Arab Republics. Europe, which obtains 28 per cent of its oil from the Arabs, is facing a much more severe energy crisis. While the shortages are world-wide, America is in a better position than most countries.

Critics of America often point to Watergate and the associated scandals and say that America has become corrupt. While grievous errors have been made, this is not the first time in American politics that cheaters have been caught. The marvel is that American government has been so clean in comparison to other governments. More importantly, the American system allows for such wrongdoing to be made public.

The British press has applauded American journalists and the American system from start to finish in this affair. If this had happened in Britain, the press could not have divulged more than a few details about it. In a country so free as Britain, the press is forbidden to attack governmental wrongdoing. In Communist countries, Watergates are weekly occurrences. Yet few people ever hear of these infractions of personal rights, the government-controlled press prints no news of them, and the judicial branch will not prosecute them. Watergate points out the strengths in the American system, not the weaknesses.

America today is the best country in the world in which to live. Those who detract from America point to her various problems. On closer examination, however, the problems are less acute in America than anywhere else in the world. That is what is right with America: man has never fashioned a better system of government, and our system is working well. The mood of the times is one of pessimism and fear, but it is groundless. These problems are real, but insignificant in comparison to all that is good in America.

Charges against robbery suspect are dropped

Charges against a Chicago man in the 1970 armed robbery of a Des Plaines dry cleaning store have been dropped in Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Melvin Davis, 24, of 6420 Cottage Grove Ave., was charged in the three-year-old case by Des Plaines police following his arrest by Chicago police on a disorderly conduct charge last Sunday.

LT. Lee Alfano said the charge was ordered dismissed by Associate Judge J. Marvin Peters because the time limitation for prosecution of the robbery had run out.

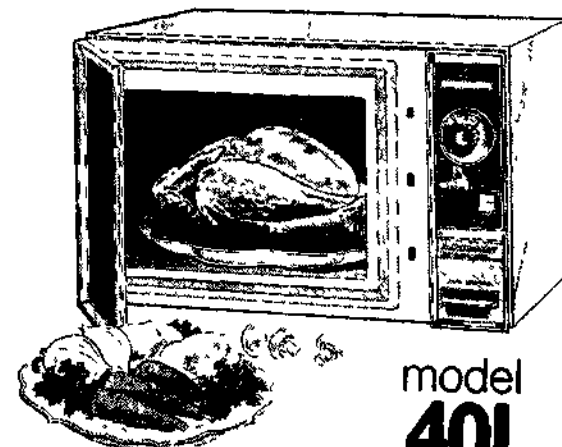

According to reports at the time, Davis was identified as one of three men who held up the One-hour martini store, 1464 Lee St., netting some $800 in cash, clothing and jewels.

Police said Davis and the two other men threatened two store attendants with a sawed-off shotgun and tied the employees up before fleeing.

Davis, who was convicted of a robbery at the same store in 1968, was identified from police photographs. He had served a year in prison, police said.

The two other suspects in the 1970 hold-up were never identified.

Woman dies as 'uncontracted' ambulance stays in station

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started tending over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St. was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martin and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $81 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfeld and Bismar roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the

Roselle Fire Department himself, Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer, but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for it will not be provided.

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

X-rated movie may be shown after all "The Devil in Miss Jones," an X-rated movie that was scheduled for showing last weekend but never hit the screen, may still be shown in the Elk Grove Village Cinema.

Cinema owner Walter Panceo, who said he was forced to withdraw the movie, appeared before the Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday to discuss his theater operation.

Panceo made no promises to Elk Grove Village officials that he will not in the future, show Miss Jones or other X-rated films. He said his attorneys advise him he should not have withdrawn the movie last week after village officials objected to its showing.

Panceo said he has attempted to show family-type movies but is losing money and said village residents don't support the kinds of films the board wants shown.

He said Miss Jones, a film showing explicit sex scenes, drew at least 1,500 cars the first night it was advertised to run.

"I'm not taking any legal action at present, but will have to look over your new ordinance carefully with my and the film distributors' attorneys," Panceo said.

THE OWNER told trustees that their action leaves him several choices.

"I can close it (the theater), sell it, convert it, change the bill of fare, (so far only G and R rated movies have been shown) or I can give it to the village," he said.

"Then you can do what you want with it, see if you can make money," Panceo said.

Panceo was critical of the village board's action. "I can't believe the kind of censorship that is going on here," he said.

Earlier in the day, Panceo met with a group of clergymen. He told them he had no plans to run X-rated films as a regular bill of fare.

He was showing Miss Jones as a last resort to make money and recoup his losses in the past two years, Panceo said.

Village officials who had earlier offered to review films with Panceo before showing, did not at the meeting ask him to submit future films for scrutiny.

"However, in light of the stronger ordinance we passed this past weekend, he himself may want to more carefully screen films he plans to show," said Trustee Nancy Vandeweele.

300 students to debate at Elk Grove High School

More than 300 high school students within a 60-mile radius of Elk Grove Village are expected to attend Elk Grove Village High School's third annual debate tournament Saturday.

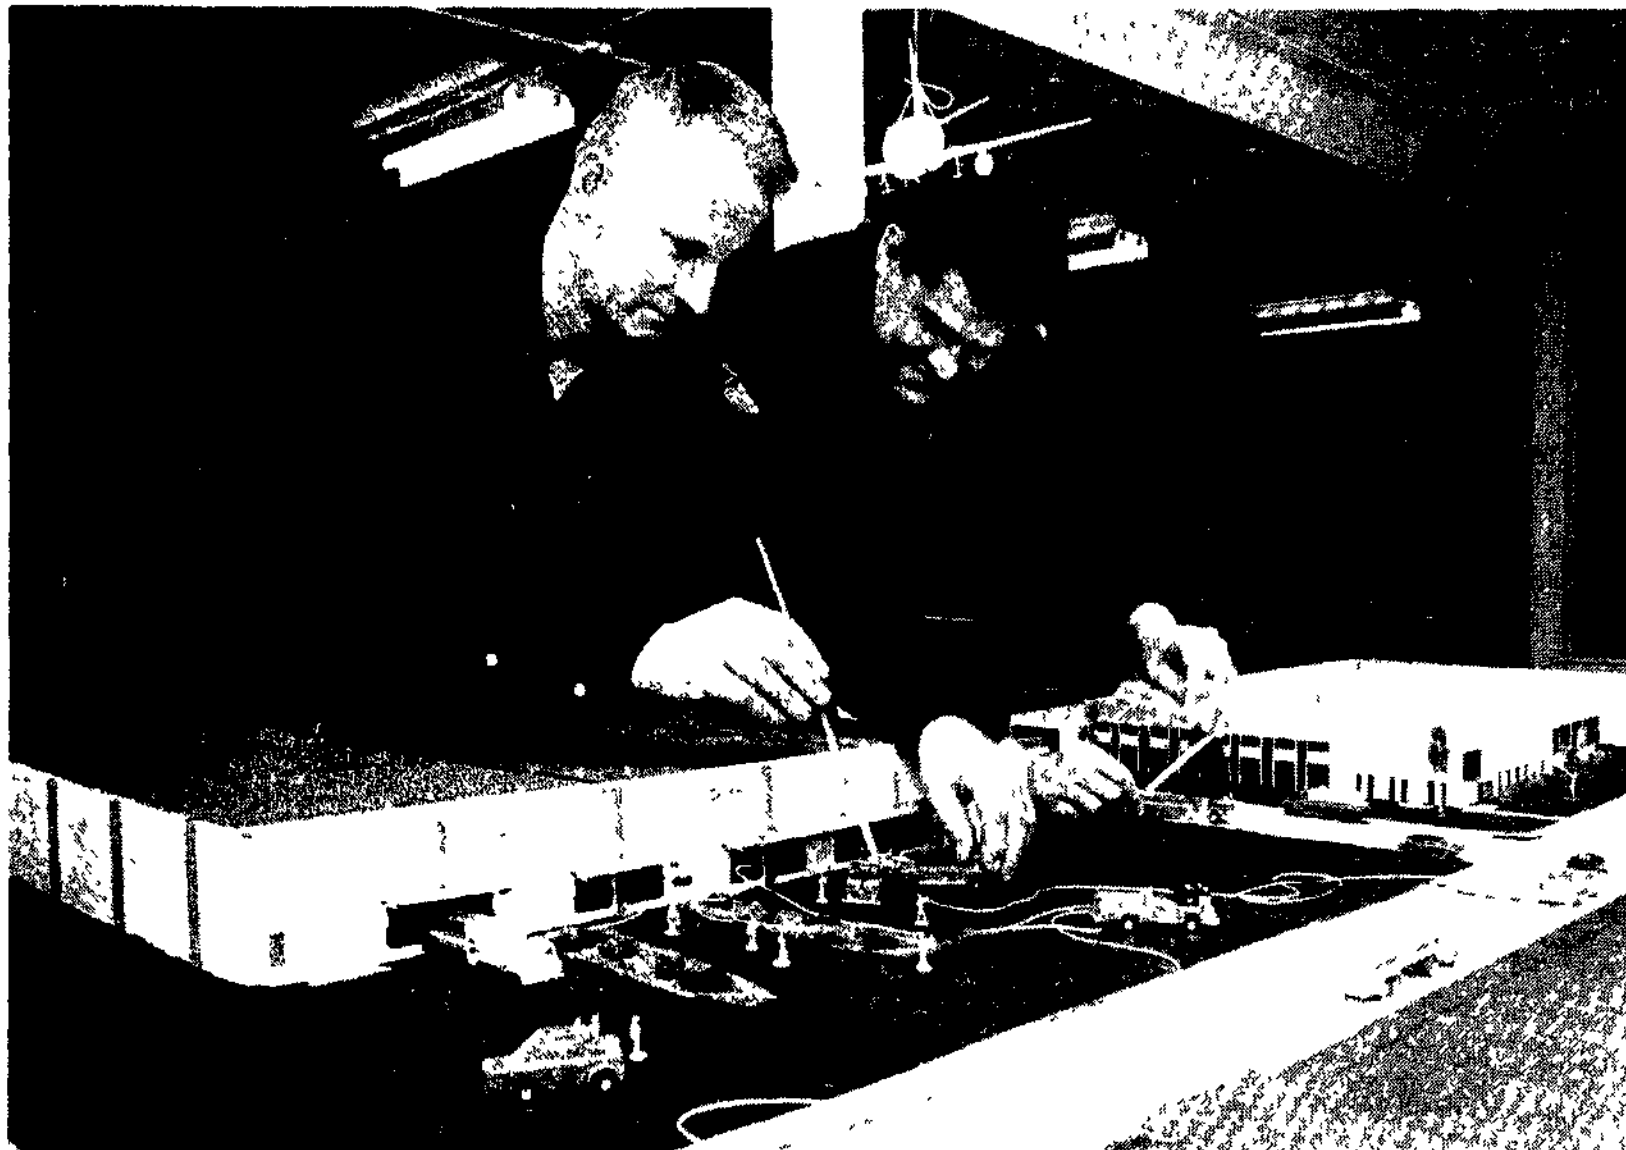

Registration for the tourney will start about 7:30 a.m. with the debating getting under way about 8:15 and continuing to about 3 p.m., according to Rodney Rogers, director of debate at Elk Grove High School.

The tourney will consist of four 75-minute rounds on three levels, varsity, junior varsity and novice. Trophies will be awarded for first, second and third-place finishers on each level with recognition certificates awarded to fourth- and fifth-place finishers.

Participation in the tournament has continued to grow over the past three years according to Rogers. The tournament is now ranked as perhaps the fourth or fifth biggest debate tournament in the state, according to Rogers.

About 60 schools are expected to enter the event with random drawing determining the opponents. Awards will be given out according to overall win-loss records in the tournament.

Debaters will be arguing the pros and cons of the statement: "Resolved, the federal government should give a minimum annual income to each family unit."

STUDENTS IN AN architectural drawing class at Elk Grove High School did these model buildings for the Elk Grove Village Fire Department last quarter. The model duplicates the intersection of Lively Boulevard and Morse Avenue in the village industrial park and will be used by firemen such as Ron Ternberg and Art Rathke for training purposes. School and fire officials say they hope more buildings in the industrial park will be duplicated in the same way if funds are available. Students who worked on the model are Richard Radzisz, Wayne Stoltzman, Tom Stoddard, Mark Christensen, Dan Balla, Jim Gongaware, Jim Heffern and Joe Cimino. Fire Capt. John Mergens built the models of the fire equipment.

Mrs. David Farley

Mrs. Farley joins Alexian board

Mrs. David Farley, 75 Walpole, Elk Grove Village, is the newest member of Alexian Brothers Medical Center's board of trustees. She is the first woman named to the board since its reorganization in 1971 to include lay persons.

Mrs. Farley has been a member of the Elk Grove Village Board of Health since 1970. She was co-author with Mrs. John Bourke of the comprehensive health survey of Elk Grove Village conducted in 1971. She is employed as an assistant in the health planning division of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

The new trustee is currently a member of the Elk Grove Village Flood Committee and the Village and National Birthday Party Committee planning the summer-long celebration of Elk Grove Village's twentieth and the nation's two hundredth birthdays in 1976.

Her husband is the accounting manager for Erman-Howell, a Chicago scrap steel broker. The Farleys are the parents of two children, Kristina, 5, and William, 3.

School meeting to let parents air views

Parents of Clearmont School children in Elk Grove Village will have a chance to air their views on unmet student needs in Dist. 59 at a special meeting tonight.

Some school board members and Supt. James Erviti are expected to attend the meeting to meet with parents.

The series of meetings which will eventually cover all schools in the Elk Grove Township School District, is intended to encourage interested parents and area residents to offer suggestions and comment on unmet educational needs.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. at the school, 280 Clearmont Rd.

Stray animal treatment parley topic tomorrow

A small group of Elk Grove Village residents, concerned with the treatment of stray animals picked up by the village, will meet with village officials tomorrow night to discuss the situation.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis and Police Chief Harry Jenkins are expected to attend the meeting. Care of the animals picked up by the village has been the responsibility of the police and fire departments.

A spokesman for the group, Joan Brosseit, said the meeting was called to discuss all problems involved with the keeping of strays, but particularly to discuss the fact that more organization is needed in caring for the animals.

The group has previously charged that incomplete records on animals kept at the village's holding pens have been kept, making it hard for the group to find homes for the animals. The group has also worked to improve conditions at the pens.

The group recently adopted a formal name, according to Mrs. Brosseit. The name of the group is "PETS, ETC." (People Eager to Trace Strays and Encourage Their Care).

All interested citizens are invited to attend the meeting, according to Mrs. Brosseit. The meeting will start at 7 p.m. at the village hall, 901 Wellington Ave.

School bus safety program gets under way

A parent supervisory program went into effect this week for a school bus carrying kindergartners to Adolph Link School in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54.

Mothers from the Hanover Park area of the township formed the program after the Dec. 20 school bus-related death of Robyn Bradshaw, 5, in Hanover Park. The kindergartners from Hanover Park are transported six miles to Link School.

A mother was on hand on the pickup and return routes to assist the children in entering and exiting the bus. The mothers are part of a group of Hanover Park residents who have formed a group committed to bus safety.

Ronald Ruble, assistant superintendent of transportation for Dist. 54, said a recommendation about manning all buses containing kindergartners with paid supervisory personnel will probably be presented to the board of education at its next meeting Jan. 17.

The group is circulating petitions in the southwest corner of the township. One type of petition calls for elimination of busing in the school district for youngsters under 10 years of age, and the other for increased school bus safety.

Leaders of the group are planning to meet with area legislators concerning bus safety.

School referendum sound, team of profs declares

A $16.6 million Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 referendum has been called "financially sound" by a team of Northern Illinois University professors completing a study for the Unit District Committee.

The committee was formed in Schaumburg last year to investigate the advisability of forming one school district governing elementary, junior high and high schools in the township.

Dr. Robert Belnap, of the consulting staff, said he favors the issue being put to voters Feb. 16. He also indicated the possibility of reducing future building levies through assistance from the Illinois Capital Development board, from which loans for school construction and retirement of building bonds is available.

BELNAP'S REMARKS came in a letter sent this week to unit district study committee members and Dist. 54 officials.

He called the proposal "in line with enrollment projections and costs, which appear a little high but probably realistic."

Adjustments, he suggested, can be made as actual bids are received.

The consultants favor plans for a $15.9 million five-year plan for the renovation of eight older schools and construction of 12 new buildings.

But the team believes a $700,000 administrative center "might be a question mark."

"Certainly, it is needed if Dist. 54 remains a separate entity, but if the area shifts to a unit district organization, this might change," Belnap's letter noted.

OTHER COMMENT included these recommendations:

- The minimum size elementary school house 450 to 600 pupils and junior high buildings contain 750-1,200 students.

- Jane Addams Junior High is not at capacity and should not accept more pupils.

- Future schools be built on sites of five to 12 acres.

- Portable classrooms should be either eliminated or a study done to provide improved ventilation and closed passages to main buildings.

- Consideration should be given to establishment of a district-wide hot lunch program.

THE TEAM predicted Dist. 54 will benefit greatly from financial assistance for building construction and retirement of bonds available through the state capital development board.

The board of education voted last week to approve applications for these funds which would help retire costs of the new building program.

However, Belnap said the district has given "little consideration to extended year r year round concepts" which consultants feel should have been examined before entering a new building program.

Results of the entire unit district study are due next month.

Funds for the project have been provided by Schaumburg United Party and Schaumburg Jayceettes.

Frank Manske to get Eagle Scout badge

An Elk Grove Village Boy Scout will receive his Eagle Scout badge in special ceremonies next week.

Frank Manske, 17, of 200 Ridgewood Rd., will receive the honor at Christus Victor Lutheran Church Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Manske, a member of Elk Grove Village Troop 284, is a senior at Elk Grove High School where he is a member of the swim team. He has been in scouting since 1964.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony at the church, 1053 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

No clues in murder of Rolling Meadows man

Rosemont police have found no new leads in the case surrounding the murder Monday of Rolando Letran, 28, of 2316 Algonquin Pkwy., Rolling Meadows.

Rosemont police Lt. David Covill said yesterday a set of palm prints from Letran's car had been discovered but no identification had been made from the prints. The prints were sent yesterday to the Chicago Crime Lab for study, Covill said.

A possible suspect in the slaying had been considered following the discovery of Letran's frozen body in the parking lot of a car rental dealer in the western suburb, but police yesterday had not picked up the man for questioning.

Letran's body was found Tuesday in the back seat of his car which had been left in the parking lot of the American International Car Rental Co., 6575 Mannheim Rd. His hands and feet had been bound. He had been shot once in the forehead with a small caliber handgun, police said.

Covill yesterday said police are investigating robbery as a possible motive for the slaying. According to Rolling Meadows police Det. Charles Smith, Letran's savings of $3,700 had been withdrawn from his account at the Northwest Trust and Savings Bank in Arlington Heights before his death. The money was not found.

COVILL ADDED the slaying "doesn't look like it" was connected to gangland activities.

Smith said Letran's wife, Maria, told police she last saw her husband early Monday when he dropped her off at the home of an Arlington Heights doctor where she works as a housekeeper. Police said Letran was apparently seen arriving at his place of work, the Multigraphics Company in Mount Prospect, shortly after dropping off his wife. Workers said, however, he never came in for work.

Broken gas line in home causes $4,000 blaze

A broken gas line that ignited under a kitchen cabinet was responsible for $4,000 fire damage Tuesday to a home at 1282 Carswell Ln., Elk Grove Village.

Fire Chief Allen Hulett said escaping gas spewing from the line was ignited by a stove pilot light.

Mrs. E. A. Knabel, who rents the home, told firemen she was putting away a metal dish in a cabinet under an overhead oven and bumped a flexible gas pipe with the dish.

She said it ignited almost immediately and the cabinet began to burn.

Firemen were called at 4:22 p.m. and shut off the gas before extinguishing the fire, said Hulett.

$22 million annual budget proves it

Schools truly a business enterprise

by KATHERINE BOYCE

When a school district has an annual budget of $22 million, investing its money is no nickel-and-dime operation.

Since 1969, High School Dist. 211 has earned a total of $1.4 million in interest on its investments. Business Mgr. James Slater says the district will earn about $819,000 this year, maybe $900,000 if the market is good.

Dist. 211 is a big business. It has about 9,000 students, 500 teachers and a monthly payroll of $900,000. Instead of investing stockholder money as in private enterprise, school officials are putting tax dollars to work earning thousands of dollars in interest each year. This money all comes back to the schools to build classrooms, buy books and supplies and pay salaries.

When outside auditor's review the district's finances, Dist. 211's investment program is usually one of the things most favorably commented on, says Slater. The investment program is a success, he says, because the business office carefully monitors the amount of money coming in and the amount of money going out and invests much of what is left over.

Slater and bookkeeper Verle Niekamp check the district's cash flow the first thing each morning. They pay the bills, figure when other bills will fall due and when they will receive the next state aid or tax revenue payment. After leaving a balance of $35,000 as a contingency fund, they invest all unspent funds by purchasing United States Treasury Bills or certificates of deposit.

DURING THE months of June and September, when the district receives the bulk of its tax revenue for the year, Slater makes several short term investments totaling between $3 million and $4 million. The district can earn as much as 10 per cent interest on the investments, depending on the length of time involved.

"Anyone who doesn't make use of their capital assets and put them to work is not doing his job," says Slater. "I squeeze that dollar as hard as I can."

One result of the investment program is lower taxes. When additional revenue is coming in as interest, the school district doesn't have to raise the tax rate, says Slater. Since 1969 Dist. 211 has in fact lowered its tax rate from $2.72 to $2.66 per $100 assessed valuation of land in the district, and has opened two new high schools. "Through good fund management we can keep the tax rate low," he says.

Slater also uses an investment program for student activity funds. Last year Slater invested about $60,000 from 200 student accounts and gave the interest back to the student organizations. Students in one of the district's high schools wanted a photo copy machine in their library for student use. They bought it with money earned as interest.

WHEN THE investment program is applied to funds for the construction of new buildings, the interest acts as a cushion against inflation. In 1970 Dist. 211 voters passed a referendum to finance construction of school buildings through the sale of bonds. Slater invests the money from the sale of these bonds and the interest he earns is more than the interest the district eventually will pay when the bonds are retired.

The extra income helps to make up the difference between what the voters approved in 1970 and what it will actually cost to build the district's sixth high school in 1976, says Slater.

Unlike private industry school districts have to follow the Illinois school code which does not allow them to make risky investments. In other words, says Slater, "We can't speculate on the stock market." The code allows only investments that can't lose money, such as federal mortgage notes, United States Treasury Bills and certificates of deposit.

Dist. 211 has done most of its banking with the Northern Trust Bank in Chicago. "It's a major Chicago bank and as such has several service departments. They have a large staff of people schooled in investment practices," says Slater. Although the district occasionally shops around for the best interest rate, "we earned $1.4 million in interest in the last four years by investing tax revenue.

normally get the best rate at Northern," he says, and investing in one bank is more efficient than "farming your money out to several different banks."

The district has smaller accounts in local banks, an account for employee paychecks at the First Bank and Trust in Palatine, and student activity and cafeteria accounts at the First National Bank of Palatine. The local banks are used for convenience, says Slater. It is safer to transport currency to a local bank. Slater says he has had inquiries from other banks in the district, but again, he doesn't want to spread the district's money thin.

Unincorporated areas being sought

by JOANN VAN WYE
A news analyst

Control of fringe development and growth and additional revenue dollars are the quests of Palatine officials as they attempt to lure residents of unincorporated areas into the village.

However, they are quick to point out that annexation is not a one-sided proposition but is mutually beneficial to the homeowner and the village. For homeowners, annexation means financial savings and additional services, village officials contend.

In the past month Palatine officials have taken their story to two skeptical homeowners groups in unincorporated Palatine Township and hope to reach more residents in the coming months.

"We have a story to tell and we would like to tell as many people as we can," said Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

"CAUTION" is the way Jones described the response of homeowners in Lake Park Estates and Palatine Park to the village's annexation pitch.

"We have made progress but you can't do it all at one meeting," said Jones. "There is a suspicious feeling that if they are in the village their taxes will go up. We go in challenging that statement."

"We try to overcome the misconceptions through an aggressive educational program," said Jones.

"The position of the Lake Park Estates Board is neutral at this stage. We are planning to pursue this with the Village of Palatine but that should not be construed as an endorsement of annexation," said Thomas Smith, president of the Lake Park Estates Homeowners Assn. Smith said there were mixed emotions on the annexation question now and the homeowners association was planning a vote on the question within the next three months to get the feeling of the residents.

The principal concern is higher taxes, according to Smith.

While there is no denying annexation would hike the homeowner's tax bill, Palatine officials contend the financial benefits to be gained from annexation more than offset the higher taxes.

ANNEXATION TO the village would result in a tax hike of $1.084 per $100 assessed valuation. The tax rate for homeowners in unincorporated Palatine Township is now $6.568 per $100 assessed valuation. When the rural fire protection tax and rural park district taxes are subtracted the rate is reduced to $6.52 per $100 assessed valuation. This compares to the $7.672 per $100 assessed valuation homeowners pay in village and park district taxes.

A homeowner in unincorporated Palatine Township with an equalized valuation of $14,429 would pay an additional $156.41 in taxes if he was annexed to the village. However, 20 per cent of the increased tax cost is tax deductible for an actual increase of $125.13.

Offsetting the $125.13 increase, according to village officials, are reduced water and sewer rates, free library passes, resident rates for Palatine Park District programs, lower fire insurance costs, lower refuse service rates and increased police protection.

Savings on water and sewer rates alone can offset the increase in taxes, according to village figures. Water and sewer rates are nearly three times higher outside the village. Using rates charged by L & K Utility Co., which was purchased by the village in December paving the way for annexation of Palatine Park, residents in unincorporated Palatine Township pay $66.11 quarterly for the usage of 22,500 gallons, compared to $19.60 in the village. The quarterly difference of $46.51 nets an annual savings of $146.04.

THE CATCH, however, is that the village board has passed a resolution whereby the $85,000 purchase price of L

Maintenance chief hired for golf course

A new superintendent of golf course maintenance, Francis J. Krueger, was hired Tuesday by Palatine Park District commissioners for the Palatine Hills Golf Course.

Krueger begins his duties Feb. 25, and will replace William Miller who will be retiring March 1. Krueger has been superintendent of the Bartlett Hill Golf Course for the past 10 years. He is 44 years old and a resident of Rolling Meadows.

The new superintendent's annual salary will be $12,500. Park officials are expected to hire a golf course manager within the next few weeks to replace the recently deceased Rex McMorris, former manager of golf course operations.

Chlorine leak sends worker to hospital

A chlorine leak blamed on a faulty valve mechanism sent one workman to the hospital yesterday morning after he was overcome by fumes at the Hong Wing Restaurant, 121 W. Palatine Rd., Palatine.

Martin Jensen, Glen Ellyn, was treated and released at Northwest Community Hospital after the 10:55 a.m. accident yesterday. Jensen had been cleaning a water main to the new restaurant when he was unable to shut off the chlorine flow, according to Palatine Fireman Bill Notland.

Chlorine fumes, which can be highly poisonous, also began drifting into the neighboring Illinois Bell office building through a roof air blower. Firemen ventilated the building and no other injuries were reported.

'Unpaid' ambulance stays put; woman dies

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $84 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfeld and Bissner roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department, which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the

Roselle Fire Department himself, Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided."

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

Palatine annexation pitch: it's mutually beneficial...

& K Utility Co. will be amortized by the surplus between current village rates and the rates charged by L & K Utility Co. and include the 5 1/2 per cent interest rate. This means Palatine Park homeowners will pay higher water and sewer rates until the $85,000 and interest is paid off whether they are in the village or not.

This only affects the 66 homeowners of Palatine Park and Timberlake Apartments which are serviced by L & K but it also sets a precedent. Village ordinance requires all parcels in the village be serviced by the village's water and sewer system so more utility purchases will be necessitated as Palatine attempts to round out its boundaries through annexation. Most of unincorporated Palatine Township is served by Ferndale Heights Utility Co.

There has been some indication the village board might be willing to reconsider the water rates charged to Palatine Park homeowners if they annexed in view of the additional revenue their annexation would mean to the village.

Water and sewer rates do not pose a problem with Lake Park Estates where the homeowners have septic systems and own their own wells.

Fire insurance rates are steeper in unincorporated areas because of their class 9 rating whereas the village has class 6 rating. A local insurance man estimated the annual savings for fire insurance because of the different rating would be $30 for the home with an equalized valuation of $14,429.

RESIDENTS WHO use the village library and park district facilities would have additional savings. The non-resident fee for a family library pass is $30 and the Palatine Park District fees vary but can be more than double the cost to residents.

The library and park district savings are debatable. The Palatine library board has been seriously talking about becoming a library district which would take in the unincorporated areas. The Palatine Rural Park District has been a tax shelter district for years but following April's election the new commissioners raised the tax levy significantly and have taken steps to make the rural park district a viable park district serving the subdivisions which have sprung up in the unincorporated areas.

Financial drawbacks to annexation, besides higher taxes, include the cost of village vehicle stickers and dog and cat licenses.

Financial benefits to the village from annexation are increased motor fuel taxes, increased revenue sharing funds, more sales tax revenue and a broader tax base to spread its taxes across thereby lowering the tax rates of all village residents.

WILLIAM HIBNER, Palatine's financial director, warned the financial gains to Palatine from annexation of unincorporated areas might not be immediate. He explained motor fuel tax and revenue sharing funds are based on the village's official census. An official census will not be taken in Palatine until 1980 unless a new one is ordered by the village at the village's expense.

"Everyone gains from it (annexation). People identified as living in Palatine would be truly from Palatine," said Jones. "We get all the flack for things that go wrong out there, we might as well have the responsibility to see these things are correct."

Control, even more than the financial gains, is the village's main motivation in annexing unincorporated areas, said Jones.

"We want to determine our logical boundaries so we can control land close to us in terms of zoning and don't have to rely on the Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals to determine land use," said Jones.

THE ONLY OTHER way to gain control is "to give the township zoning power or disannex from Cook County," said Jones.

Jones described the logical boundaries of Palatine as Euclid Avenue on the south, Roselle Road on the west, Dundee Road on the north and Ill. Rte. 53 on the east.

At the present time village officials are looking to the north in terms of annexation. The village has a preannexation agreement with developers of Countryside Apartments whereby they will annex to the village when the apartments are contiguous. (A similar preannexation agreement is being considered with owners of the proposed Ramada Inn at Northwest Highway and Quentin Roads.)

Village officials would like the area to become contiguous with Countryside as soon as possible so they can broaden the tax base of the village and reap some of the profits, in the form of sales tax, from the Countryside Mall. The village currently has a well under construction on the Countryside property.

In addition to Lake Park Estates and Palatine Park, village officials are considering Heatherlea, English Valley and Pepper Tree Farms subdivisions for annexation.

ANOTHER MAJOR stumbling block to annexation is the village's subdivision standards. Past village boards have taken a hard line that subdivisions annexed to the village must conform with the village's subdivision standards.

To many homeowners this means they will have to give up the country atmosphere that attracted them to the subdivision and pay the added expense of installing sidewalks, street lights and making road improvements.

Jones indicated the present village board might be willing to negotiate subdivision standards. He further indicated if the board did require sidewalks, street lights and other improvements, the board might be willing to share in the expense because of the increased revenue the village would realize from the annexation.

On paper annexation appears financially beneficial to homeowners but actual savings depend on many as yet undetermined variables. Among the undetermined variables are water and sewer rates, formation of a library district, negotiations on subdivision standards and where the Palatine Rural Park District is going.

Beanbags promise reading skills for kindergartners

by REGINA OEHLER

Skipping, hopping, running and playing with beanbags in kindergarten can help a child learn to read and write in the first grade.

Movement education, a systematic approach to exercises such as running and jumping, is used in all Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 kindergartens. It helps students control eye movements and learn left from right. Both of these things are important in learning to read or write, according to Lois Dohra, physical education department chairman.

Through practicing catching bean bags in one hand and working on the intricacies of hopping, children improve their control over both large and small muscles — which can make it easier for them to control a pencil, she said.

MOVEMENT EDUCATION also improves listening skills, the concepts of straight and curved and develops an awareness of self, according to Miss Dohra.

By listening to instructions on how to perform the exercises, the children practice and improve their listening abilities. By standing straight or curving their bodies the concept of straight and curves is reinforced, Miss Dohra said.

The program also teaches the child the various parts of the body and coordination, she added.

Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley said there may be other types of programs that would accomplish the same objectives, but they haven't been developed.

"This is a new field," he said, "and at the moment this is the best program we can come up with."

THE PROGRAM is based on a physical education project developed in the Wheeling elementary school district, Miss Dohra said. After three years of use and through trial and error methods, Dist. 15 has developed its own variation of the Wheeling physical education idea and last summer dubbed its program "movement education."

Each child in Dist. 15 spends two hours weekly on movement education. During this time, volunteers — also called "motor moms" — take groups of three to five youngsters and work on specific exercises.

"It takes a lot of time on the mothers' part," Miss Dohra said. "But without them you can't have the program."

The mothers generally spend two hours a week working with the youngsters and have brief meetings before and after every teaching session.

"IT'S WELL WORTH IT," said Anita Nemeth, a motor mom at Gray Sanborn School in Palatine. "I've seen my kids improve. They learn to listen — that's pretty important — and it's a hard thing for kids to do."

She said that most of the time, the mothers work on exercises with the children. Occasionally, the youngsters won't want to listen, so they play games instead.

"It's fun," she said. "Some of the things can get really hard for them." She said youngsters generally have difficulty throwing a bean bag into the air and catching it with one hand. "When they find out they can do it, they're happy, too."

$22 million annual budget proves itSchools truly a business enterprise

by KATHERINE BOYCE

When a school district has an annual budget of $22 million, investing its money is no nickel-and-dime operation.

Since 1969, High School Dist. 211 has earned a total of $1.4 million in interest on its investments. Business Mgr. James Slater says the district will earn about $819,000 this year, maybe $900,000 if the market is good.

Dist. 211 is a big business. It has about 9,000 students, 500 teachers and a monthly payroll of $900,000. Instead of investing stockholder money as in private enterprise, school officials are putting tax dollars to work earning thousands of dollars in interest each year. This money all comes back to the schools to build classrooms, buy books and supplies and pay salaries.

When outside auditor's review the district's finances, Dist. 211's investment program is usually one of the things most favorably commented on, says Slater. The investment program is a success, he says, because the business office carefully monitors the amount of money coming in and the amount of money going out and invests much of what is left over.

Slater and bookkeeper Verle Niekamp check the district's cash flow the first thing each morning. They pay the bills, figure when other bills will fall due and when they will receive the next state aid or tax revenue payment. After leaving a balance of $35,000 as a contingency fund, they invest all unspent funds by purchasing United States Treasury Bills or certificates of deposit.

DURING THE months of June and September, when the district receives the bulk of its tax revenue for the year, Slater makes several short term investments totaling between $3 million and $4 million. The district can earn as much as 10 per cent interest on the investments, depending on the length of time involved.

"Anyone who doesn't make use of their capital assets and put them to work is not doing his job," says Slater. "I squeeze that dollar as hard as I can."

One result of the investment program is lower taxes. When additional revenue is coming in as interest, the school district doesn't have to raise the tax rate, says Slater. Since 1969 Dist. 211 has in fact lowered its tax rate from $2.72 to $2.66 per $100 assessed valuation of land in the district, and has opened two new high schools. "Through good fund management we can keep the tax rate low," he says.

Slater also uses an investment program for student activity funds. Last year Slater invested about $80,000 from 200 student accounts and gave the interest back to the student organizations. Students in one of the district's high schools wanted a photo copy machine in their library for student use. They bought it with money earned as interest.

WHEN THE investment program is applied to funds for the construction of new buildings, the interest acts as a cushion against inflation. In 1970 Dist. 211 voters passed a referendum to finance construction of school buildings through the sale of bonds. Slater invests the money from the sale of these bonds and the interest he earns is more than the interest the district eventually will pay when the bonds are retired.

The extra income helps to make up the difference between what the voters approved in 1970 and what it will actually cost to build the district's sixth high school in 1978, says Slater.

Unlike private industry school districts have to follow the Illinois school code which does not allow them to make risky investments. In other words, says Slater, "We can't speculate on the stock market." The code allows only investments that can't lose money, such as federal mortgage notes, United States Treasury Bills and certificates of deposit.

Dist. 211 has done most of its banking with the Northern Trust Bank in Chicago. "It's a major Chicago bank and as such has several service departments. They have a large staff of people schooled in investment practices," says Slater. Although the district occasionally shops around for the best interest rate, "we earned $1.4 million in interest in the last four years by investing tax revenue.

normally get the best rate at Northern," he says, and investing in one bank is more efficient than "farming your money out to several different banks."

The district has smaller accounts in local banks, an account for employee paychecks at the First Bank and Trust in Palatine, and student activity and cafeteria accounts at the First National Bank of Palatine. The local banks are used for convenience, says Slater. It is safer to transport currency to a local bank. Slater says he has had inquiries from other banks in the district, but again, he doesn't want to spread the district's money thin.

Mayor to name Schmitt's successor soon

Rolling Meadows Welfare Director Nicholas Schmitt, has resigned.

Schmitt's resignation was officially announced Tuesday by Mayor Roland J. Meyer during a city council meeting. Meyer said Schmitt's letter of resignation cited several reasons for his departure, including expanding job duties at Bantam Books in Des Plaines where he is a vice president, and plans to help in the election campaign of Chicago Ald. Seymour Simon for Judge this year.

Schmitt said yesterday Simon, a personal friend, had asked his help in the campaign. He also said he intends to campaign for State Rep. Richard A. Mugalian, D-Palatine, for reelection this year.

After the campaigns, Schmitt said he intends to pursue efforts to organize lawyers in the city to provide free legal aid to needy families and to establish a clinic in the city for medical care for the needy.

Schmitt had been welfare director for seven months.

MEYER SAID Tuesday he would appoint Schmitt's successor probably at the next council meeting. The department's current assistant director is Rena Trevor, a member of the board of directors of the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Mrs. Trevor was appointed to the welfare post in May.

Schmitt's resignation marks the second time in less than a year that the director of the department has resigned. In May, former director Phillip Prete resigned after two years as the department's chief. He cited at the time the controversy in April surrounding city funding for the Northwest Opportunity Center as in part responsible for his decision.

THE WELFARE department became part of a debate last year on whether the city should contribute $2,000 to the center to help offset federal funding cuts to the center. The request was turned down by the city after weeks of argument among officials.

Schmitt, a former city alderman, had been a city welfare department official since his appointment in 1971 as assistant director.

Meyer Tuesday praised Schmitt's work with the department, saying he has done "an outstanding job" and had "taken the time that the job needs."

The welfare department was established several years ago to assist needy families in the city. Assistance is provided on a temporary basis.

No clues in murder of Rolling Meadows man

Rosemont police have found no new leads in the case surrounding the murder Monday of Rolando Letran, 28, of 2316 Algonquin Pkwy., Rolling Meadows.

Rosemont police Lt. David Covill said yesterday a set of palm prints from Letran's car had been discovered but no identification had been made from the prints. The prints were sent yesterday to the Chicago Crime Lab for study. Covill said.

A possible suspect in the slaying had been considered following the discovery of Letran's frozen body in the parking lot of a car rental dealer in the western suburb, but police yesterday had not picked up the man for questioning.

Letran's body was found Tuesday in the back seat of his car which had been left in the parking lot of the American International Car Rental Co., 6575 Mannheim Rd. His hands and feet had been bound. He had been shot once in the forehead with a small caliber handgun, police said.

Covill yesterday said police are investigating robbery as a possible motive for the slaying. According to Rolling Meadows police Det. Charles Smith, Letran's savings of $3,700 had been withdrawn from his account at the Northwest Trust and Savings Bank in Arlington Heights before his death. The money was not found.

COVILL ADDED the slaying "doesn't look like it" was connected to gangland activities.

Smith said Letran's wife, Maria, told police she last saw her husband early Monday when he dropped her off at the home of an Arlington Heights doctor where she works as a housekeeper. Police said Letran was apparently seen arriving at his place of work, the Multigraphics Company in Mount Prospect, shortly after dropping off his wife. Workers said, however, he never came in for work.

EVELYN RAUPP, one of the many "motor moms" who help kindergarten youngsters at Gray Sandborn School work on muscle skills and coordination, teaches 5-year-old Krisie Helgeson the best way to balance a stick. See story on Page 8.

'Unpaid' ambulance stays put; woman dies

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettie, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $94 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettie, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfield and Bisner roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department, which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettie's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettie. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettie telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettie home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettie's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettie, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettie's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettie called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettie home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettie called the Roselle Fire Department himself, Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettie home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettie at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free.

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided.

"The Petties were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

$22 million annual budget proves it

Schools truly a business enterprise

by KATHERINE BOYCE

When a school district has an annual budget of $22 million, investing its money is no nickel-and-dime operation.

Since 1969, High School Dist. 211 has earned a total of $1.4 million in interest on its investments. Business Mgr. James Slater says the district will earn about $819,000 this year, maybe $900,000 if the market is good.

Dist. 211 is a big business. It has about 9,000 students, 500 teachers and a monthly payroll of $800,000. This money all comes back to the schools to build classrooms, buy books and supplies and pay salaries.

When outside auditor's review the district's finances, Dist. 211's investment program is usually one of the things most favorably commented on, says Slater. The investment program is a success, he says, because the business office carefully monitors the amount of money coming in and the amount of money going out and invests much of what is left over.

Slater and bookkeeper Verle Niekamp check the district's cash flow the first thing each morning. They pay the bills, figure when other bills will fall due and when they will receive the next state aid or tax revenue payment. After leaving a balance of $35,000 as a contingency fund, they invest all unspent funds by purchasing United States Treasury Bills or certificates of deposit.

DURING THE months of June and September, when the district receives the bulk of its tax revenue for the year, Slater makes several short term investments totaling between $3 million and $4 million. The district can earn as much as 10 per cent interest on the investments, depending on the length of time involved.

"Anyone who doesn't make use of their capital assets and put them to work is not doing his job," says Slater. "I squeeze that dollar as hard as I can."

One result of the investment program is lower taxes. When additional revenue is coming in as interest, the school district doesn't have to raise the tax rate, says Slater. Since 1969 Dist. 211 has in fact lowered its tax rate from $2.72 to $2.66 per $100 assessed valuation of land in the district, and has opened two new high schools. "Through good fund management we can keep the tax rate low," he says.

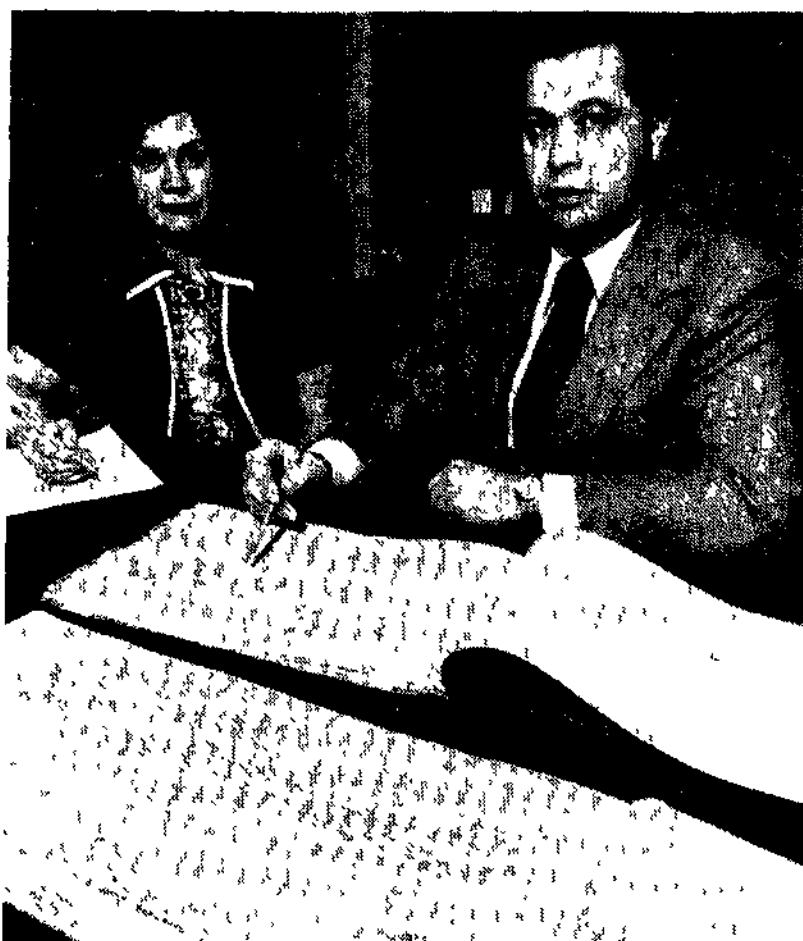

Slater also uses an investment program for student activity funds. Last year Slater invested about $80,000 from 200 student accounts and gave the interest back to the student organizations. Students in one of the district's high schools wanted a photo copy machine in their library for student use. They bought it with money earned as interest.

WHEN THE investment program is applied to funds for the construction of new buildings, the interest acts as a cushion against inflation. In 1970 Dist. 211 voters passed a referendum to finance construction of school buildings through the sale of bonds. Slater invests the money from the sale of these bonds and the interest he earns is more than the interest the district eventually will pay when the bonds are retired.

The extra income helps to make up the difference between what the voters approved in 1970 and what it will actually cost to build the district's sixth high school in 1976, says Slater.

Unlike private industry school districts have to follow the Illinois school code which does not allow them to make risky investments. In other words, says Slater, "We can't speculate on the stock market." The code allows only investments that can't lose money, such as federal mortgage notes, United States Treasury Bills and certificates of deposit.

Dist. 211 has done most of its banking with the Northern Trust Bank in Chicago. "It's a major Chicago bank and as such has several service departments. They have a large staff of people schooled in investment practices," says Slater. Although the district occasionally shops around for the best interest rate, "we earned $1.4 million in interest in the last four years by investing tax revenue.

normally get the best rate at Northern," he says, and investing in one bank is more efficient than "farming your money out to several different banks."

The district has smaller accounts in local banks, an account for employee paychecks at the First Bank and Trust in Palatine, and student activity and cafeteria accounts at the First National Bank of Palatine. The local banks are used for convenience, says Slater. It is safer to transport currency to a local bank. Slater says he has had inquiries from other banks in the district, but again, he doesn't want to spread the district's money thin.

City council wrapup

Don't look now, but Christmas is back

Christmas may be gone, but its spirit lingers on in Rolling Meadows.

The city council Tuesday gave its approval to a resolution to set up one of the city's newly-acquired State Street Christmas decorations in each of the city's shopping centers. The action was requested by chamber of commerce Director Harry O'Brien to help stimulate interest among residents in a fund-raising drive for the decorations.

The decorations were purchased by the city at a cost of $16,000. The chamber has agreed to organize a drive among businessmen and residents to raise money to help pay back the city for part of the purchase cost.

The decorations were taken down this week from the Chicago Loop and delivered to Rolling Meadows.

Time switch forces change

The starting time of city council meetings has been set at 8 p.m. on the second and fourth Tuesday of each month except for the summer months between May and October. During those months the starting time will be 8:30 p.m.

The policy was adopted Tuesday because of the national change-over this week to year-round Daylight Savings Time. The city council had previously followed a rule of starting its meetings at 8:30 p.m. during Daylight Savings Time, but the working of the policy had to be changed because of the federal time switch.

Meetings are held at the city hall, 3600 Kirchoff Rd.

City in flower show?

The city council tabled a decision Tuesday to grant money to the recycling, ecology and beautification (REB) committee to participate in the Chicago Flower and Garden Show in March.

The committee had originally requested $1,800 for materials and expenses required to participate in the show, but committee chairman Evelyn Drummond told City Mgr. James Watson that figure had been revised to $1,200. The council put off a decision on granting the money until the cost breakdown estimated by the committee can be studied.

The show is held annually in McCormick Place. It has drawn crowds of 800,000 persons. Some city officials have said participation could provide a good avenue of publicity for the city. Booth space at the show has been offered to the city free of charge.

Four times last year's

Proposed library budget tops $400,000

The proposed budget for the Rolling Meadows Public Library has almost quadrupled this year, mainly because of plans for expanding the existing library building.

The budget, which will be submitted to the city council later this year for final approval, totals $402,950. This represents an almost $300,000 increase over last year's $105,045 adopted budget.

The new budget was accepted by the library board at Tuesday night's meeting. If it is accepted by the city council, which is expected to pick up the tab for expansion, it will go into effect May 1.

A total of $250,000 was budgeted for the expansion of the library. The other approximate $50,000 increase is due to spiraling costs. Library director Virginia Connell said that a book which cost $7.98 last year, now costs between $10 and $12.

THE EXPANSION of the present library, on Martin Lane near Meadow Drive, would likely take place to the west, on what is now a vacant lot site owned by developer Kimball Hill.

The acquisition of about 1½ acres of the approximate five-acre site may be made this year, but the purchase will depend on how much, if any, of the cost can be paid by the city.

Though the library board is a separate taxing body within the city and levies its own tax of 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation, the city in the past has picked up part of the tab on the library budget. This provides services which could not otherwise be provided by the library without a tax referendum.

CITY OFFICIALS have projected a surplus of about $400,000 in the city budget by the end of the fiscal year in April. Subsidies for other taxing bodies, such as the library, could come from the surplus upon city council approval.

Though library costs have risen in all areas, six items have been cut from last year to provide $6,530 for a possible computer service which could start in September. A final decision on the service has to be made before Jan. 25 and the library board called a special meeting for Jan. 22 specifically to make a decision on the proposed service.

Learning to read—by using bean bags

by REGINA OEHLER

Skipping, hopping, running and playing with beanbags in kindergarten can help a child learn to read and write in the first grade.

Movement education, a systematic approach to exercises such as running and jumping, is used in all Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 kindergartens. It helps students control eye movements and learn left from right. Both of these things are important in learning to read or write, according to Lois Dohra, physical education department chairman.

Through practicing catching bean bags in one hand and working on the intricacies of hopping, children improve their control over both large and small muscles — which can make it easier for them to control a pencil, she said.

MOVEMENT EDUCATION also improves listening skills, the concepts of straight and curved and develops an awareness of self, according to Miss Dohra.

By listening to instructions on how to perform the exercises, the children practice and improve their listening abilities. By standing straight or curving their bodies, the concept of straight and curves is reinforced, Miss Dohra said.

The program also teaches the child the various parts of the body and coordination, she added.

Dist. 15 Supt. Frank Whiteley said there may be other types of programs that would accomplish the same objectives, but they haven't been developed.

"This is a new field," he said, "and at the moment this is the best program we can come up with."

THE PROGRAM is based on a physical education project developed in the Wheeling elementary school district, Miss Dohra said. After three years of use and through trial and error methods, Dist. 15 has developed its own variation of the Wheeling physical education idea and last summer dubbed its program "movement education."

Each child in Dist. 15 spends two hours weekly on movement education. During this time, volunteers — also called "motor moms" — take groups of three to five youngsters and work on specific exercises.

"It takes a lot of time on the mothers' part," Miss Dohra said. "But without them you can't have the program."

The mothers generally spend two hours a week working with the youngsters and have brief meetings before and after every teaching session.

"IT'S WELL WORTH IT," said Anita Nemeth, a motor mom at Gray Sanborn School in Palatine. "I've seen my kids improve. They learn to listen — that's pretty important — and it's a hard thing for kids to do."

She said that most of the time, the mothers work on exercises with the children. Occasionally, the youngsters won't want to listen, so they play games instead.

"It's fun," she said. "Some of the things can get really hard for them." She said youngsters generally have difficulty throwing a bean bag into the air and catching it with one hand. "When they find out they can do it, they're happy, too."

SWIMMING CAN TAKE the edge off of exercise in the new hydro-slimnastics class at the Buehler YMCA. A bit of concentration and practice may mean better health, as Nancy Cimmerman of Hoffman Estates finds.

Clinic opponents to seek to halt township funding

Palatine Township officials will hear arguments for and against the Crossroads Clinic Monday night, when opponents of township funding of the clinic are expected to try to get the funding withdrawn.

The clinic, at 222 E. Hicks Pl., Palatine, provides venereal disease testing, birth control methods and post-abortion check-ups for area teens. A one-year pledge of up to $5,000 for the clinic was promised by township officials in late October.

Opponents of the clinic have criticized the doctors' policy of treating teenagers and prescribing birth control methods without parental consent. Supporters of the clinic say parental consent is not legally required, and would keep teenagers from seeking help when they need it.

The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the basement of the Palatine Township Hall, 37 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

Village-owned bus system study to be undertaken

by PAT GERLACH

A village-owned bus system could soon become a reality in Schaumburg. Mayor Robert O. Atcher this week called for a "quick study" by the mass transportation committee to determine feasibility of the village purchasing four mini-cruisers for runs to nearby commuter stations and shopping centers.

The idea, he said, is based on information from the Schaumburg Transportation Co., a private firm handling local school contracts. STC also operates rush hour service to the Milwaukee Road rail station in Roselle.

WALTER FIENE, bus company owner, estimates business has increased "between 50 and 60 per cent over the last two months," enabling the bus firm to show a profit for the first time in its 20-year history.

Atcher said Fiene has added an extra evening bus and is considering doubling morning service but does not want to expand further "until it has been proven that the fuel shortage is bona fide."

"Persons may be riding buses out of necessity now, but if, over the next few months, gasoline goes up to 70 cents a gallon and there is an excess, the company could be saddled with several hundred thousand dollars in new equipment and no riders," the mayor commented.

He said he feels the village could "appropriate emergency funds" for bus purchase and suggested local developers and the Greater Schaumburg Assn. of Commerce and Industry cooperate in establishing and promoting the service.

"We would ask developers to cover the aspect of mass transportation availability to shopping and depots in their advertising," he said.

HE PREDICTED the village will experience "tight economy for two to three months and then see an opening," explaining he believes Schaumburg will be able to "hold the line as we did in '69 and '70 when there was an absolute recession."

Fiene is encouraging the village to attempt service and contends it will not hurt his business in the least, but said he would not consider providing drivers without a guaranteed subsidy.

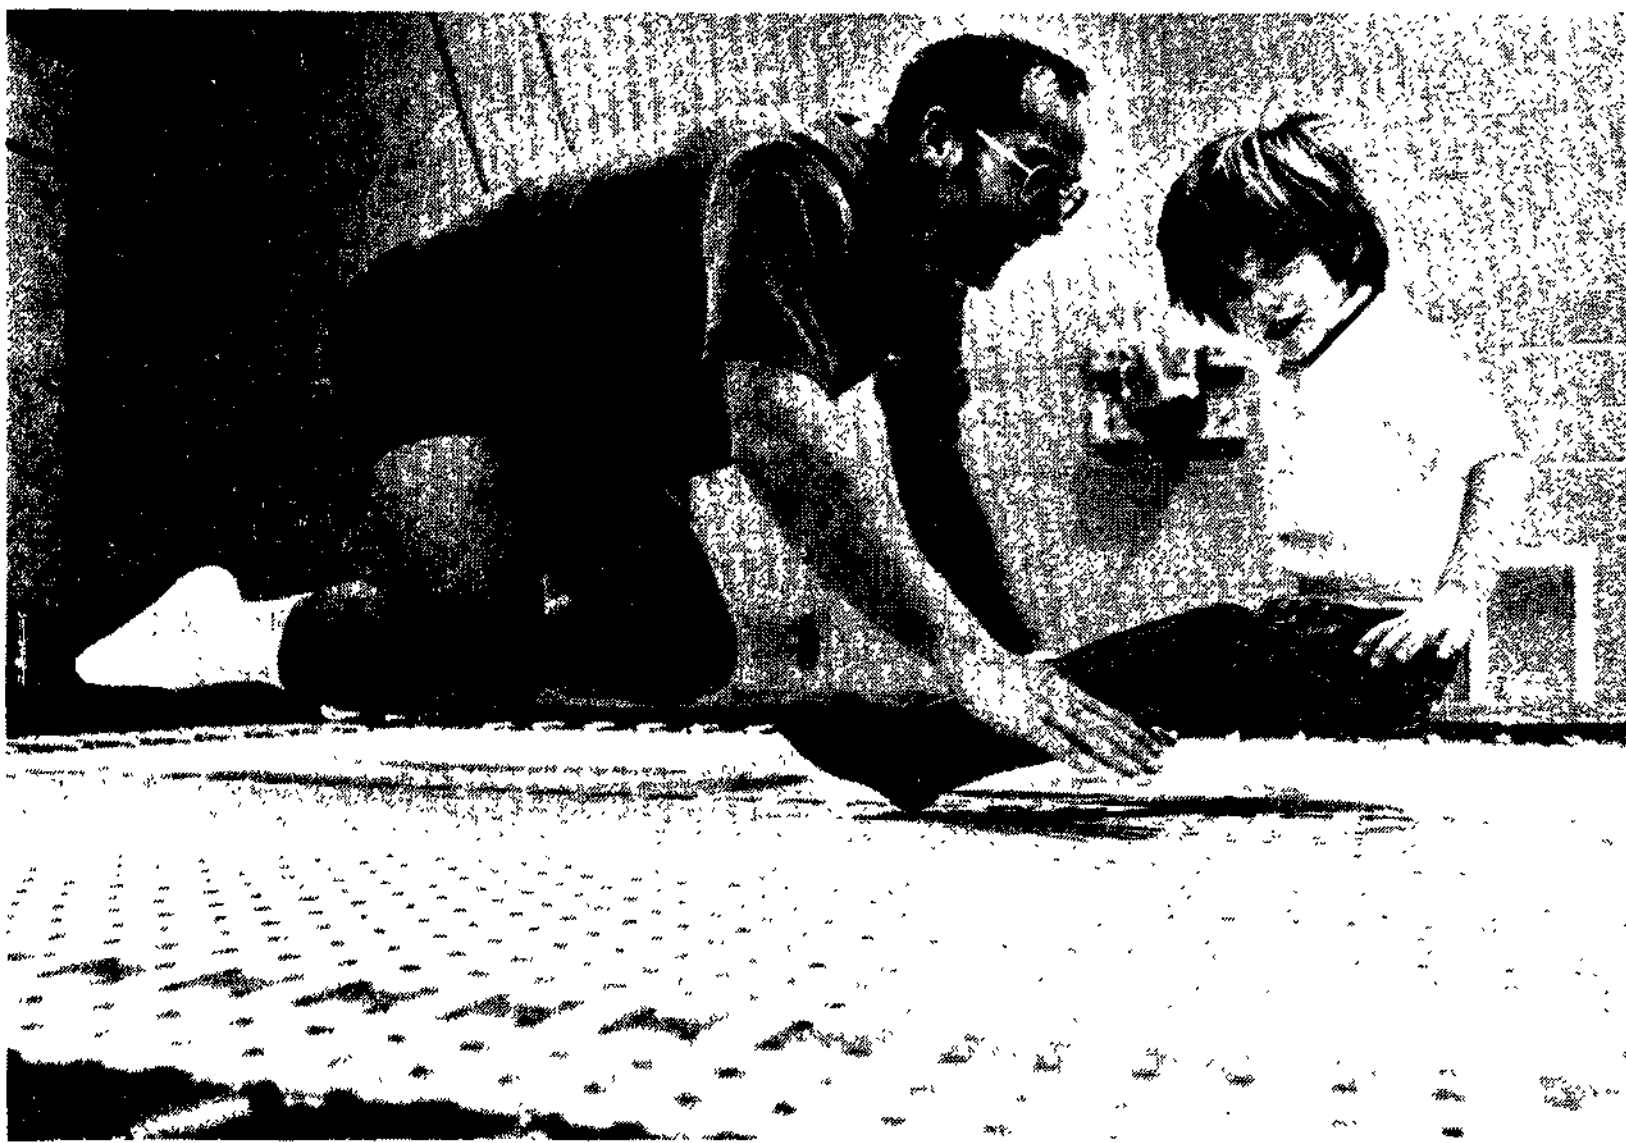

Atcher asked the mass transportation committee to organize a study and schedule meetings with developers and the chamber of commerce "to explore the idea of possible contributions."

THOUGH THE MAYOR said he could not estimate "the tab" for a transportation program, he estimated costs might approach "100,000 for the first year."

"But in doing this I think we may be able to save some of the losses we might experience in our building program and it could prove well worth doing," he said.

Trustee Denis Ledgerwood, liaison to the mass transportation committee, said the first he heard of the proposal was at Tuesday's village board meeting.

Ledgerwood said he and Fred Dietrich, committee chairman, will call a special meeting of the group as soon as possible.

BOUNCING ON A TRAMPOLINE is one of the "funnest" things in a Head Start program, believes 4-year-old Shay Cerami. His friend, Bill Spaletto, a gym instructor at Hoffman Estates High School, thinks so too and often provides athletic facilities for the two preschool groups at the school.

Preschoolers get a good 'Head Start'

by PAT GERLACH

Have you heard about the students at Hoffman Estates High School who haven't yet learned to read?

Shocking? Not really when you consider they are only between 3 and 5-years-old.

This is a very special group of preschoolers who are getting a "Head Start" on their education by attending classes at the high school four days a week.

In two rooms at the new Dist. 211 building, these children are learning constructive play, getting to know each other as well as being exposed to activities, books, music and song provided by their teacher, Mariana Moskovic.

SPONSORED BY Northwest Suburban Head Start, the program got a $2,000 boost this year through revenue sharing money donated by Schaumburg Township officials.

Head Start operates in the Northwest suburban area on a $11,000 budget provided by the U.S. Department of Health

Ice hockey booming

The instructional hockey league for the Hoffman Estates Park District is apparently off to a successful start.

During the first four weeks of competition, crowds of 50 to 100 parents have watched the games on Sunday nights at the Woodfield Ice Arena.

In the pee-wee division, the Blazers lead with seven points and an undefeated record. The Blades are on top on the bantam division.

Pro cage tickets available

Tickets are still available for the Schaumburg Park District trip to Saturday's Chicago Bulls-Milwaukee Bucks basketball game.

Tickets cost $5 each, and transportation to the game is $1 per person. Interested persons may purchase the tickets at the park district office at 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

'Unpaid' ambulance stays put; woman dies

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $84 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfeld and Bismar roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department, which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the Roselle Fire Department himself. Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said. Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided."

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

Atcher cites village for year of growth

Schaumburg continued as a leader in Chicago-area real estate development in 1973.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher, in his annual state of the village report released Tuesday, cited "another year of solid progress" in the community, despite rising interest rates, light mortgage money and materials shortages.

He said the village has added $83 million in real property. Examples are seen in a new wing at Woodfield Mall housing Lord and Taylor, an ice rink and other retail stores, completed last fall.

NOT AS noticeable, but equaling the Woodfield construction, is the addition of approximately 50 buildings in Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park in the south end of the village.

Atcher described 1973 building as "the kind of tax-base that brings very little tax load," reflected by a special census indicating an increase of only 7,000 residents over the past 18 months despite record-breaking building in the same period.

Commercial development included Woodfield Racquet Club, which added to Wright Tennis Club and recently approved Chicago Health Club, which Atcher believes makes Schaumburg "a contender for first place in indoor tennis facilities for northeastern Illinois."

Office buildings are being completed in the Walden complex and Woodfield Plaza, and Motorola broke ground for a new World Headquarters. American Veterinary Medical Assn. chose the village as its corporate home as well.

Woodfield Bank has opened a drive-in facility and buildings are now under construction for First Federal Savings and Loan, Suburban National and Heritage banks.

A LARGE addition on The Buttery, a township landmark, has been completed and many new businesses have moved in to Woodfield Commons as well as Polk Brothers, who opened shop in a building on Golf Road.

Schaumburg's Civic Center is nearing completion on Schaumburg Road, marking the beginning of a building program, Atcher believes.

And plans have begun for a new police and courts building on a 26-acre site that may also contain a 42,000-square-foot post office recently authorized.

Atcher noted the need for one or more additional fire stations over the next three years and predicted the necessity to expand a public works garage.

Yule contest winners named

Hoffman Estates Jaycees selected Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Jones, 402 William Ct., as first-place winner of their 1973 Christmas Non-Lighting Contest.

The competition, held in view of the energy crisis, judged holiday decorations that do not require lighting.

All residents of William Court helped to create the unified display at the Jones' residence where homemade candy canes were used.

Second place went to Mr. and Mrs. J. Damalas, 129 Norman Ct., for their picture characterizations of Christmas fun. Certificates of Merit were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. N. Asp, 307 Astor Ln. and Mr. and Mrs. E. Ehrenberg, 314 Astor Ln.

'High priority' for 1974-75

Possible establishment of a branch library or reading room in the Highpoint area of Hoffman Estates is one of the high priority projects set for 1974-75 by the Schaumburg Township Public Library Board.

The board intends to "study and maybe initiate" extending its services in the branch building or reading room line in the fiscal year starting March 1, said Michael Madden, chief librarian.

If such a facility is put into operation, "the first priority for location is in the northwest corner of the township, in the Barrington Square-Highpoint area," he said. Madden noted that vicinity has the heaviest population density of remote sections of the township.

Services will be extended in other fashions as well, if the library board's priority projects come to pass. Holding the top two positions on the 1974-75 program scale are study of opening outreach programs to area high school students and senior citizens.

Specific extension facilities or procedures have not been offered for either group, said Madden, but one possible project for the senior citizens could tie in with the seniors' bus project sponsored by the township board. The township has purchased a bus, and Madden noted it may be possible to schedule regular bus routes stopping at the library. Other ideas may be considered as well.

The high school program would not be limited to schools located within the township, but could be coordinated with schools outside the township that draw some student population from within the boundaries. There will be special emphasis on developing outreach programs for high school students in the coming year, said Madden.

Library to remain open until 10 p.m.

Schaumburg Township Library, 32 W. Library Ln., will be open an extra hour each weekday beginning March 1.

The library board has decided to begin keeping the library open until 10 p.m.

Monday through Friday. It had been closing at 9 p.m. Library hours on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. have been approved to continue permanently. The Sunday openings had been on a temporary basis.

Honor village for blood donor plan

Schaumburg is the first community of its size to have met its goal in the five-year history of the American Red Cross Blood Replacement Program, said Mary Nagy, local chairman.

Mrs. Nagy presented Mayor Robert O. Atcher with a certificate Tuesday for successful completion of the first year of membership in the program.

"We received the award for meeting our goal of 800 pints and for consistent work to produce at each of our blood drives," she said.

The village quota for 1974 is 1,200 pints. Six drawings will be held.

The first drive is Feb. 21 at International Village Apartment complex, Algonquin and Meacham roads, and Feb. 22 at Schaumburg High School, she said.

Blood needs of all residents are insured provided a minimum of four per cent of the population donates blood annually.

800-unit plan gets OK

Preliminary approval of annexation and zoning of an 800-unit rental complex at Algonquin and Plum Grove roads was granted in Schaumburg Tuesday.

Known as The Treehouse, the 40-acre project is being developed by Finger Enterprises, Houston, Tex., builders of similar complexes in Lisle and Willowbrook.

Developers have pledged $100 per unit contributions to Schaumburg's proposed cultural center and Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center North, as well as a $200 cash contribution to Palatine Township Elementary Dist. 15 on enrollment of each child from the complex.

Discussion and final approval of the plan is scheduled for the Jan. 22 village board meeting.

Lawn sign pact awarded

A $5,067 contract for lawn signs at Schaumburg's Civic Center, now nearing completion, was awarded this week to Federal Sign Co., second lowest of three bidders.

A low bid of $4,960, submitted by Maggio Sign Co., was rejected by trustees because the company is considered a billboard specialty firm.

Signs to be installed on the Schaumburg Road site of the $1.1 million center are to be double illuminated structures.

Mayor Robert O. Atcher said this was a "negotiated bid" since original proposals indicated a possible cost of $7,500.

Education and Welfare. According to Anne Anderson, of Head Start Central in Arlington Heights, this funding must be stretched to provide for 124 children . . . which does not make for a frilly program.

Head Start children are special because they come from what Miss Anderson and others term "under-income" families.

Parents of one child cannot earn more than $4,321 in total annual income to qualify for the program, she explained, and families with four children can make up to $5,551.

THIS YEAR THE program must also accept 10 per cent of its students from among handicapped youngsters and another ten per cent from "over-income" brackets.

In this case, parents are asked to pay on a sliding fee scale, according to income. "Some pay as little as 50 cents a day," Miss Anderson said.

With morning and afternoon classes at Hoffman Estates High School, "Miss Mariana" has a hectic schedule.

"I believe in an easy flexible approach with these children — and a lot of love," said the South American born teacher, who has also had experience working in a Chicago Head Start center.

"Miss Mariana" and her children have made a special friend at the high school in Bill Spaletto, a physical education teacher.

"One day I was walking down the hall and heard this beautiful music coming from a classroom. I couldn't believe my eyes when I looked in and saw Mariana, playing her guitar and singing to this group of really enraptured kids," he said.

On occasion, Spaletto takes the Head Start children to the school gym to work out on trampolines. He believes it helps boost their self-confidence as well as provide energy releasing fun.

IN THE PROGRAM, physical and dental examinations are regularly performed on the small pupils and inoculation records are kept up to date.

Parents, as well, are asked to participate by coming to class as teacher aides or helping Mariana in other ways.

Mariana excitedly told of two pieces of equipment that parents recently helped her get for the classroom. "Now we have a playpen for mothers who must bring younger children and soon I will get our very own piano," she said.

The teacher encourages donations, but when it comes to books she is very selective. "I will not read my children stories about mean stepmothers because some of them have stepmothers and I think we should have books with big pictures and a small amount of print," she explained.

OF THE APPROXIMATELY 35 children coming under her care, Mariana estimates that more than 50 per cent come from one-parent homes.

"Sometimes I wonder if they are poor because they have only one parent or if only having one parent makes a child poor," she remarked.

And giving is very important to Head Start.

Classes, now in winter recess, will resume at Hoffman Estates High School Feb. 21.

Information about the program may be obtained by calling 439-5650.

Elections '74

River Trails incumbents Lurie, Lupton plan to seek reelection

Marsha Lupton and Sylvia Lurie, incumbent members of the Dist. 26 School Board, will seek reelection in the April school board elections.

Mrs. Lupton and Mrs. Lurie said they both plan to go before the Dist. 26 Caucus seeking that group's endorsement. The caucus will begin interviewing prospective candidates Jan. 28.

Both board members will be seeking their first full terms on the board. Mrs. Lupton has been a board member since July when she was appointed to fill an unexpected vacancy. Mrs. Lurie has been on the board for more than one year, having first been appointed in June, 1972 and winning election to a one-year term last April.

Both women will seek three-year terms. There are the only two seats up for election this year.

The caucus is also seeking other qualified individuals who wish to run for the board seats. Interested persons are urged to call Mary Stenbridge, caucus chairman, at 892-3853 for more information on interview procedures.

The caucus is comprised of two delegates from each civic association and PTA in the district. Any organization which is non-religious, non-political, educational or service oriented may apply for membership to the caucus.

After the caucus completes its candidate screening it will endorse two persons for the upcoming election.

Wheeling caucus slates initial meeting to outline procedures

Officers of the 1974 School Dist. 26 General Caucus will meet this weekend to begin outlining procedures for interviewing and endorsing candidates in the April 13 school board election.

The meeting Saturday will be the first of caucus officers elected last spring. Chairman Ralph Camp yesterday said the group is seeking delegates to the caucus from all community organizations, PTAs and PTOs.

A screening committee of about five persons with three alternates will be appointed from the general membership of the caucus.

DIST. 26 School Board candidates seeking the support of the caucus will be required to appear before the committee. Following the interviews the committee will offer endorsements.

Camp said the interviews this year will probably be conducted after an officers' meeting tentatively planned for Jan. 29.

and before Feb. 27, the first day candidates may file to participate in the election.

Rumors were circulated last spring that the caucus might reorganize and develop new procedures for screening and endorsing candidates in the 1974 election. Camp said, however, he does not anticipate any changes in the operation of the group.

"It's unlikely that we'll reorganize and I don't really think it's necessary," Camp said. "We do hope, though, to involve a larger part of the community."

Any community organization interested in being represented on the caucus should contact Camp at 394-5887 or Mrs. Frank Sacco, caucus corresponding secretary, at 537-8457.

Two school board seats will be available this year. The three-year terms of both Jack Lane and Jeremiah Crise are set to expire.

Crise has said he plans to seek reelection to his third term on the board, while Lane has not announced whether he intends to run for a second term.

Prospectus openings available for women

Openings still are available in a personal growth series for women, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Prospectus.

Women of all ages, backgrounds and careers will meet to discuss topics of mutual interest, and to explore ways of achieving growth, fulfillment and authenticity in their lives, according to Prospectus.

The group will meet from 9 to 11 a.m. on eight consecutive Wednesdays beginning today at Prospectus, 110 E. Northwest Hwy. The series is free.

Suburban 'skyscraper' in the works

Plans are on the drawing board for an apartment-office building near the Randhurst shopping center which, at 13 stories, would be one of the tallest structures in the Northwest suburbs.

The building, tentatively called Prospect Tower, would consist of a two-story base for professional offices and an 11-story tower containing 82 luxury apartments.

The 3 1/2-acre site on Kensington-Foundation Road east of Elmhurst Road lies just outside the Mount Prospect village limits in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Village officials admit they are virtually powerless in blocking construction of the high-rise.

The village has turned down plans by J. M. Brickman Mid-West Corp., Mount Prospect, for a six-story building on the site in 1967, contending it would be incompatible with surrounding residential neighborhoods.

Brickman then turned to the Cook County Board, where he was granted zoning for commercial and multifamily development.

HE LATER DECIDED to build the building taller than originally planned, Brickman says, because land values have gone up so much he needs a larger building to justify the cost of the land.

Brickman has expressed a willingness to annex his property to Mount Prospect, but is firm in not wanting to compromise the height of the building.

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert has said he also would like the building in the village, in order to exert control over it and to reap the tax benefits.

Because the property is already zoned for multi-family use by the county, Brickman holds the cards in any negotiating session with village officials, as opposed to most developers who are forced to compromise height and density plans in order to get a zoning change.

Brickman said he would talk to the village until around the end of next month. If no annexation agreement has been reached by then, he said, he would apply for a county building permit for a spring groundbreaking.

AN ARCHITECT'S RENDERING of the 13-story apartment office building planned for Kensington Road, just east of the Randhurst shopping center. The developer is hoping to break ground this spring.

'Unpaid' ambulance stays put; woman dies

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $84 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Briestfield and Bismar roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the Roselle Fire Department himself. Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided."

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

Dist. 26 wrapup

Schools won't pay increased milk cost

The Dist. 26 School Board voted Tuesday not to pay an increased cost for milk. The decision came despite the supplier's notification to the district that it will be billed an additional half cent per half pint of milk beginning this month. The price hike amounts to close to $700 for the period from January through June.

Board member William Haase said the district should not be required to absorb the increased cost to the supplier, Hedlin's Richer Alik, because the dairy company has a contract with the district setting a price as determined by bidding.

"I think we should advise the company that they have a contract with us and we expect them to live up to it," Haase said. Haase made his statement in the form of a motion and the board voted unanimously to agree with him.

The district pays 7 cents per half pint of milk. Of this amount three cents is charged to the students and four cents is paid from state subsidies. The increase brings the cost of a half pint of milk to 7½ cents.

Supt. John Fridlund said yesterday he is concerned about the board's decision because he is fearful the dairy company may stop delivery to the district.

Fridlund said he plans to discuss the matter further with board members before the next meeting, scheduled for Jan. 22.

Life safety contracts let Contracts for life safety code work to be done at four schools in Dist. 26 were awarded to four companies Tuesday by the school board.

Companies receiving contracts are Edwin Anderson Construction, general contractor for the work with a bid of $49,725, Usher Brothers Heating Co. with a bid of $70,145, Klorek Electric Co. with a bid of $15,725, and Boice Roofing Co. with a bid of $29,855. Each firm was the low bidder in their respective categories for general contracting work, heating improvement work, electrical work and roofing work.

The four schools where life safety code work will be done are Euclid, Feehanville, Indian Grove and River Trails.

A variety of improvements will be done at each school including replacing thermostats and unit ventilators, installing trash compactors and removing incinerators, installing relief valves on water mains, and installation of new roofing.

The district will rebid for exterior and classroom lighting because bids received were in excess of architects estimates for the work. Rebidding for paving work will also take place because no bids were received.

Incorporation group plans opposition to RTA

The Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. this week voted unanimously to oppose the proposed Regional Transit Authority (RTA) for the Chicago area.

Members of the unincorporated Prospect Heights homeowners group said they will urge all residents of Prospect Heights to vote against the RTA in the March 19 referendum. Although approved by the State Legislature and Gov. Daniel Walker, the RTA must be approved by residents before being established.

Members of the PHIA had numerous objections to the proposed RTA, including four major ones. "The prime reason is our concern that a non-elective body will be allowed to levy taxes," said Jack Gilligan, PHIA president.

Gilligan said a second reason was that it would be "scary" to have four of the eight RTA board members appointed by Chicago.

The other two reasons Gilligan gave were that the RTA proposal gives preference to the existing railroads rather than setting up local bus systems and that the RTA is being given some powers that will be unique among governmental bodies. These powers, he said, include broad condemnation abilities and the right to go on private property without notification to make tests.

The vote was taken after Thomas Flynn, of the Cook County Planning Office, spoke to the group in defense of the RTA. Last month State Rep. Virginia McDonald, R-Arlington Heights, spoke against the RTA at a PHIA meeting.

Lions fund-raiser

The Prospect Heights Lions Club will hold a fund-raising night at 7 p.m. Saturday at the Old Orchard Country Club, 700 W. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect.

Games will be played and prizes will be awarded at the end of the evening. Refreshments will also be served. Tickets for the event are $3 per person and will be on sale at the door.

Suzuki string concert set

Music for Youth will present a Suzuki string concert Jan. 27 in the Buffalo Grove High School gymnasium near Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

Both cellos and violins will be featured in the concert which will begin at 3 p.m. The students range from preschool toddlers to high school students. The Suzuki method enables the child to learn to play string instruments by listening and imitating. Admission is free.

Appeal checks presentation

Checks will be presented tonight to 13 local agencies by the Mount Prospect Combined Appeal.

The local fund drive raised $24,565 toward its goal of $29,200, and the Metropolitan Crusade of Mercy chipped in another $53,055 to be used locally.

Combined Appeal treasurer Marcella Kokes will make the check presentation at 8 p.m. in the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. Combined Appeal officers for the 1974 fund drive also will be elected at the annual meeting.

Woman, 21, tells police she was attacked

Mount Prospect police are investigating a 21-year-old woman's report that a man attempted to abduct her while she was walking along Main Street this week.

According to the woman, a man who said he had a knife, attempted to force her into his car parked near 621 N. Main St., around 7:45 p.m. Monday.

The woman escaped by kicking the side of the car, knocking herself and the man to the ground, then running for help, as the man fled in his car.

The woman described her assailant as 21 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches tall and 150 to 160 pounds, with a slightly stocky build and fat lips. He was driving a blue intermediate-sized car.

The woman was treated for a bruise on her right temple at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights.

Temporary care center aids youths

by LINDA PUNCH

Thirteen-year-old Kevin was admitted to the Maryville Temporary Care Center late one night last summer.

Removed from his home because of a family crisis, the teenager could have faced a grim future of detention homes, foster families and institutions. Instead, Kevin received special counseling and eventually returned to his family.

The center, opened in August, 1972, provides immediate sheltered care for boys turned away from families, foster homes, schools and institutions, according to Don Ferro, program director.

Rather than throwing a boy into an institution ill-equipped to meet his needs, the center provides a 60-day grace period during which each youngster's needs are evaluated.

"Our program is primarily diagnostic — we try to evaluate a child so he can go on to more permanent and stable care," Ferro said. "Hopefully, we prevent long-time institutionalization of a child because of a lack of planning at the time of crisis."

SINCE THE beginning of the program, 180 boys have been processed through the center. The youngsters are referred to Maryville because of crisis in the homes, failing foster homes, school problems or personal problems, according to Ferro.

The center is open 24 hours a day and can serve up to 15 boys at a time. All of the youths receive a wide range of services including individual counseling, family counseling, remedial education, work program and recreation.

"We get a variation of problems from excellent kids with messed up parents to boys accused of crimes," counselor Larry Boller said. "We've yet to run across a kid we couldn't handle."

The center accepts children referred by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services if space is available. The only boys who are refused are those who are severely retarded, actively psychotic, suicidal or homicidal.

"In the old system, these boys would have ended up somewhere like the Audy Home very soon," Boller said.

THE CENTER is located in a former arts and crafts building near the center of the Maryville campus. The boys sleep in an open dormitory setting with a counselor on duty at all times.

"We feel the open dormitory is a safer environment," Ferro said. "The group is always changing and this type of setting allows for more interaction."

"A lot of these kids have bedtime fears," Boller added. "It helps for them to be able to wake up and see the guy next to them."

The boys spend at least one hour a day on individualized school work with members of the Maryville staff. Since boys are rarely at the center more than two months, the teachers concentrate on improving reading skills and giving the boys a better attitude toward school, according to teacher Sr. M. Gloria.

"These boys have been rejected and kicked out so often that even mentioning school turns them off," she said. "We have to structure classes so they don't look like schools."

Sr. M. GLORIA spends as much time counseling students and allowing them to talk out "their negative feelings" towards school as she does on scholastics.

"Once the boys get their feelings out about school, their minds are clear for learning," she said.

Several boys have advanced more than one grade level during their stay at the center, according to Sr. M. Gloria. All the lessons are designed specifically for each child and high school students receive credit for work completed from the Maine Township High Schools.

During the non-school hours, the boys take part in recreational activities, such as swimming and bowling, and perform chores as part of a work program.

Boys receive $1 an hour for jobs ranging from cleanup of the dormitory area to apprentice work with Maryville electricians, carpenters and mechanics. The boys recently spent a week repainting part of their living quarters.

"Sometimes the jobs don't get done as well as they should but for many of the kids it's the first time in their life they find out they are employable," Ferro said.

AS PART OF THE program, each boy is scored on his behavior during an eight-hour shift, according to the program director. Boys who receive the highest points for mature and responsible behavior earn additional privileges, Ferro said.

School board to ask state reimbursement for bonds

The Dist. 21 school board tonight will consider applying for state reimbursement on recent bond issues that could amount to about $250,000 and possibly reduce the 1975 tax bills of local residents.

The meeting is set for 8:15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 990 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

A state law recently enacted allows the district to apply for partial reimbursement for the cost of retiring bonds issued between 1969 and 1972 for the construction of new schools.

Dist. 21 Assistant Supt. John Barger said yesterday an application for funds has been drawn up and, if approved by the school board tonight, will be sent to the Illinois Capital Development Board (ICDB).

BARGER SAID THE amount of reimbursement for recent bond issues that the district may receive will be determined by the ICDB, based on the number of similar applications by other school districts and the amount of money available. He estimated that Dist. 21 could get as much as $250,000, which would reduce the 1975 tax levy for the district's bond and interest fund by that amount.

Barger stressed that because property in the district could be assessed at a higher rate next year, the reduction in the bond and interest fund tax levy may not necessarily reduce the 1975 tax bills of local residents.

The assistant superintendent said the ICDB will probably announce its allocations some time in March.

Other business on the agenda of tonight's meeting includes:

- Special curriculum report on the Kernel Stevenson Popcorn Factory, a vocational education program recently conducted at Stevenson School in Wheeling.

- Presentation of a plaque to the school board for the district's contributions to the United Fund campaign.

Ex-school official Fred Collett dies

Fred D. Collett, 62, a former administrator in Mount Prospect Dist. 37, died yesterday after a long illness.

Mr. Collett was principal of Central School from 1964 until his appointment as assistant superintendent of curriculum in 1961. He also developed the district's special education services division and served as its director.

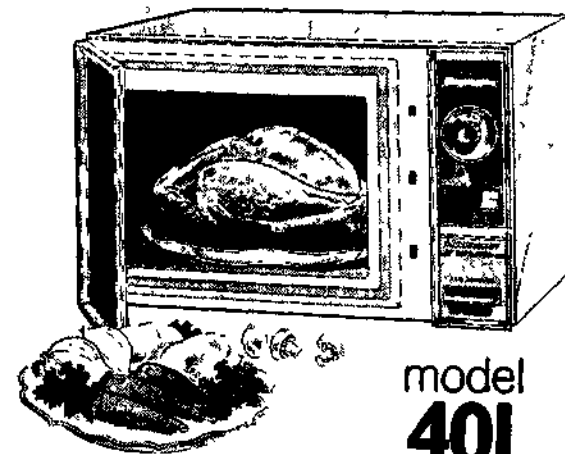

Mr. Collett retired in June, 1970, but returned to work for the district to serve as acting principal for both Busse and Gregory schools.

A memorial service for Mr. Collett will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Elliston Funeral Home, 60 S. Grant, Hinsdale.

Survivors include a sister, Mariett Coughlin.

Block southeast of library selected for low-cost homes

by JOE SWICKARD

The block southeast of the Arlington Heights Memorial Library has been selected as a tentative site for 119 units of low-cost housing for the elderly.

Property owners in the one-block site bounded by Dunton, Fremont, St. James and Evergreen streets, were notified by the village Tuesday that their property has been found to be "ideal for the program," according to a letter sent to them by Village President Jack Walsh.

The housing project for the elderly is a combined effort by the village, the Cook County Housing Authority (CCHA) and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the site was selected by representatives of the village and CCHA, with HUD giving it "tentative approval."

VICTOR WALCHIRK of CCHA said the hearings were the first of a "step-by-step" schedule for the project. Neither he nor Hanson would place a timetable on completion of the development.

The letter invited the property owners to meet with the village and CCHA representatives Jan. 15 "to become fully apprised of this most needed project and the involvement with your property..."

Hanson said the meeting would cover compensation and relocation payments to owners, among other items, should the land be acquired.

"We'll sit down and talk about it with the owners to see if it's realistic," Hanson said of the upcoming meeting.

ALTHOUGH THE CCHA would have the "final word" on the site, Hanson said, "We have a voice in this. The CCHA is our agent, so to speak, in this project. If we said 'no,' they would respect it."

Walchirk said, "The meeting is to advise the owners and to give them information on HUD procedure in these matters."

Seven houses are in the block. Three are owner-occupied and three are rented. Hanson said the site was just one of several that had been considered. He said its location was "ideal" because of its proximity to public transportation, shopping, and services of the central business district.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS has been working since early 1970 to develop a low-cost housing program for the elderly. Two roadblocks were a freeze on funds ordered by President Nixon and the difficulty in finding a favorable site for the housing.

The funds were released recently for those federal projects under active consideration prior to the freeze.

HUD site requirements included the housing be located with easy access to shopping areas, transportation and medical facilities.

The project, when completed, will provide 119 units for individuals 62 or older with annual incomes of $4,500 or less; or elderly couples with incomes less than $5,000. The one-bedroom apartments will rent for $40 to $45 a month, according to CCHA spokesmen.

Teacher to address COULD

Doris Johnson, an instructor of learning disabilities at Northwestern University, Evanston, will be the speaker Jan. 23 at a meeting of the Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD).

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in room 124C at John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Johnson is co-editor of the "Exceptional Children's Journal" and is known for the book she co-authored, "Learning Disabilities: Educational Principles and Practices."

Letter from city stuns residents of designated area

by BETTY LEE

Bob and Gloria Taylor, a couple in their 30s, received a letter early Tuesday morning from the village of Arlington Heights. It stated that the block where they live is ideal for a housing project for the elderly.

So Gloria stopped stripping down the woodwork she had been working on for the past few weeks. She and her husband sat in their living room, stunned by the letter and by visions of packing and leaving their home.

When the Taylors moved into their house at 412 N. Evergreen, they were eager to settle in their 40-year-old home which nestles between two other houses on the tree-lined block.

Even though there are only seven houses on the block, residents range from those who have lived there for more than 50 years to newcomers.

THE TAYLORS are among three families who own their homes. The other four families rent. But whether they rent or own, they feel attached to the neighborhood, its people and parks, schools and shops nearby.

"We looked for a house like this for a long time," said Taylor, who purchased the house in June. "We bought it to improve on and we like it for its location."

Since June the Taylors have poured $3,000 into refurbishing the kitchen which was patterned after a plan in a home-decorating magazine. Gloria envisioned stained glass for the cabinets and sandy-colored wooden counter tops.

"When we first moved into Chicago, I lived in a motel and didn't know anything about the area," said Taylor, a TWA pilot. "I found I like Arlington Heights because it has a village center."

"It's not just a bedroom community," said his wife, who's expecting their first child in May. "It's like a town."

THE TAYLORS, after moving into the village from their apartment in Buffalo Grove, found themselves walking around the village and enjoying the facilities available to them. "We like being close to the library."

Taylor said that he can walk to the train station if he should get a job in the Loop. "That's another good reason why I want to stay here."

The Taylors plan to attend the special meeting with officials from the village, the Cook County Housing Authority and the Department of Housing and Urban Development on Tuesday and object to the plans. So are several other residents.

"Maybe we're jumping the gun," said

Taylor. "Maybe they won't tear our house down. But after a letter like this, we've become discouraged."

THEIR NEXT-DOOR neighbor Eleanor Dieball and Gertrude Hicks, have lived in the house at 414 N. Evergreen nearly all their lives.

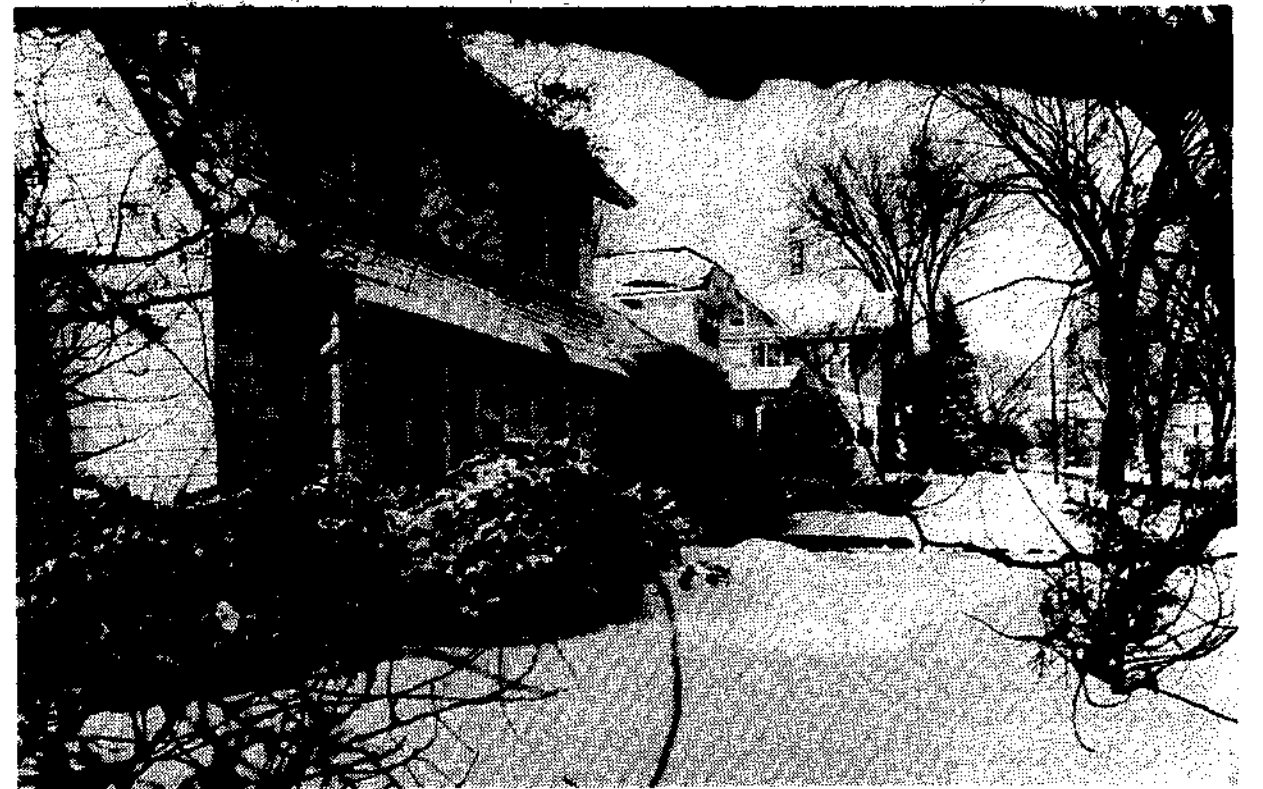

"We were born and raised there," said Mrs. Hicks. She and Miss Dieball are sisters. "Let's see, she (Miss Dieball) has been there for 58 years and I've been there for 50."

"Well, we do have a lot of memories there," she said. "We were talking with the different neighbors here about this letter, and we thought that we couldn't keep it (the house) forever because that's how progress goes."

Theresa Smith, who lives at 408 N. Evergreen with her husband and three children, thinks that "this is a nice area for raising children." The Smiths have been renting their home for the past five years.

"We have three children at North School," said Mrs. Smith. "The parks and schools are close and so is shopping. It is so upsetting to think of moving."

FOR SEVEN FAMILIES in Arlington Heights, the street immediately southeast of the Arlington Heights Library is ideal for the project. They received letters from the village stating that the block

'Unpaid' ambulance stays put; woman dies

by JERRY THOMAS

A tragedy predicted when Elk Grove Village and three neighboring subdivisions started feuding over payments for emergency services may finally have come to pass.

A 36-year-old woman, eight months pregnant with her sixth child died Sunday with a massive blood clot in her lung while at her home only five blocks from the village ambulance and two blocks from Alexian Brothers Medical Center's emergency room door.

Mrs. Jean Pettee, 277 Martha St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Alexian Brothers at 5 p.m. after waiting for an ambulance to travel the estimated six miles from the Roselle Fire Department, which provides emergency services to many of the homes in her subdivision. An effort to save the baby failed.

It is not known whether the nearby Elk Grove Village ambulance could have saved her but the question is certain to haunt everyone involved in the two-year-old dispute from now on.

IN OCTOBER, 1972, the village announced to residents of three nearby unincorporated subdivisions, Forest View, Martini and Itasca Meadows, that fire and ambulance service would only be provided to residents who paid for it.

The tab was $84 a year. Some homeowners agreed to pay and some balked, among them Gary Pettee, whose home is in the Itasca Meadows subdivision near the intersection of Biesterfeld and Bismar roads.

Though the price charged by Elk Grove Village has come down to $42 annually, some of the residents still prefer instead to contract with the Roselle Fire Department, which costs only $21 a year for Itasca Meadows homes.

PERRY MAYHEW, treasurer of the Itasca Meadows subdivision association and Pettee's neighbor, said he contracts with Roselle and so does Pettee. "It was cheaper then and is still now," he said.

Mayhew said that when Elk Grove Village set up its own fire department, nearby unincorporated areas were taken out of the Roselle Fire Protection District. But since they were not actually part of the village, they didn't automatically receive village fire and ambulance service.

"At that point we didn't pay taxes to any district because we were outside the Elk Grove limits and taken out of the Roselle District," said Mayhew.

Because the village got no taxes from the area, it decided in 1972 to charge each homeowner individually. Those who paid got protection. Those who didn't were refused.

"Since they did this to us, I maintain they are responsible to take care of us, pay or not," Mayhew said.

WHEN THE SPECIAL charge started, residents of the three subdivisions protested. A township official called the village policy a heartless and inhumane tactic to force annexation of the subdivisions. And a homeowners' association official predicted a possible catastrophe if anyone were refused help in an emergency.

Such a refusal apparently was made Sunday afternoon, as Elk Grove Village rolled two ambulances after Pettee telephoned Elk Grove Village police asking for help. Midway to the Pettee home, someone checked the list and they were recalled by radio and returned to the station.

Mayhew said Pettee's plea for help was ignored. He said the homeowners' association will make a formal complaint to the village and ask the state to investigate.

Pettee, whose wife was buried yesterday, was not available for comment on what took place Sunday.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis denied that the village is at fault.

"Mrs. Pettee's death is tragic but we do not feel we are to blame. All the homeowners in that area have been repeatedly given the opportunity to contract for service. Residents must pay (through taxes) and they must also," he said.

Elk Grove Fire Department records show an ambulance request was received from a central police dispatching desk at 4:38 p.m. Sunday after Pettee called Elk Grove Village police for help.

Two ambulances were dispatched and were on the way to the Martha Street address when they were recalled. "This address is not in our fire district and the call for help was referred to Roselle Fire Department," the department report states.

Willis said, and Roselle Fire Department records substantiate, that the Roselle ambulance service received a call from Elk Grove Fire Department at 4:38 p.m. asking Roselle to respond.

"The fire department also attempted to reach the Pettee home to tell them Roselle was on the way but we could not reach him," said Willis. Pettee called the

Roselle Fire Department himself, Willis said, and received this information.

THE ROSELLE department records show its ambulance arrived at the Pettee home at 4:49 p.m. 11 minutes after receiving the call, and had Mrs. Pettee at the hospital at 4:57 p.m.

Mrs. Betty Lachacz, who lives on nearby Lincoln Street, said she had been told over the years that service would be refused unless it was contracted for. "We would have liked to have Elk Grove Village help because it's closer but we went to Roselle because it's cheaper," she said.

"None of us out here, ever believed they (Elk Grove Village) would refuse us help if it was life or death," she said.

Willis said the village's policy is not to provide any service outside its corporate limits without a contract. "We cannot provide services free."

"Each homeowner in the unincorporated area is asked periodically if they want our service and notified that unless it is contracted for, it will not be provided."

"The Pettees were contacted in spring of 1972, right after an ambulance call to their home," he said.

"They chose not to contract for service," said Willis.

Lincoln Green would 'harm area'

by KURT BAER

Both the "usability and livability" of single-family homes around St. Viator High School would be hurt by the development of the low and moderate-income housing project planned near the school, a professional planning consultant testified yesterday.

Testifying in the fifth day of the U. S. District Court trial, planner Rolf C. Campbell said that approval of Lincoln Green, a 190-townhouse project for low and moderate-income families, also would encourage multi-family development over the entire 80-acre Viatorian site.

Lincoln Green is proposed for 15 acres of Viatorian land which the village board in 1971 refused to rezone for multi-family housing. The Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. is in court seeking to have that decision overturned.

Campbell said his opinion was based solely on planning and zoning criteria, and did not include any assumptions about the "character" of the residents who would live in Lincoln Green.

The site would be suitable, he said, for single-family housing.

Asked by MHDC attorney Willis Caruso specifically what in Lincoln Green would cause the adverse effect on single-family homes, Campbell said that the larger size of the townhouse buildings, the traffic that would come from the project and the clustering of buildings were all inconsistent with the surrounding neighborhood.

"Nothing is as compatible with single-family homes as other single-family homes," he said.

Campbell's remarks contradicted testimony by another city planner, Norman Drummond, who was called by MHDC earlier in the trial and testified that Lincoln Green would have no deleterious impact on neighboring homes.

Park district plans trip to Bulls game

The Arlington Heights Park District will sponsor a trip to the Chicago Bulls-Detroit Pistons basketball game Sunday, Jan. 27.

A bus will leave Frontier and Camelot Parks at noon and will return after the game. Children in fifth or lower grades must be accompanied by a teenager or adult. All children must have parental permission slips.

The fee is $5. Registration is being taken at Frontier and Camelot parks Monday - Friday, from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m.

Campbell also supported the village's position that rejection of Lincoln Green was based upon zoning and planning considerations, not racial or economic factors.

Most of yesterday's all-day session was spent on a site-by-site examination of all the multi-family developments in the village of Arlington Heights.

VILLAGE PLANNER Joe Kesler testified that at the time of MHDC's application for rezoning in 1971, there were dozens of acres of undeveloped property already zoned for multi-family housing in Arlington Heights, enough sites to build more than 9,000 apartment units.

Kesler also went through some 34 apartment rezoning requests that had been either rejected by the village or withdrawn from the time of the adoption of the Arlington Heights apartment policy in 1962 to the present.

The apartment policy spells out specific conditions under which multi-family rezoning is justified, such as to use apartments as a buffer zone between single-family housing and more intensive commercial or industrial land uses.

During detailed cross-examination, Caruso challenged the applicability of the apartment policy to some multi-family projects in the village, concentrating especially on areas where apartment zones abut single-family housing.

HE ALSO questioned whether the unbuilt apartment sites were for sale at the time of MHDC's application. Kesler said that several of them were, although he said he did not know the purchase price.

Kesler also testified that Rand Grove

More nominations expected

Three declare for school board race

Three petitions were presented last night to the Arlington Heights Nominating Committee for endorsement as candidates for the elementary School Dist. 25 board.

The persons nominated are Robert Kazlauskis, 639 N. Kaspar; Joan Klusman, 3 E. Canterbury Dr. and James L. Foster 1416 N. Walnut. Kazlauskis and Mrs. Klusman are currently members of the school board, whose terms expire in April.

Nominated by Ridge School PTA, Kazlauskis, 38, served as chairman of the nominating committee in 1970. He is employed at Chicago Title Insurance and is a member of the Arlington Heights Jaycees. He has three children and is active in Ridge School and Thomas Junior High School PTAs.

Mrs. Klusman, nominated by Park School PTA, has lived in the school district for more than 12 years. She is vice-president of the League of Women Voters and is a troop leader for Camp Fire Girls. She has two children in the Dist. 25 schools and works as a free-lance writer and in public relations.

JAMES L. FOSTER, 35, is a certified public accountant for Arthur Anderson Co. Nominated by Olive School PTA, of which he is a member, Foster is a member of the Citizen's Committee for the Arlington Heights Park District. He has three children and works with a Cub Scout troop. Foster ran unsuccessfully for the Arlington Heights Memorial Library in 1973.

The purpose of the nominating committee according to its bylaws, is "to locate, place on the ballot, and endorse well-qualified candidates for election to the Board of Education of Dist. 25."

The committee is made up of some 50 various civic, service and educational organizations in the village. Each group was entitled to send two delegates to the meetings. Last night 36 organizations were represented with 61 delegates.

More names are expected to be submitted for nominations. Last year, eight persons were presented to the committee. The deadline for additional petitions will be Jan. 20.

"FRANKLY, WE would like to have more candidates," said Robert Wade, chairman. "We'd like to come out with more good candidates, not that these people who were nominated are not good candidates."

A screening committee of eight will interview the candidates on Jan. 26. Headed by Marian Letzel of the Arlington Heights Women's Club, the committee includes Barbara Vincenzo of the Arlington Heights PTA Council; Hugh Weed, South Junior High School PTA, and Marjorie Pfeiffer of Dryden School PTA. All were appointed by Chairman Wade.

Those elected were Dan Holbrook, Sherwood Improvement Assn.; Carol Sanders, Wilson School PTA; Ruth Runburg, American Association of University Women and Don Ring, Ivy Hill Civic Assn.

Members of the nominating committee will vote for two as their endorsements for the school board election in the spring.

Apartment burglaries being probed

Arlington Heights police are investigating a series of burglaries Tuesday in the Gatehouse Apartments on S. Goebbert Road.

According to police reports, five apartments were burglarized by the same person who struck in two buildings of the complex. Police said the same burglar apparently tried to enter two other apartments in these buildings but was unsuccessful.

Police said each apartment was entered by prying open the door with a tool that left a half-inch mark on the door frame. The successful burglaries were reported in apartments that were empty during the day, police said. Police said all the entries were made between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Reported missing from apartments at 2110 S. Goebbert Rd. was $90 in cash from one apartment and $45 in cash from another. All the apartments were on the second floor.

Police said three apartments at 2160 S. Goebbert Rd. were robbed and another apartment door showed pry marks. Police said $20 in coins were reported stolen from one apartment and $70 in cash and coins and two rings was reported missing from another. A camera and equipment valued at $1,000 was reported taken from the third apartment.

According to police, the burglar ignored television sets, stereos, fur coats and other valuable items. All the apartments were ransacked and most of the cash was taken from coin banks or desks and dressers, police said.

Office building hearings to await study

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission voted last night to delay hearings on a proposed office building on Central Road at Wilke until the village planning department makes a study of the Wilke-Central-Kirchoff roads area.

The commissioners asked Village Planner Joe Kesler to make an in-depth study of the entire region around the Nike Base and new retention basin. The study would be used to guide the village in future development of that area.

The commission's action came during hearings on James Huddleston's request to rezone one acre from single-family to B-1, general business, for an office building.

Commissioner Madeline Schroeder said approval of the Huddleston plan would set a precedent for any future rezoning hearings for that area. She said a recent Illinois Appellate Court ruling found municipalities had no legal right to restrict uses with approved zoning.

Because of the ruling, Mrs. Schroeder said, once Huddleston was given the new zoning, he could not be bound to the plans presented to the commission. Any approved B-1 use, which includes barber shops, offices and retail liquor stores, could be built there, she said.

COMMISSIONER JOSEPH Turley asked acting chairman William Hannum if there was any restriction on changing plans or selling land after approval had been granted. Hannum said although he was not a lawyer, he believed the commission could not restrict any action within the new zoning classification.

Commissioner Kay Muller said much of the land in that area has been set aside on reserve maps for park land and a golf course. She said these proposed uses made the area "a prime location for single family homes."

Huddleston had argued the volume of traffic on Central and Wilke roads made his land more suitable for commercial development.

The commission voted the matter to the village master plan commission and directed Kesler to complete his study by May 4. Huddleston's plans were also directed back to the plat and subdivision subcommittee for review of his land use concept.
